VOTE TODAY ON MAINE DRY LAW AND NEW DEAL

Expect Heavy Rural G. O. P. Polling.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Me., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Not only the New Deal but repeal of state prohibition is at issue in the Maine election tomorrow.

FREDERICK HALE.

Maine, original dry state of the Union, voted two to one last year to repeal national prohibition and now is to decide whether to repeal the prohibition amendment to its state constitution adopted half a century ago.

The wets have been proceeding on the assumption that the emphatic repudiation of national prohibition evidences a state of the public mind which insures repeal of the state prohibition provision in the referendum tomorrow. The drys have been making an intensive campaign for retention of state prohibition and are confident of success.

Drys Hold Rural Areas.

Here as elsewhere the drys are strongest in the rural regions and as a result an unusually heavy rural vote for an "off-year" election is expected. Inasmuch as the rural districts are overwhelmingly Republican, managers are counting heavily on the outpouring of rural Republicans to overcome Democratic support of Gov. Louis J. Brann, which is chiefly in the wet cities.

Senator Frederick Hale, Republican candidate for reelection, predicts a thumping rural Republican vote, but only partly, he asserts, because of the dry drive against repeal. He says the rural regions are aflame with disapproval of the AAA and the NRA and the socialistic trend of the New Deal.

The drys are making much capital out of the return of the saloon in Massachusetts and of a number of recent fatal automobile accidents in Maine in which drunken drivers, alleged to have hailed from Massachusetts, were involved.

Can Have Cake and Eat It.

For the benefit of those who want state prohibition and liquor, too, the drys are pointing out that the state constitution prohibits manufacture and sale only and does not bar transportation of liquor from other states. Such introduction of liquor even for private consumption only is forbidden, however, by a statute which will be wiped out if another referendum question on tomorrow's ballot should be carried. This move is designed to permit tourists and summer residents to bring liquor into Maine and have it sent in, even if the state should continue constitutionally dry. Inasmuch as the tourist and summer resort business is a major industry this exemption is expected to be approved, even if repeal should fail.

Although Maine has been politically dry for a couple of generations there never has been a time when it was particularly difficult to get intoxicating liquor within its borders. Maine was not only the pioneer prohibition state but the pioneer of the bootlegging industry. In fact, tradition has it that the very term is derived from the practice of the Maine purveyors of forbidden stimulants in concealing their contraband wares in their capacious boots.

Saloons Open for Years.

For decades before and after the advent of national prohibition saloons operated more or less openly in Portland and the other larger communities of prohibition Maine. They were raided periodically and fined, the proceeds of the fines being regarded as tantamount to license fees. That this revenue was not inconsequential is indicated by the fact that an imposing bridge in this vicinity was built from the proceeds of the fines.

National repeal wrought no change in the mechanics of obtaining a drink in Maine. The bootlegger continues to be the source of the supply. The only difference is that the price is lower and the quality better, according to expert testimony.

Democratic hopes of reelecting Gov. Brann tomorrow are based chiefly upon the personal popularity of the governor, on the support by Republicans for whom he has obtained favors at Washington or who have benefited from the distribution of government money, and upon the weakness of the Republican candidate, Alfred K. Ames, a 70 year old lumber operator who is

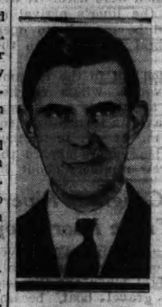
LITTLE HOPE OF STRIKE PEACE TODAY IS SEEN

Both Sides Defiant on Settlement.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Defiant statements from headquarters of both sides in the textile strike tonight led observers to the virtual certainty that nothing will come of the efforts by the President's board to settle the trouble before the "deadline" tomorrow night.



GOV. WINANT.

In answer to the strikers' declaration that arbitration would not be accepted until all the mills are closed George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute, said tonight that the "proposals of the strike chairman are of a character which makes them utterly impossible from every angle."

"I want to make it clear," he added, "that any question of arbitration in this industry is a matter for the determination of the employers and employés in each of the mills concerned."

Demands That Sloan Act.

In answer to this statement from New York came one from Francis J. Gorman, strike chairman at headquarters here, that the mediation board should summon Sloan and demand that he act in his capacity as leader of the mill operators to end the strike.

"First, our proposal is sincere," said Gorman. "We are not in the habit of making insincere ones. We stand by our proposal that the mediation board be constituted an arbitration board.

"Mr. Sloan has a lot to say about lack of authority on both sides in this battle. We have the authority, and we have demonstrated it by closing the mills. The workers will accept and abide by an arbitration award handed down by this board presided over by Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire."

Foresee Reign of Terror.

Unless the board is able by 6 o'clock tomorrow evening to persuade textile mill owners that they should submit the strike dispute to arbitration, the industry again will be plunged into unrelenting industrial warfare. Strike leaders have prophesied a renewal of bloody fighting between union men and strike breakers unless a truce is agreed to.

An "invitation" to the textile employers, asking them to join in arbitration, was dispatched today to Sloan by Gov. Winant.

The board's telegram to Sloan read: "The union, as you know, has submitted to this board a proposal to arbitrate the issues involved in the strike. The board is authorized by the President to act as a board of arbitration upon submission by the parties, and in view of the union's proposal we feel under a duty to invite you to confer with the board tonight or tomorrow morning, in advance of the meeting with the manufacturers' committee scheduled for Tuesday, in order that we may begin immediately to discuss the proposal of the union. We shall, of course, be glad to have you bring with you to the conference any others you desire."

Sloan Agrees to Come.

Although he refused to indicate the attitude of the employers toward the offer, Sloan in a subsequent telephone conversation with Winant promised to come to Washington tomorrow from New York in order to discuss the offer. Upon Sloan's answer depends the future of the greatest strike in recent years. Few observers had any hope, however, that the employers would agree to the union's provisions.

Gorman yesterday agreed on behalf of the union to arbitration, binding the strikers in advance to acceptance of any final settlement decreed by the Winant board. Gorman today, however, said that his acceptance of arbitration would expire at 6 o'clock tomorrow. Unless the employers have agreed to the proposal by that time the strikers will withdraw their offer.

It was pointed out that Sloan has announced employers will attempt to reopen many mills tomorrow under protection afforded by special police or the national guard.

"Reign of Murder" Predicted.

A "reign of murder" will ensue tomorrow if this attempt is made, Gorman has warned, and mill centers were tense tonight in anticipation of renewed fighting such as that which has already cost 10 lives since the strike was called eight days ago.

CALL BOATS, BUT ROOSEVELT SON LANDS SAFELY

Portland, Me., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—For nine hours tonight, until the fifty-three foot schooner yacht Black Arrow suddenly appeared here, James Roosevelt, the oldest son of the President, was the objective of a search by every available navy and coast guard vessel as well as scores of private craft.

The Black Arrow had vanished during the last lap of the annual 138 mile Jeffreys Ledge cup race, in which she was a contender, during the height of the summer's most severe storm.

With a fifty-five mile southeast gale and heavy fog at sea, naval officers were doubtful whether the yacht could ride out the storm. On board besides Roosevelt were George W. Knowlton Jr., owner; his sons, John, 20, and Elliott, 19; Paul D. Rust Jr. of Marblehead, Ransome Hodges of Marblehead, and Hunter Perry of Brookline.

Roosevelt explained when he reached the Eastland hotel that the Black Arrow had been caught in the southeaster and had been blown from off Provincetown up the Maine coast.

"There wasn't anything to be worried about," he said. "I didn't know that there was any cause for any one to get upset. The Black Arrow is sound as a church. We just hove to ride out a little blow."

Stairway Falls; 20 Spectators of Game Hurt

Twenty boys and young men were injured yesterday afternoon when a wooden stairway from which they were viewing a football game between the Chicago Bears and the Chicago Tigers at 61st street and Racine avenue collapsed beneath their weight. Seven of the victims required hospital treatment.

The accident occurred shortly before 5 o'clock, just as the gridiron contest ended. Approximately fifty persons were on the rear stairway and two small landings extending from the ground to the second floor of Harry's Market, a grocery at 6058 Racine avenue. From this vantage point they could watch the game in Normal Park across an intervening alley.

Two Drop from Roof.

Fifty other spectators were on the roof of the building. The crash was apparently precipitated, witnesses told police, by two young men who dropped down from the roof to the top landing. The stairway, already greatly strained, swayed and collapsed, hurling its human burden to the ground.

A scene of wild confusion followed as the victims sought to disentangle themselves. Fire department apparatus and police rushed to the scene. Rescuers were hampered by dense crowds, including hundreds of spectators who poured out of the athletic field.

Many of those who suffered no worse than cuts and bruises were taken to nearby physicians' offices for first aid, then sent home. One boy, Edward Hill, 5 years old, 6215 Loomis street, clung to a portion of the shattered upper porch railing for several minutes until firemen raised a ladder and rescued him.

Investigate Fee Allegation.

Harry Abrahams, owner of the grocery and also of the building, was questioned by Supervising Captain John Prendergast at the Englewood police station concerning reports that he charged 25 cents admission to those who desired to use his stairway and roof to watch the game. This he denied.

Police said, however, that several persons told of paying Abraham's sons, Joseph, 17, and Philip, 19. When informed of this, Building Commissioner Robert Knight said that the building ordinance forbids renting roofs adjacent to ball parks or athletic fields for this purpose and provides for a $200 fine. Abrahams was booked later on a charge of maintaining an unsafe building and released on bond.

"I was at the top of the stairway," related Henry Gausselin, 22 years old, of 3523 West 64th place, "when I heard something cracking. All at once I felt myself hurled into space. I landed on some one else."

MAID FINDS GUN; POLICE RECOVER GRANDPA'S CASH

Because a maid in the Riviera hotel, 4900 Blackstone avenue, suspected something was wrong when she found a pistol under a pillow, two youths from Springboro, Pa., have quit spending grandpa's money seeing the World's Fair.

The youths, registered last Friday, are George Schwab, 20 years old, and his brother Albert, 17 years old. They had $700 when they arrived in Chicago and the hotel clerk was asked to keep this for one night. Later the brothers rented a safety deposit box and cached the money.

Yesterday, when the maid came upon the pistol in the youths' bedroom, the police were informed. Sergt. James J. McLaughlin questioned the Schwabs and they admitted they had stolen the money from their grandfather, Eugene Houghton of Kearsarge, Pa. Mr. Houghton was notified he could get back the $700 and the boys by applying at the Hyde Park police station. The other $200 they took has been spent.

SHOT TO DEATH IN HIS AUTO NEAR CHICAGO HEIGHTS

The body of Mark Lamparelli, 30 years old, of South Chicago Heights, with bullet wounds in the head and body, was found early today in an automobile at 134th and State streets, near the Lincolnshire Country club. There were bullet holes in the automobile and the highway police said it was evident Lamparelli had been slain by gangsters.

Lamparelli had been arrested recently on a charge of larceny and was to have had a hearing next Wednesday. He was recently questioned by State's Attorney Courtney's police on automobile thefts, and authorities believe he was killed by associates who feared he had turned police informer.

The license for the automobile in which the body lay was issued to Michael Lampert, 192 East 23d street, Chicago Heights. Police said this is believed to have been an alias of the slain man.

GLETSCH, Switzerland, Sept. 9.—Five Swiss mountain climbers, roped together for safety, hurtled 2,000 feet down the slope of Mount Galenstock today into a canyon. Three of them were killed. The two survivors were so badly injured they are expected to die. The five had attempted to scale the mountain in a snowstorm.

Rider Dislocates Vertebra in Fall at Glencoe Club

Gerald E. Tenney, 43 years old, 992 Pine street, Winnetka, district manager of the Lincoln Electric company, 1455 West 37th street, dislocated a vertebra in his back yesterday when he fell fro ma horse at the Glencoe Riding club. He was taken to the Evanston hospital, where his condition was reported as favorable.

401 SURVIVORS COUNTED; SEA FIRE STILL MYSTERY

Crew Who Stuck to Blazing Liner Are Praised.

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—A new epic of heroism was written into the history of sea disasters today by the deeds of 13 members of the crew of the Morro Castle, who stayed by that ship through the fire that swept it. "Possibly two others, names and addresses unknown," also are involved.

Eleven of these heroes were brought here by the U. S. Guard Cutter Tampa.

"In my opinion these men were the heroes of the job because they stayed behind," said Lieutenant Commander E. G. Rose, master of the Tampa.

"They elected to stay behind—the others elected to go. And I don't mean to criticize the others."

Who the Heroes Are.

First there was William F. Warms, first officer but acting captain because of the sudden death of Captain Robert Wilmott a few hours before the tragedy. Warms left the Tampa at the coast guard pier in Clifton, Staten Island, and was cheered by the Tampa crew.

There also was George W. Rogers, chief radio operator, taken off on a stretcher and hurried to the marine hospital. His lungs were said to have been injured by smoke and heat. Of him Commander Rose said: "He stayed too long in the radio room."

There were Ivan Freeman, acting chief officer, of Brooklyn; Clarence C. Hackney, acting second officer, of New York.

Hustling indiscriminately down the gang plank of the Tampa there also came, in makeshift clothes:

Robert Reresford, ordinary seaman, Forest Hills, Long Island.

Harry K. Stueber, fireman, Rutherford, N. J.

Otto Dunnheupt, printer, New York.

J. A. Bruns, waiter, New York.

John Howell, bellboy, Teaneck, N. J.

Others on Pilot.

Also included in Commander Rose's list of heroes, but left aboard the Sandy Hook pilot boat No. 1, which also aided in the rescue, were S. Levingston, night watchman, address unknown, and Joe Campa, able seaman, address unknown. Also, "Possibly two others, names and addresses unknown."

The uncertainty over the "two others" was due to the fact that all the members of the crew who "stayed behind" were taken from the burning Morro Castle by the power boat of the Sandy Hook pilot ship. Eleven of them were put aboard the Tampa.

Such were the rain, the wind, and the waves at the time of the rescue that Commander Rose could not gain exact information about those taken on the pilot boat, which incidentally, also carried the bodies of more than six victims taken from the sea.

The men thus taken from the Morro Castle are heroes because they did not desert their ship said Commander Rose. But he also praised their struggles as they sought to help in the salvage of their ship.

Fight to Save Vessel.

Without the aid of a steam winch the officers and crew on the Morro Castle's foredeck, the only part free from fire, weakened as they were by exposure, succeeded after two hours in raising the twelve inch hawser to tie their ship to the Tampa.

Then for three hours more, in a

DISASTER PICTURES

A full page of extraordinary pictures of the scenes following the burning of the Morro Castle will be found on the back page of this issue.

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The Ward line made public revised casualty lists tonight indicating that there are 401 survivors and 156 dead or missing of the 557 passengers and crew who were aboard the liner Morro Castle when she caught fire off Asbury Park early yesterday morning.

The survivors include 221 passengers, 171 of the crew, and all nine officers, not counting the master, Capt. Robert Wilmott, who died of a heart attack on Friday night.

More than 50 passengers are listed as identified dead. Unaccounted for, meaning either unidentified dead or missing, are 52 passengers and 59 of the crew.

When the ship sailed from Havana last Wednesday for the return trip to New York after a holiday cruise she carried 318 passengers, 230 crew, and 10 officers.

79 Bodies Washed Ashore.

The New Jersey National Guard reported that it had assembled 79 bodies at Camp Moore, Sea Girt, consisting of all bodies washed ashore at various communities in New Jersey. Of these more than 50 have been identified. Thirty-two bodies have been claimed by relatives.

Forty-seven bodies were shipped by train at 9 o'clock tonight from Sea Girt to Jersey City, where those still unidentified will be held for identification at the morgue of B. A. Waters.

Eleven bodies have been taken to the city morgue here, of which three are still unidentified, a woman and two men. One body has been tentatively identified as Dr. Dewitt Van Zile, ship's surgeon of the Morro Castle.

Cause Still a Mystery.

No one has advanced a proved reason for the disaster; reports that it might have been struck by lightning are discredited; rumors that it may have been bombed by disgruntled seamen are denied by all sides. Official inquiry may show if the reports that the fire started in several places simultaneously are true.

Meanwhile the still smoldering hulk of the stricken ship rocked back and forth on the beach at Asbury Park, where she was beached last night. The coast guard and other officials went aboard and recovered one body from an upper deck. The searchers were unable, because of the condition of the vessel, to go below to look for other bodies.

Scores of thousands of persons flocked to the coast resort to see the disabled liner, and roads for miles around were blocked with traffic. The local police had to call on the National Guard, the state police, and police from nearby communities to handle the crowd.

Sea Calm After Storm.

By a sad contrast the day was perfect, with a beautiful, calm sea, a light offshore breeze, and sunny skies. If such weather had only come 24 hours earlier, instead of the raging seas, stiff northeaster, and heavy rain which enveloped the Morro Castle at the time of the disaster, many more might have been saved.

The body of Capt. Robert Wilmott remained aboard the liner. It was not known whether it was in his own cabin, in the ship's morgue, or in the ship's hospital.

Chief Officer William F. Warms of the Morro Castle, who succeeded Capt. Wilmott in command and was on the bridge during the disaster, and 14 of his officers and crew were landed here today by the coast guard cutter Tampa and the Sandy Hook pilot boat No. 1.

Promise to Tell All.

Acting Captain Warms and other officers promised to tell all they knew about the disaster and its cause at the official inquiry by a board of steamboat inspectors tomorrow. They have all been subpenaed. The inquiry will open at 10 o'clock in the custom house. Dickerson N. Hoover, federal director of steamboat inspection, sent here from Washington by Secretary of Commerce Roper to investigate the fire, will preside. United States Attorney Martin Conboy will attend to see whether the evidence warrants criminal prosecution.

Definite denials came from New York, Washington, and Havana that there was a suspicion that sabotage might have caused the disaster. Cables from Havana said neither the crew nor the Morro Castle itself was involved in the water front strike there that has been the cause of violence and bloodshed.

In Dark, Officials Say.

Ward line officials protested that they knew as little about the causes of the disaster as the general public, and declared that they could not issue any statement until the evidence has been produced at the official inquiry.

Further criticism of the handling of the ship and of the conduct of the crew came from some surviving passengers today, although others continued to praise the crew for heroism.

Dr. Gouverneur Morris Phelps, a prominent New York surgeon, who jumped from the deck of the Morro Castle with his wife and son, all being saved, asserted that more could have been rescued if the Morro Castle had stopped immediately the fire was discovered, given the abandon ship signal, and launched her lifeboats without first trying to run for the beach.

Crew Members Criticized.

Criticism of the crew made by various passengers on the previous day was also reinforced by Dr. Phelps, who said that lifeboats containing officers as well as ordinary members of the crew rowed away from the scene of the disaster without trying to pick up passengers who were floundering in the water.

Another subject for the official inquiry, which will go into both the management of the vessel and the behavior of the crew, as well as the operation of all equipment, will be the question whether the machinery below decks in the Morro Castle went out of commission or was deserted by the engine room crew before the chief officer gave the order to stop the engines. Just when the lights went out, and when the machinery, including the fire pumps and the steering apparatus, stopped operating will be investigated.

Refused to Cross Fire.

Crew members among the survivors said that more passengers could have reached the lifeboats on the Morro Castle if they had not been afraid to cross through a dense cloud of smoke. They asserted that certain passengers, cut off from the boat deck, rushed aft to the poop deck, where they had no chance to get to the boats. They could have gone forward again to the boats on the starboard side, but the ship had swung head on into the wind when her steering gear went out of commission, causing great masses of smoke to blow toward the port side.

The sailors said they urged these passengers to cross but that they would not do so. According to the crew, the passengers' failure to obey was partly owing to fear of going through the smoke and partly to their not realizing the seriousness of the situation. The starboard boats were launched safely, while most of the port boats were burned or could not be reached for launching.

CROWDS VIEW WRECK

Asbury Park, N. J., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The liner Morro Castle, which was turned into a floating crematory yesterday for no one knows how many of her passengers and crew, became today the chief attraction of Asbury Park's boardwalk. At least 125,000 persons came here by motor car, train, boat and airplane to see her great hulk, caught fast in the sands at a depth of about 15 feet.

The vessel still was burning, but all threat of danger to the $3,000,000 convention hall, Asbury Park's pride, appeared to have ended. She passed through two high tides today, and neither of them budged her. A couple of tugs pulled with all their power on a stout towing hawser, but she did not move.

Men went aboard her and blistered their feet walking about on the hot deck plates. A breeches buoy was rigged up, connecting the smoldering liner with the pier on which the convention hall stands. It provided transportation ashore for the one body that was found.

Heat Twists Steel Beams.

There was no expectation that others would be discovered. The victims who were caught below were destroyed in heat so great that it fused the glass in port holes and twisted great steel beams.

The ship was solidly grounded about 200 feet out, her stern approximately 100 feet from the Convention hall pier. The bow was touching the rocks of a jetty running out from the shore parallel to the pier. The ship had beached herself broadside, and as she settled into position her bow swung slightly out to sea.

For a time the burning vessel had Asbury Park worried, as the seas were heavy last night and the danger that she would smash into the pier was real indeed. But the weather cleared, the wind abated, and today there was a gentle offshore breeze.

Weather Conditions Perfect.

Conditions were perfect for the thousands of visitors to see the dreadful spectacle, and they jammed every vantage point on the boardwalk, in the nearby hotels and in the Convention hall.

"This ought to be worth three-quarters of a million to Asbury Park," said one concessionaire. Many boardwalk booths which had closed their season Labor day opened up again and trade prospered.

City officials charged an admission of 25 cents to sightseers who used the Convention hall, dedicating the proceeds to a relief fund for survivors of members of the crew of the Morro Castle.

Down the shore highway came thousands of automobiles, and to their occupants it seemed, at first glance, as though the hulk of the ocean liner were on dry land. The Morro Castle stood high out of the water, listing 30 degrees seaward.

Heaviest Trafic of Season.

Trafic, said Chief of Police Alfred N. Giles, was the heaviest this summer resort ever experienced. To cope with it, emergency measures were necessary. Asbury Park's 59 policemen were all on the job, assisted by 50 volunteer members of the American Legion, who have been attending their convention here, 25 U. S. army soldiers from Fort Monmouth under Lieut. R. P. Lyman and six state troopers.

The Morro Castle was a skeleton vessel. Everywhere were bare girders. Staterooms had been wiped out. On the port side were three wrecked lifeboats hanging from their davits. Being metal boats, they did not burn, but the heat buckled one of them in the middle and the fire apparently had made it impossible to get the others into the water. One hung straight down from the stern. The third was on fairly even keel.

Masts Remain Upright.

Both the stacks and both the masts remained upright. The shrouds of the masts were intact. A single strand of wireless antennae was strung between the masts.

Forward and aft fires still burned smartly below. The forward fire blazed up intermittently—apparently the flames were working their way through the paint locker, and the sporadic bursts of fire, visible even from the shore, indicated the destruction of these inflammable stores.

NO NEWSPAPERS IN CUBA; A. P. BESIEGED BY FRANTIC CROWDS

HAVANA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Without newspapers, as the result of the recent law prohibiting their publication on Sunday, relatives and friends of passengers aboard the ill starred liner Morro Castle today besieged the Associated Press offices here in quest of information.

The capital, shocked and saddened by the disaster that overtook the proud Ward liner that sailed from Havana Wednesday, could talk of nothing else.

While port authorities delayed their investigation into circumstances surrounding the ship's sailing, pending further advices from New York, the waterfront buzzed with speculation as to possible causes of the fire.

Isidro Gonzalez, general agent of the United Fruit company, and his wife left by plane to claim the body of their 15 year old son, Roberto, one of the victims of the catastrophe.

Other relatives of passengers and members of the crew tried frantically to get some word of their fate.

THRONGS IN MORGUE

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Still clinging to a last hope, a steady line of relatives and friends trod today through the lanes of white-shrouded victims of the Morro Castle disaster in the morgue established in national guard barracks.

Some dispelled, some confirmed the fears in their hearts.

They came in a measured procession. Three sentry lines of militia men—called from their encampment of drill to serve as rescue workers—stood on guard.

Orderlies Lift Sheets.

Orderlies accompanied the lines, lifting the sheets over the bodies. All went in hopeful. Many came out hopeful, but others came out sobbing.

A middle aged couple went into the barracks. The very first body in the lane was uncovered.

"O God," gasped the woman. Shuddering, sobbing, she was led out.

So it went on all day.

Col. Eugene H. Valle of Tenafly, N. J., aid to Gov. A. Harry Moore, was in charge of the morgue.

Recognizes a Visitor.

Once, he looked up from his desk and saw a tall man whose face looked familiar.

"I'm looking for my sister," said the visitor.

"What is her name?" asked the colonel.

"Why, you're Gene Valle," the visitor exclaimed.

"And you're Doctor Cochrane. I couldn't place you for a minute."

Dr. Cochrane, a Brooklyn physician, had attended the colonel's wife at childbirth three years ago. Today, he was searching the lanes for his sister, Catherine Cochrane.

Injury in Fall at Fair Kills Arizona Woman Visitor, 75

Mrs. Carrie Latimer, 75 years old, of Phoenix, Ariz., died yesterday at the Chicago Memorial hospital as the result of an injury incurred on Aug. 24 when she fell on the floor of the electrical building at the World's Fair. Mrs. Latimer and her husband, S. W. Latimer, had been visiting with a son, W. L. Latimer at 431 Oakdale avenue.

CUTTER CAPTAIN LAUDS HEROES OF MORRO CASTLE

Calls Ship Near Shore as Fire Started.

drenching rain, they labored to cut through the three inch anchor chain of their ship, working with only two small hand hack saws. There was no steam power to raise the anchor. As the great chain snapped they had to make a last great effort to slide down ropes to the power boat beneath before the Morro Castle swung free among the waves.

Later the hawser broke and the Morro Castle was beached on the New Jersey shore.

Ship Close to Shore.

Commander Rose was firmly convinced, however, that the Morro Castle was anchored in darkness, save for the flames, only two miles from Sea Girt, N. J., contrary to early reports indicating the ship was some eight miles at sea, when the passengers took to the boats or jumped overboard.

That Capt. Wilmott, master of the Morro Castle, who died of acute indigestion at 8:45 p. m., a few hours before the fire, was burned as he lay dead in his cabin, was also a conviction of Commander Rose.

Commander Rose also cleared up any remaining confusion over the lapse of time between the discovery of the fire by Acting Captain Warms and the sending of the SOS.

"Warms told me that the fire started at 3:05 a. m. standard time," said Rose. "He said he saw it first on the port side of the main deck," he said. The SOS was sent out at 3:23 standard time.

Arrest Driver of Auto with Short Wave Radio

Joseph Zik, 22 years old, 5241 South Washtenaw avenue, was arrested by New City police yesterday and found to have in his automobile a short wave radio, forbidden by local ordinance, two sets of brass knuckles, a flashlight, and a pair of dark glasses. He was arrested after a chase as he was about to place his car in the garage at the rear of his home.

Chicago Girl Eyewitness Tells of Ship Fire Horror

An eyewitness account of the terror aboard and about the burning S. S. Morro Castle was given here yesterday by Miss Irene St. Aubin, 12734 Western avenue, Blue Island, on her arrival from New York with her companion on the voyage, Miss Mary Enright of 6810 South Michigan avenue.

Miss St. Aubin and Miss Enright were asleep in their cabin aboard the S. S. Monarch of Bermuda off New York when the call for help came from the flaming liner. As the Monarch of Bermuda, racing to the rescue, approached the stricken ship Miss St. Aubin was awakened by a steward "to see a ship on fire."

"When we ran on deck there was that great ship, flames pouring from her," said Miss St. Aubin. "We were no more than 300 yards away, and we could hear the women and children screaming in agony. I'll never forget the horror of it.

The Man on the Rope.

"It was raining and the sea was rough, but we could see bodies floating everywhere, and men and women struggling in the water. I saw one man clinging to a rope from the deck of the Morro Castle. The ship was swaying so that every time it keeled over he would swing away and then crash back against the hot steel.

"He screamed, yet he would not let go the rope. Later he was rescued and brought to our ship with 71 others. His body was a mass of burns from the side of the ship."

Miss St. Aubin pictured the ghastly effect of the firelight on bodies tossed about by the waves.

"There were women whose hair streamed out and seemed to wave to us. Yet they were dead. It was just as horrifying when the survivors were brought aboard. One sailor from the Morro Castle seemed to have gone insane. He cried, 'It's murder. They are frying over there.' He could not stop screaming.

Two Other Chicagoans There.

"A man who said he had been married only three weeks had to be restrained from jumping over the side of our ship when he learned that his bride was lost. Another man lost his wife and two grown daughters. A boy, 15 years old, and a girl, 14, jumped off the burning ship with only one life preserver between them. The boy let go and was drowned, and the girl was saved."

Miss Frances Golden, 22 years old, 6645 Minerva avenue, a teacher in the city schools, also was on the rescue ship, according to word from New York. She was returning from a vacation in Bermuda. Benjamin Mazur, 23 years old, a steward on the burned ship, wired his sister, Mrs. Mary Pollack, 5308 Ellis avenue, that he was safe.

FIGHT BLAZE IN SHIP'S HOLD; RACE FOR PANAMA PORT

PANAMA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Canal Zone firemen, racing out to sea, boarded the Grace liner Santa Rita tonight and fought a blaze in the vessel's hold.

Radio reports stated that the Santa Rita was continuing toward Balboa and is expected to reach that port in a few hours. It was indicated the passengers were in no immediate danger. Chemicals brought by the Canal Zone firemen were used. It was hoped that on the liner's arrival at Balboa it would be possible to open the hold and fight the fire from the piers.

Firemen rushed out in the Panama Canal tug Favorite, which reached the Santa Rita about fifty miles from Balboa. The Favorite turned back for Balboa at 7 p. m. It was understood there were 22 passengers aboard the vessel. The crew numbers about 65.

Lake Boat Caught in River; Ties Up Trafic Near Loop

Trafic in Grand avenue at the river was tied up for more than twenty minutes last night when the Sinaloa, 375 foot lake gravel boat, became stuck in the soft mud close to shore. It took the combined efforts of three tugs to release her.

THOUSANDS BEGIN POURING IN FOR HOME WEEK FETE

Visitors Find Welcome in City and Suburbs.

By train, motorbus, and automobile, former Chicagoans and their friends began arriving yesterday, the vanguard of thousands who will participate in Chicago's first annual homecoming celebration.

In outlying communities, forty-seven in number, and along the gaily decorated State street shopping center, the visitors and former residents were welcomed. Huge banners, bearing welcome signs, were strung across eight blocks of State street from Lake to Congress streets. Department stores vied in their elaborate window displays, arranged to depict the progress Chicago has made in 100 years in its evolution from a river bank mud village to a great metropolis and cross roads of the world.

Pigeons' Flight Heralds Fête.

Although the week long celebration opened officially yesterday, State street merchants began their welcoming campaign Saturday when a flight of forty carrier pigeons was released to carry messages of welcome to the mayors of as many Illinois and Indiana cities. Several of the community centers opened their individual ceremonies on Friday, but the majority will stage theirs on each night of this week.

Special excursion rates were offered by thirty-two railroads and interurban lines. Street cars and elevated trains bore placards announcing the observance of the homecoming week.

While State street merchants are offering special features every day of the week to attract buyers, business men in the different neighborhood communities have organized elaborate parades, carnivals, street dances, and other attractions to draw out the home buyer as well as entertain the visitor.

Portage Park residents joined yesterday in a parade through the district, ending with a community assembly and band concert in the park.

Other Community Celebrations.

Three other community centers will stage their celebrations today. Woodlawn will hold a children's pet parade, a girl's buggy contest, and an exhibition by crack drill teams of the American Legion tonight. Historical floats will feature the parade at Beverly Hills, as well as that in the Brighton-McKinley community parade this afternoon.

The entire festival will culminate on Sunday night in a spectacle joined in by all the communities as well as 4,500 dancers, singers, and musicians in the "Drama of Chicago on Parade," which is to be presented at Soldiers' field.

A dress rehersal for the pageant was held in the amphitheater yesterday afternoon. The chorus rehersed in the Auditorium theater. Miss Chicago, the most beautiful unmarried girl in the city, who will be selected in a contest at the Fair, starting tonight, will be presented during the pageant.

Living pictures depicting the history of the United States will be staged in a tableau in the Court of States at the Fair on Monday as the highlight of Constitution day celebrations. Sen. James A. Reed will be the principal speaker among the list of distinguished civic and political leaders who will attend. Through the cooperation of the Exposition special tickets selling for one dollar and with concessions value of six dollars are now available for the day.

HOLD RECEPTION IN HONOR OF OLD ZARBELL HOUSE

A house that has sheltered one of Chicago's old families for half a century was accorded an unusual gesture yesterday when a reception was held in its honor.

The house is at 4132 Ellis avenue, and the family which has lived in it is that of Ivar Zarbell, who was one of Chicago's early architects. Mr. Zarbell designed the structure and moved his family into it in 1884 from their former residence on the present site of the Harris Trust and Savings bank building at 115 West Monroe street.

Hostesses for the observance yesterday were Mrs. Ivar Zarbell, 90 years old, widow of the architect, and her two daughters, Mrs. Meta Zarbell Steele, and Ada Zarbell, a retired teacher of the city schools.

Brink's Express to Hold Open House; 75 Years Old

Open house will be observed today, tomorrow and Wednesday at the offices of the Brink's Express company, 571 West Jackson boulevard, in honor of the organization's seventy-fifth anniversary. Luncheon meetings are planned for the three days to which business leaders of Chicago will be invited. Discussions of how to solve the crime problem by prevention rather than punishment will be led by John D. Allen, president, official host for the company.

Three Detectives Catch 2 Young Men Robbing Flat

Victor Hamantowski, 18 years old, 2015 Superior street, and Walter Dormarck, 17, of 2020 Superior street, were arrested yesterday by three detectives from the Austin station who caught them robbing the flat of Frank Hanson, 1218 North Mason avenue. Detective Martin Boyle fired several shots to halt the youths' flight.

WISCONSIN DAIRY QUEENS GUESTS AT WORLD'S FAIR

Seventeen Wisconsin dairy queens, led by Miss Virginia Kelly of Clintonville, state queen, yesterday came to Chicago on a "royal special" train of the Chicago and North Western railway to see the World's Fair. They were greeted in the Administration building on the Fair grounds by Rufus Dawes, president of the Exposition, to whom they presented a huge ice cream cake and a block of cheese representative of the dairy industry of Wisconsin, their sponsors. Following a reception in the Court of Honor the queens and their retinue of 150 toured A Century of Progress. The sixteen queens who accompanied Miss Kelly were Frances Primozich of Kohler, Catherine Holtz of Sheboygan Falls, Joyce Brown of Plymouth, Gertrude Campbell, Olive Derler, Olive Kalmerton, Sally Naertz, Julia Westermeyer, Elaine Polster, Evelyn Troweridge, Mary Zebre, Joanne Eversdyk, Virginia Lampe, Emma Brunnbauer, Marie Brock, and Beatrice Beyer.

FORD BUCKBOARD WRECKED BY CAR AS HORSE BOLTS

Because a horse "got into character" too well while rehersing its part in a pageant of early day Chicago, Henry Ford's famous 1870 buckboard was a pile of wreckage last night.

It all happened while Sergt. Frank Birkenhaier, 7223 Elwood street, of the 122d field artillery, was driving the buckboard to Soldiers' field from the Ford exhibit. All went well until the horse saw an automobile and did just what a horse would have done under like circumstances a good many years ago. He ran away—and into the path of another automobile at 27th street and Columbus drive.

R. C. Slone, Nankin, O., driver of the second machine, was not in the pageant, but he was startled and before he could stop his car the ancient buckboard was junk. Sergt. Birkenhaier was injured slightly and Mrs. F. C. Edwards, a passenger in Slone's car, was shaken up but not hurt.

Three winners of a popularity contest sponsored by the American Legion in Schuyler, Neb., arrived at the Fair yesterday for a five day visit as a reward in the contest. Another part of the program will be the production of an old Nuremberg fair scene, illustrating a typical market day in the German city, with costume dances and songs.

THREE CONFESS HOLDUPS HERE; NAME 2 OTHERS

Three men who confessed being members of a robber band which committed 30 holdups in recent months were arrested Saturday by the West North avenue police in a raid on a flat at 1626 North Western avenue. Later, acting on information furnished by the trio, the police at Terre Haute, Ind., arrested two other members of the gang and sent them to Kankakee, where they are wanted for robbery.

Those seized in Chicago are Martin Walsh, 28 years old; Edward Peno, 26 years old, and William Nemitz, 35 years old. The two held in Kankakee are James Lorraine, 32 years old, and John R. White, 27 years old. They waived extradition from Indiana.

Most of the gang's holdups were of saloons and meat markets. In the Kankakee holdup, in which $600 was obtained, the robbers shot a policeman.

KILLED BY GAS IN GARAGE.

William Stout, 32 years old, was found dead yesterday in a garage at his home, 1214 East 73d street. He apparently was overcome while at work on his automobile. Stout, a clerk, is survived by his widow and a 20 months old baby.

BRIGHT WEATHER LURES THRONGS TO WORLD'S FAIR

Attendance May Exceed Year's Quota.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Paid admissions to the Fair are keeping up following the Labor day week-end, generally conceded to have been the high point of the 1934 Exposition. Yesterday, with ideal fall weather, the attendance was encouraging. At midnight the paid admissions totaled 165,303.

With one exception there were no attractions other than the exhibits and features of the Fair itself to draw attendance. That exception was the model yacht race in the South Lagoon, which was of great interest to enthusiasts but had little effect on general attendance.

"There is only one explanation for the manner in which attendance is holding up," said Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair. "That is that the public realizes the Fair offers the greatest educational and entertainment attraction for the money this country ever has seen.

Late Visitors Serious.

"Persons visiting the Fair now are those who seriously wish to see and understand the exhibits showing the progress of the last hundred years."

While yesterday's attendance set no records, it did rank with the four or five biggest Sundays of the Exposition. Officials are confident of reaching the 14,000,000 mark before the Fair closes its gates forever Nov. 1. Preopening estimates called for a total attendance of in the neighborhood of 13,000,000, so that as far as attendance is concerned the 1934 Exposition has been a success.

As of yesterday morning, the total attendance at the Fair was 10,390,831, while the 1933 Exposition at the same time had entertained 14,519,969 persons.

May Exceed 14 Million.

The total for the 1933 Exposition was 22,565,859, including 245,403 tickets which were sold but not used. If the present ratio is carried out for the remainder of the Fair the 14,000,000 total will be reached if not exceeded.

The September and October paid admissions at the 1934 Fair gave promise of exceeding those of the same months at the 1933 Exposition. If the present volume of admissions holds for the remainder of the Exposition A Century of Progress will pay out one hundred cents on the dollar, a record never even approached by any previous international exposition.

Despite protests at being locked up over the week-end when he had planned a big party, Maxie Eisen, czar of the fish peddlers, was held at the detective bureau yesterday for questioning about a new racket. The fish boss, who is 47 years old, and lives at 2626 North Troy street, was arrested at Fulton and Union streets by Sergts. William McCarthy and Joseph Mooney of the state's attorney's police, who say merchants are complaining that he is planning a new "shakedown."

The police sent out a request that Theodore Burke and John Roody, two tramps who left the camp, be seized for questioning.

UNION PRINTERS CELEBRATE DAY AT WORLD'S FAIR

4,000 Hear Addresses in Court of States.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

The part the International Typographical union has played as one of the pioneers, and one of the most powerful groups of organized labor, was told last night at a program in the Court of States at A Century of Progress. The program of speeches and entertainment was the culmination of the observance of I. T. U. day at the Fair.

More than 4,000 people, including 400 delegates to the seventy-eighth annual convention of the union and their families, heard the addresses in the evening. The delegates represented 75,000 union printers all over the United States and Canada. The talks were broadcast.

Union's Chief Speaks.

Among the speakers were Charles P. Howard, president of the International union; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Howard is on leave of absence from his duties at THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Howard said the printers' union had been one of the first organizations to realize the necessity for a five day week and had instituted it for its members six months before it was considered by the NRA.

"One of the lessons the depression taught us," h. declared, "was that the purchasing power of the worker is always the yardstick for production. We must give the worker increased purchasing power and we must put more men to work. This can be done by decreasing hours and increasing wages. That will give us a more equitable distribution of wealth.

Long Hours Obsolete.

"Machine production has done away with the necessity of long hours. It also has brought new kinds of employment into existence and there should be work for all who want to work.

"When we talk of recovery, we must realize that recovery connotes different things for different classes. To those in business management, recovery means the return of the boom days of 1929 and before, with the regaining of all losses. To agriculture, recovery means the opportunity for the farmer to dispose of all his produce and to buy the necessities he cannot produce.

"But to the unemployed man, recovery means employment instead of dependence on charity and relief. Recovery must necessarily mean to all classes that the unemployment situation can be solved. It is to afford this greater employment and for the betterment of all workers that the International Typographical union has urged the shorter working week. And with it must come increases in wages."

Lauds Printers as Pioneers.

Mr. Green praised the printers' union for "the path it blazed as pioneers, a path the whole nation is now studying in order that all citizens may have a greater degree of economic security." He said that the union had been active in framing the NRA code for the graphic arts and the subsidiary codes.

"As organization of workers extends throughout the industry," Mr. Green stated, "the International union will be able to take advantage of that provision of the NRA which makes a collective agreement, when approved by the President, a part of the code and hence of the law of the land, binding upon the whole industry.

"This organization was one of the first to face the change from handcraft to machine control with a wise understanding that the problem was not to stem technical progress but to participate in planning the transition in work rules, procedure, and in working out compensation under changed conditions.

"It is in the periods of changing technics that so greatly transform living standards that wage earners find unions indispensable to enable them to secure a square deal at work and to share in the conveniences and advantages of advancing social progress.

"Collective bargaining is simply a means to an end. The end is an agreement. The right to organize is inherent in the spirit of Americanism. If it is denied to us we will never stop fighting for it.

Know Machine Age Problem.

"The members of this union have suffered from mechanical displacement. They know, from a careful study of the economic and mechanical developments which have taken place in the printing industry that it is impossible to maintain the long work week while workers are being constantly displaced and individual efficiency is increased.

"The number of days worked per week and the number of hours worked per day must be reduced in conformity with individual and industrial efficiency. This is one outstanding reason why the printers' union is making such a determined fight for the realization of the six hour day and the five day week."

Referring to the current textile strike, Mr. Green said that the A. F. of L. has urged the President's newly appointed textile board to act as an arbitrator.

Textile Arbitration Vital.

"The textile employers, by the sheer weight of public opinion, will be forced to submit the matter to arbitration," he said, "for industrial peace is needed. This is better settled judically than on the field of industrial warfare.

"There is no general strike in the offing. The thing of which we are apprehensive, however, is that if the nonstrikers in the textile mills organize we will have two armed camps."

Col. McCormick, in his address, praised the printers' union for its achievements. This union, he said, while being the first to establish an eight hour day and five day week, also enjoys the highest minimum wage scale in North America.

Union Cares for Its Own.

The union also maintains a home for its aged and a sanitarium for its sick and pays pensions to members who have reached the age of 60 and mortuary benefits up to $500, Col. McCormick pointed out. He said that printing as an industry "in this new world of various and bewildering competition held its own far better than industries which seemed far better entrenched."

"Many times in the last score of years," said Col. McCormick, "I have viewed with apprehension the arrival of competing innovations, and have studied the problems they present in common with many of you present. I believe I understand the method whereby we have so far survived. It has been because we have made use of every device that increased the demand for and decreased the cost of our product, have made use of articles that could have been put into competition with us and because we have made customers of our competitors.

Path Is Ever Upward.

"The true course of industrial progress I am sure of, though the steps in the path are often obscure and difficult to find. Industrial progress consists in furnishing a progressively better article for less cost while paying continuously increasing wages.

"The seeming contradiction is overcome by the development of constantly improved machinery, of better methods of production, of better workmanship, and adopting improvements in working conditions as fast as the ingenuity of man can devise them.

"In this conception it does not suffice that a new machine cuts the cost of an article; the soul of anything like continued success is that the saving obtained by use of machinery be laid on in improving the article.

Demand Helps All.

"The improvement in the article stimulates the demand for it so that there is a greater demand for men to make the improved article than there was for the inferior one, and a demand for machinery makers is created where none before existed, and for workers in mines, forests, and farms.

"This course of progress lays upon going concerns the continuous problem of steering their way between the error of foolhardy speculative experiment and moribund over conservatism. This problem is a heavy burden and a carking care to those upon whom it is imposed, but it is entirely unescapable.

"Whenever the improvement of an industry ceases either from failure to reinvest in betterments the savings effected by machinery or from failure to utilize all modernities, mortification sets in and industry dies."

Other speakers on the program were Frank W. Morrison, secretary of the A. F. of L., and George Chiles, an employe of THE TRIBUNE, who is president of the Chicago Typographical union, local No. 16, which is host to the delegates. Music was furnished by the local union's band.

The union convention will be resumed today at the Palmer house and will continue all this week.

CHINESE KILLS 2 OF LINER'S CREW AND SHOOTS SELF

PANAMA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The steamer President Wilson was en route to Los Angeles, Cal., today after having returned to Balboa, Canal Zone, on Saturday following a fatal affray among three Chinese members of the crew.

A Chinese bellboy, Au Seung, shot dead two Chinese members of the crew, Chee Yuk and Yim Tung, and then shot himself. The assailant is dying in Gorgas hospital.

Seung said he killed the two because they cheated him at gambling.

SEE LITTLE HOPE OF STRIKE PEACE IN PARLEY TODAY

Both Sides Are Defiant in Truce Effort.

which observers believe that Sloan will reject the arbitration offer is that Gorman is insisting the strike remain in full force and all mills remain closed while arbitration is under way. Sloan is expected to demand that normal operations be allowed while a settlement is sought.

Feverish conferences between Sloan, Gorman, and the President's board, are in prospect for tomorrow as the board seeks to drive home its peace offer and stop the fighting. Much of the success of the attempt is expected to hinge on the ability of the board to modify Gorman's proviso on continuation of the strike.

Bent on Breaking Tieup.

The outlook for open war between strikers and the militia or special guards when mills attempt to resume operations tomorrow is making officials especially anxious and is adding stimulus to the peace work. Mill owners, caught off guard by the strike, apparently are bent on launching tomorrow a determined effort to break it.

Since the strike has started mill owners have obtained increased support from the National Guard or have armed their own deputies. They are now determined to have a fling at breaking the strike. The union on its side has gangs of militant strikers, some armed, who are attempting to "crack down" on the mills.

Sloan's ultimatum yesterday that mills will begin reopening tomorrow was met by flat defiance from Gorman, who dared the owners to operate their mills by force or otherwise. Blazing guns are expected to punctuate the dawn tomorrow.

TWO AUTOISTS KILLED BY TRAIN.

Chelsea, Ia., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Two persons were killed here early today when their car was struck by a passenger train at a main street crossing.

DYERS' GROUPS FAIL TO AGREE ON PEACE PLAN

After a long conference in the La Salle hotel, representatives of three groups in Chicago's cleaning and dyeing industry adjourned last night without reaching an agreement to permit the reopening of cleaning plants, which have been closed since Wednesday.

Frank Harscher of the Cleaners and Dyers' association, which locked out its union employes, asserted that the independent plants whose low prices were the underlying reason for the shutdown, had refused an offer to arbitrate for fair cleaning prices.

Harold Blum of the Sanitary Cleaners and Dyers, independent concern whose plant has been picketed by the locked out unionists, announced he would open today and would pay the union scale of prices, increasing the retail cleaning price from 39 cents to 50 cents a garment. He added that the association was attempting to establish a much higher price charge.

Al Boris, representing the locked out workers, said his organizations were not interested in the price set for cleaning, but would continue to picket the independent plants until their managements signed union contracts.

TUESDAY'S VOTE TEST FOR LONG AT NEW ORLEANS

Kingfish's Friends, Foes Speed Up Attacks.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Senator Huey Long has put his "national program" as well as his future control of the state at stake in Tuesday's Democratic primary election in New Orleans. Without this city, political observers agree, he has little chance two years hence for reelection to the senate or a throne seat in the new $5,000,000 marble capital at Baton Rouge.

Nationally he hails with delight Upton Sinclair's victory in California, takes credit for the Frazier-Lemke act, as well as the guarantee of bank deposits, and "can hardly wait," he says, to get back to Washington to push the rest of his program, which includes old age pensions, unemployment insurance and a general redistribution of wealth that will give each family the equivalent of $5,000 a year. He would not take money away from people to do this, he says, not until they have acquired two or three millions and then he would call a halt, and crack down hard.

Appeals to Voters.

In order to get under way in Washington, he told the people today, he must have the reelection of Congressman J. O. Fernandez in the First district and Paul H. Maloney in the Second. The First district includes eight wards in New Orleans and the parishes of Plaquemines and St. Bernard. The Second includes nine wards in the city and the parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, St. James, and St. John the Baptist. In order to win these districts Senator Long does not have to get a heavy majority in the city, for he controls the outside parishes. The average vote is about 100,000 in the city and 40,000 in the parishes. Long can count on all this 40,000, therefore, would only have to break a little better than even in the city.

The senator in radio appeals, four of them today, is making a hard drive for the support of the poorer people. In addition to the shining robes in which he clothes his candidates, he offers the bait of his new laws which make parole mandatory within two hours after arrest, uphold the moratorium on debts, do away with a poll tax, bring a reduction in taxes on autos, and promises a cut in telephone and telegraph rates.

Seeks Rule of City.

Although there are Long and anti-Long fights in the six other congressional districts of the state, the majority of which Long is expected to lose, he has concentrated on the two New Orleans districts and is headed for control of this city if possible. In the last municipal campaign his ticket polled about 39,000 votes and the old regulars headed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, got 76,000.

The "peace pact" signed by the candidates on both tickets and their leaders will result in having two guards chosen by the arbitration committee at each of the 262 polling places, and that is all. No police, no soldiers. The arbitration committee consists of a representative from Loyola university, one from Tulane university, one from the Central Trades and Labor council, and one from the board of election supervisors. Judge W. H. Byrnes Jr., the fifth member, was chosen chairman by the other four.

The peace pact is all right, Mayor Walmsley told his audience last night, but it should not be called that, "for there can be no peace between this faction and Huey Long until he is in Atlanta prison."

The kingfish may be the military dictator at present, but the people do not take him too seriously. He is a long ways from Hitler. They hanged him in effigy last night on Canal street, a ludicrous figure in yellow cotton pajamas stuffed with hay, with placards predicting his downfall.

REUNITED AFTER 42 YEARS

Mrs. Amelia Scott of Long Beach, Cal., and her brother, Eugene Oeschler, 3933 North Mozart street, who had not seen each other since Mrs. Scott left Germany in 1892, were reunited yesterday at the World's Fair.

Separated in Germany

Again the World's Fair has served to unite members of a long separated family. Mrs. Amelia Scott of Long Beach, Cal., arrived in Chicago to visit the Fair yesterday and to meet her brother whom she had not seen since she left Germany for the United States in 1892. Her brother, Eugene Oeschler, who lives at 3933 North Mozart street, came over from Karlsruhe-Baden, Germany, in 1923.

LONG-SUPPORTED JUSTICE DIES ON EVE OF PRIMARY

New Orleans, La., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Justice Winston Overton of the Louisiana Supreme court died tonight. He was 63. He was a candidate to succeed himself on the bench in Tuesday's Democratic primary and was supported by Senator Huey P. Long's organization. He was a brother of United States Senator John H. Overton.

Speaking tonight over the radio in a campaign talk Senator Long mentioned the death and said:

"I have been busy looking up the law on the subject and was surprised to find a complete hiatus in the law. It doesn't cover the case at all. It looks like a new election will have to be called by the committee or the legislature will have to pass a law providing for a new election."

Outside observers declared the primary law provides that when a candidate dies within seven days of an election his opponent in a two man race is declared the nominee of the party.

The break in the ticket was believed destined to bring on sharp controversy between the Long and anti-Long forces.

CONTENDS UNION BREAKS ITS OWN RULE IN BUS WAR

John A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Coach company, yesterday forwarded a letter, in which he asked an interpretation of the union's authority for calling a strike of the company's drivers, to William D. Mahon of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach employés.

Mr. Ritchie declared the constitution and general laws of the Amalgamated indicated that only "bus operators employed in connection with the operation of street railways," were eligible to membership. He added that, from the information at hand, the employés of a company operating only gasoline buses could not be members of the Amalgamated, under its own rules. Mr. Mahon was asked to state whether the parent organization had the right to admit Division 1022, the bus drivers, who went on strike, to membership, and also whether the "so-called strike" had been approved by its general executive board before it was called.

Ralph Stoltzmann, head of division 1022, said last night that the eligibility rules have been amended and that he was sure President Mahon would inform Mr. Ritchie of his unit's good union standing and the approval of the strike.

Officials of the Amalgamated units in Chicago announced yesterday they would take steps to request dissolution of two injunctions issued Saturday by Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski, restraining strikers and their sympathizers from acts of violence and interference with bus operation. According to the officials, their men were not guilty of such acts. The injunctions were issued at the request of the bus company and the Motor Coach fraternity, the company union.

JAPAN REPORTED READY TO SCRAP ALL BATTLESHIPS

Spokesman Opposes Race to Increase Armaments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 10.—[Monday.]—Japan is prepared to scrap all powerful weapons of offense a spokesman for the foreign office declared today, thus intimating that for the first time officially Japan likely will propose the abolition of battleships and plane carriers in the forthcoming naval reduction conference with other powers.

"It is not Japan's intention to enter a naval competition which will result in an increase in armaments and heavier burdens for the people of the world," the foreign office spokesman said.

"Our plan is to have a navy insufficient for offensive purposes but sufficient for defense. We hope others also will work towards this end."

Won't Predict Delegates.

Although the foreign office spokesman refrained from saying so, it generally is understood that offensive weapons means battleships and plane carriers. He said that it would be premature to predict who Japan's delegates would be to the conference.

Foreign correspondents were requested to cease spreading reports which would incite ill feeling, such as that if Japan does not agree to present ratio America would build the greatest fleet in the world because financially able to do so while Japan was unable to keep pace with the United States. He also asked that the foreign correspondents desist from saying that the United States would fortify zones where fortifications now are prohibited. He promised to renew his efforts to induce the Japanese papers not to publish such articles as would incite misunderstanding with America.

Scoffs at Italy's Fears.

TOKIO, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Reports from Rome that Italy feared Japanese penetration of the Abyssinian empire brought mystified denial today from a foreign office spokesman.

"We are ignorant of any developments which could be interpreted as Japanese penetration in that part of the world that would justify alarm on the part of Italy or other European powers," said the spokesman.

"Certainly there has been nothing to cause the reported military precautions in Italy's African colonies."

[The Italian reports had said troops were being sent to Italian Lybian colonies in northern Africa, to protect them in case a conflagration in Europe should command Italy's undivided attention at home. Abyssinia borders upon Italy's African colonies.]

Plan to Establish Legation.

The spokesman added that Japan's interest in Abyssinia and other African markets was steadily growing, for which reason the foreign office hoped to obtain an appropriation in the 1935-1936 budget to establish a legation at Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, where Japan is not represented.

Doubt was expressed, however, whether parliament would vote the funds. The opinion was given that the only possible basis of the penetration reports was a recent visit of a Japanese foreign office official to Addis Ababa in the course of a homeward voyage from Geneva, where he had formerly been attached to the league of nations.

The mission, it was explained, was merely to obtain first hand information upon Abyssinian conditions, and the foreign office had no knowledge of any concessions granted by the Japanese to Abyssinia.

Returns at the finance ministry show Japan has been steadily gaining in African markets. Exports to that continent in the first seven months of 1934 amounted to nearly $21,000,000, compared to about $25,000,000 for the corresponding months of 1933.

Denial Surprises Italy.

ROME, Sept. 9.—(AP)—A denial at Tokio that Japan has "penetrated" Abyssinia to any extent that Italy could consider alarming caused considerable surprise here tonight. Japan's commercial victories in that region have been considered here as accomplished facts and it was thought Japan freely acknowledged them.

unable to make an extemporaneous speech and has made only three addresses, all by radio.

The governor's campaign has been particularly illuminating. It has disclosed the part that political influence plays in getting allotments of New Deal funds and other favors in Washington. Even RFC loans to Maine banks were obtained through such political pull, according to the governor's claims. The governor was in Washington frequently on such business of this character as required a more intimate touch than could be achieved by telephone or letter. There was no special dispensation too difficult for him to tackle, no favor too small to receive his attention.

Leaves That to Congressmen.

This job he left to the two Democratic members of congress, John G. Utterback and Edward C. Moran Jr., and to Harold Dubord, Democratic candidate for senator. Mr. Dubord, who tonight predicted his own election by 18,000 majority, and Gov. Brann's by 20,000, has stumped the state lauding the New Deal and arguing that it is time to retire the Hale family from office. If Senator Hale be given another term, Dubord complains, it will make 70 years in Washington for father and son.

If Dubord should win he will be entitled to the distinction of breaking a Maine habit of keeping men in congress for long periods. The elder Hale was elected to the house in 1870 and spent the last thirty years of his life in the senate where his son has now served nearly 18 years. Throughout that thirty years the other Maine senator was William P. Frye, who succeeded James G. Blaine.

Almost as striking is the story of the quartet of representatives—Thomas B. Reed, Nelson Dingley Jr., Charles A. Boutelle and Seth L. Milliken, who served together during seven congresses from 1883 to 1897. Thus, for fourteen years the same group of men filled all Maine's seats in both houses.

ARIZONA NEAR VOTE

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 9.—(AP)—One of the most heated primary campaigns in recent Arizona history neared a close today with Democrats preparing to cast their ballots Tuesday for party nominees for United States senator, congressman, governor, and scores of other offices.

Although names of a few Republicans appear on the ballot, the state central committee has announced all will withdraw and the party ticket be filled later at a convention.

Interest among Democrats centered mainly in the outcome of the race for governor and the strenuous fight of the veteran Senator Henry F. Ashurst to succeed himself.

Isabella Greenway seeks the congressional nomination for the first time at a regular election, and has a single opponent, Frank H. Hilgeman, Salt river valley farmer. Mrs. Greenway became Arizona congresswoman at a special election last year, succeeding Lewis W. Douglas, who withdrew to accept appointment as federal director of the budget.

CHARGE COLORADO FRAUD

Denver, Colo., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Amid charges of fraud and appeals for vindicating votes the Colorado Democratic primary campaign drew toward a close tonight and the electorate prepared to cast its vote Tuesday.

There is virtually no interest in any contest save that between Gov. Edwin C. Johnson of Craig and Miss Josephine Roche of Denver.

Miss Roche, seeking her first elective office, has accused the governor of bad faith with the national administration and called for a program of social service work and old age pension insurance which Johnson has said will cost the people of the state many millions annually.

BURGLARS HELP SPOOKS RATTLE THE FURNITURE

Jack G. Lawson, commercial photographer at 308 North Michigan avenue, does not believe in fortune tellers. His wife, Mrs. Vivian Lawson, does.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Lawson was told by a seeress that her home at 630 Washington street, Wilmette, would be robbed between Sept. 1 and 15. Mrs. Lawson left town to visit her parents in Sioux City, Ia.

Last night Lawson returned home at 10 o'clock and found all the doors of his home wide open. His two children, Patsy, 5 years old, and Nancy, 7 years old, a Negro maid and chauffeur had returned from a neighborhood picture theater an hour before and retired. Examination of the premises showed Lawson that burglars had ransacked every room in the house, with the exception of the servants' quarters, and the basement where the watchdog was locked.

Shelves were in disorder. Bookcases were pulled out. Mattresses were torn open. Even the leaves of the telephone book had been riffled to disclose a hiding place for money. Mr. Lawson's loss consisted of four suits, his shirts, and $20, the contents of nine old purses.

Mr. Lawson still doubted psychic revelations last night, but he was reluctant to advise his wife of the burglary.

JOBLESS; HANGS SELF.

Michael Modelski, 54 years old, unemployed and in financial straits, hanged himself yesterday in his home at 1211 Augusta boulevard.

$12,200,000 TAX FUNDS READY TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Jarecki Expected to Free Protested Sum Today.

County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash said last night his office was prepared to distribute today approximately $12,200,000 in 1932 tax collections. This amount represents part of $14,000,000 withheld by the treasurer's office pending disposition of the protests filed against the 1932 tax rates by a group of railroads, utilities and large property owners.

Money Long Tied Up.

The treasurer said he would act immediately on the stipulation expected to be filed this morning before County Judge Jarecki, which will allow the treasurer to disburse all except $1,800,000 of the contested tax collections.

This amount will amply cover the disputed collections, according to the stipuation agreed upon by attorneys representing the protesting taxpayers.

Mr. Nash explained that he had been unable to distribute any of the tax collections because the taxpayers when they paid their tax bills served notice they would protest various tax rates.

Expect Prompt Action.

It was necessary to hold the tax money, the treasurer said, until the protests were filed in court. These complaints will be filed today. Judge Jarecki is expected to rule at once as the court has announced that the ruling applied to the 1931 tax rates would govern the 1932 rate cases, except in special instances.

In the ruling on the 1931 cases, Judge Jarecki allowed only about $500,000, or approximately 50 per cent of the amounts protested.

Take 2 Minnesota Youths Home for Murder Trial

Palmer Swenson, 19 years old, and Robert Palmquist, 28 years old, Minnesota youths, were taken back to Fergus Falls from the detective bureau yesterday in custody of Sheriff John Henkes. They are to be tried for the murder of a friend and neighbor, Dr. John Schacht, Fergus Falls dentist, from whom they took $200. Englewood police, who had been notified to watch for them, captured the two as they stepped from a taxicab before the home of Palmquist's half sister, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, 6647 Wentworth avenue.

AIRPLANE AND POWDER MAKERS FACE QUIZ NEXT

DuPonts Among Group Called by Senate.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Airplane and powder makers who have sold their products the world over will be quizzed this week by senate munitions investigators.

Undeterred by the reaction of two South American countries to things already in the record, munitions committee members said they expected further sensational developments before the week is out.

First to face the senators will be officials of the American Armament corporation of New York for continued questioning about efforts to sell war supplies in South America. The probe in that direction had brought a formal diplomatic protest from Argentina, and action by Chile to ascertain full facts affecting their officials' conduct in munitions matters.

List of Witnesses Given.

The list of witnesses for the second week of the hearings: A. J. Miranda Jr., F. H. Sweetser and Maj. H. M. Brayton of American Armament, Monday morning; C. W. Webster and J. S. Allard of Curtiss-Wright Export corporation, Monday afternoon and Tuesday; Lammot and Felix du Pont of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours corporation of Wilmington, Dela., Wednesday and Thursday; F. H. Love of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation, New York, and Donald Y. Brown of the Pratt & Whitney Corp. of Hartford, Conn., Friday.

The public study into the huge Du Pont corporation's affairs is being made over objections of Irenee du Pont, head of the century old concern.

Du Pont's criticism of the committee some months ago irritated several members who sharply answered him. Chairman Nye [Rep., N. D.] announced he had refused the Du Pont demand that its trade secrets be withheld from the press.

"Time to Air Affairs."

"These munitions makers have been doing business secretly for so long that it is about time their affairs were made public," he contended. "The very fact protests have come from abroad shows the necessity for continuing. The inquiry will go on."

In questioning the aviation company witnesses, the committee expects to inquire into heavy sales of United States fighting airplanes throughout the world in recent years and to expose any international profit tieups that may exist in this phase of the industry.

DIES LISTENING TO RADIO.

7,000,000 COUNTED AT CITY BEACHES DURING SUMMER

Attendance of Chicagoans at municipal bathing beaches this summer showed a slight increase in comparison with other years, but in both 1933 and 1934 there were fewer bathers on the city beaches than in previous years. Park beaches are not included in the statistics.

Figures compiled by Walter Wright, city superintendent of parks, recreation and aviation, shows an attendance this year of 7,366,631 up to Labor day, an increase of 266,210 over last year's figure. In 1932 the attendance reached a total of 9,168,795. Comparative figures for 1933 and 1934 follow:

Beach—	1933.	1934.
Rogers Park	398,231	339,638
Rainbow	1,481,311	1,795,984
Rocky Ledge	326,426	417,239
Street ends	4,933,959	4,613,770
Totals	7,160,421	7,366,631

"There is no doubt but that the attendance of Chicagoans at the Fair caused the decline in patronage of the beaches both years," said Mr. Wright. "The continued hot weather this last summer aided in raising this year's attendance over that of 1933."

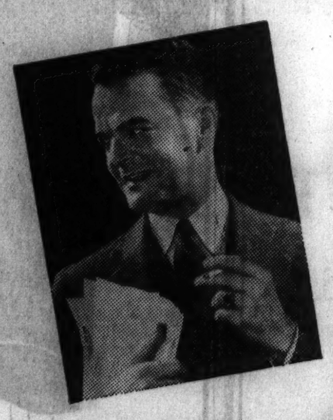
MISS HELEN HICKS rose to the supreme heights of golf to win the women's championship of the United States—defeating the 5-times U. S. champion and the champion of Great Britain on two successive days. A frequent smoker while on the fairways, Miss Hicks learned through smoking Camels how to guard against fatigue. What she has to say on this subject will be of interest to every smoker.

"Get a LIFT with a Camel!"

HELEN HICKS tells her way of regaining youthful energy!



OLYMPIC DIVER. "When I'm tired and feel the need of a 'lift,'" says Georgia Coleman, "I smoke a Camel and soon feel like my real self again. And I like their mildness and different flavor."

OFFICE MANAGER. John W. Grout says: "I smoke Camels steadily...all day long...and I never even have to think of jangled nerves."

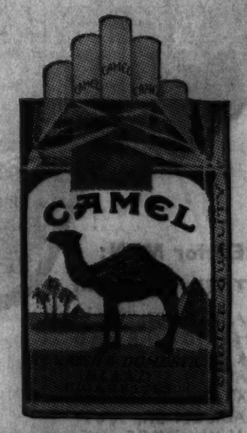
TENNIS STAR. Ellsworth Vines, Jr., tennis champion, says: "Camels have a refreshing way of bringing my energy up to a higher level. They seem to restore my 'pep' and take away that tired feeling."

THE strain of championship golf puts a tremendous tax upon your energy," says Miss Helen Hicks. "I often find that I'm absolutely exhausted at the finish. But I can always restore my energy quickly with a Camel. For you get a delightful 'lift' with a Camel. And it's a 'lift' that I enjoy often, as I find I can smoke Camels constantly without a sign of jangled nerves."

Every rôle in life has its strain. Every day has its many moments of uncertainty ...self-distrust..."low" spirits. So why not turn to Camels yourself...for more smoking enjoyment...to offset fatigue and irritability? Thousands of experienced smokers have found for themselves that Camels give a delightful "lift." And science, as you may have read, definitely confirms what they report.

Camels are distinctive in flavor—milder—made from costlier tobaccos. Smoke all you want—Camels never get on the nerves.

Camel's Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves!



ALL TOBACCO MEN KNOW:

"Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

REPUBLICANS RAP NEW DEAL RECORD AT COUNTY RALLY

Brooks Urges Return to U. S. Constitution.

Republicans held an old fashioned political rally yesterday at Riverview Park under the chairmanship of former Ald. Arthur F. Albert. A stirring address was made by C. Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for congressman at large, who made his principal theme the drift of government away from the constitution. County candidates opened fire on the "Kelly-Nash-Horner" Democratic organization.

The occasion was a picnic which had been postponed from Labor day. The attendance was large, and nearly all the county and judicial candidates were present.

Candidate Brooks began his address by urging all present to attend the Constitution day ceremonies at the World's Fair next Monday. There is existent today, he said, a swift moving tide that is breaking down governments.

"When we see nations turning over power to one egotistical man who says 'I am the law,' we may be thankful," said Brooks, "that we have a government of divided powers that has guaranteed us liberty and individual rights.

"We inherited this government. It was planned by men who had the opportunity no others ever had, to create a government of their own. They had shaken the despotic power of kings and queens so they deliberately divided this government into three jurisdictions—legislative, executive, and judicial.

"The present congress has turned over its power to the administration. To the President it gave the power to change tarifs and regulate commerce. To Secretary Wallace [of the department of agriculture] it gave power to levy taxes. To the treasury department it turned over power to regulate the currency.

Raps Johnson's Power.

"The first section of the constitution says that all power to legislate shall be vested in congress. It doesn't say such powers should be given Gen. Johnson o the professors.

"The Democrats have taken us back to the days of the town crier. No shopkeeper can tell what the laws of the day are until he has read the morning papers and learned what Gen. Johnson said last night. In former days business men waited until congress adjourned and they knew what laws they would have for the next two years and they could plan and expand accordingly.

"That is not so today. No one knows what the law will be tomorrow. There may be a new code, a new processing tax, the value of money might change, there might be a new tarif. Business men can't plan for two years in the future. They can plan only from day to day.

Cites Frozen Credit Situation.

"There was a time when business men and farmers could borrow from the banks. Not so today. The banks are filled with idle money while idle men parade the streets outside. The banker is acquainted with the farmer and the business man but he can't loan them money because the farmer's land is not liquid and the business man can't put up 100 per cent collateral. The only way they can borrow is from some stranger the government sends here.

"But, at that, most of the government loans go to the solid south. The government told the cotton planters to cease planting, that the government would pay them not to grow cotton. And the people of Illinois pay millions of dollars per year to the government to be turned over to the former cotton planter of the solid south."

Pledges Constitutional Support.

The way to a return to sanity in government, the speaker said, is in observance of the constitution by all public officials. The Republican candidates, he said, present that pledge as the strongest plank in their platform.

Chairman Albert paid his respects to the Brain Trust by saying the people are tired of the professors who could not operate a peanut stand successfully.

James P. Ringley, Republican nominee for sherif, made a plea for Americanism to stop the rising tide of communism. Ringley is a former state commander of the American Legion. The scrapping of our constitution or deviation from its principles can only result in consternation and chaos, he warned.

Former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen was present and told the gathering he would work for the success of the entire Republican ticket.

REPUBLICANS HOLD OLD FASHIONED PICNIC RALLY

ROOSEVELT HAS QUIET DAY WITH HIS NEIGHBORS

Johnson Is Coming for Parley Today.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt spent a quiet day at home entertaining some of his Dutchess county neighbors today, resting and perhaps contemplating the difficulties that will confront him tomorrow, with the problem of reorganizing the NRA on the summer White House agenda.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, who is more unpopular with the extreme leftists of the New Deal than he is with industry, is expected to confer with the President tomorrow. Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, radical coördinator of the alphabetical agencies and vice president of the New Deal, in the words of certain Republican senators, have been at each other's throats and the conferences of the next few days will determine the extent to which Johnson shall be stripped of his power.

Plans Administrative Changes.

President Roosevelt made it plain in a press conference last Friday that there will be certain temporary administrative changes in the NRA, pending the submission of legislation for a permanent reorganization to the next congress. Thus it may be assumed that Richberg will prevail, and the NRA will be administered by a board, with Johnson in a subordinate capacity.

Besides the temporary administrative changes in the NRA, there is the question of the legislation to perpetuate, at least for one year, the features of the so-called recovery act that appeal to the President. Mr. Roosevelt told reporters that the interpretation of section 7-A needed certain clarifications in a legislative form, but that the principle of collective bargaining would be preserved.

Price Fixing to Be Settled.

This is the most important phase of the recovery act from the standpoint of permanent legislation, but there are also the questions of price fixing about which the President expressed doubt; price posting, the reporting of surpluses on hand and child labor, which the President said would continue to be banned.

The President also was occupied today with the necessity of floating a bond issue to meet treasury maturities of a billion 750 million dollars. The terms of the new issue are to be announced tomorrow and the financial world is awaiting them as a test of what the New Deal has done to the nation's credit.

HUNT MEAT MARKET ROBBERS.

Police were on the lookout yesterday for two men who held up Chester Oksintowics, 5447 Gunnison street, owner of a butcher shop at 3519 North Cicero avenue, Saturday night and escaped with $422.

SEIZE EX-CONVICT IN NIGHT ROBBERY OF LOOP STORE

A Negro with a reformatory record for burglary was seized by Stanton avenue police yesterday and identified as the prowler who terrorized three watchmen of the Boston Store and escaped with $500 worth of jewelry early Saturday.

The suspect is Martin Minnis, 24 years old, 4143 South Michigan avenue. He was captured in a poolroom at 35th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Seeing the police enter, Minnis attempted to hide a package afterward found to contain 31 rings taken from the show cases of the store.

According to police, Minnis was released in April after serving a term in the Pontiac reformatory.

RENEWS RISK OF HEART ATTACK.

Heart trouble was believed to have caused the death of Joseph Lisa, 56 years old, 4211 North Harding avenue, an insurance broker, who fell to the floor in the bathroom of his home yesterday as he was shaving, and was found dead by his wife.

ARMED CATHOLIC STORM TROOPERS MASS IN AUSTRIA

Clash with Fascist Guards Feared in Carinthia.

[Copyright, 1934: By the Associated Press.]

KLAGENFURT, Carinthia, Austria, Sept. 9.—An urgent order for mobilization of all Catholic storm troopers in this province on war-time basis was issued by the provincial command today.

Commanders were instructed to "report to headquarters how many rifles and machine guns are available in each detachment."

The order was taken to indicate increasing friction between the storm troops, numbering 100,000 men, and the Fascist heimwehr or home guard, numering 125,000.

Technically united in Austria's militia though they are, the storm troops, built up by the slain Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss and the present Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, and the heimwehr, composed of soldiers and officers who served in the world war and headed by Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, persist in old rivalry.

Today's mobilization order appeared in the semi-official Kaerntner Tageblatt which was immediately confiscated by the heimwehr governor of Carinthia.

It directs that "all groups of Catholic storm troops must be formed into militant organizations of at least 40 men each. These detachments must report regularly by telephone and telegraph to the provincial commander, giving the strength, location, name of the commander, his telephone number, etc.

Be Alert, Leaders Warned.

"The commander of every detachment must be available day and night at whatever hour he may be needed. It is therefore of the highest importance that telephone operators should be on duty day and night.

"The commander must also report to headquarters how many rifles and machine guns are available in each detachment."

The order for mobilization places all Catholic storm troopers under the command of the federal army, and directs members of the organization to maintain the closest and friendliest relations with the national army. It also forbids members leaving their posts to go to Vienna to participate in military reviews.

Recently heimwehr forces attacked the Klagenfurt police headquarters, leading the provincial commander of the storm troops to summon all units for immediate duty to block any further attempts by the heimwehr to gain control of the local government.

Clash Is Reported.

MARIBOR, Jugo-Slavia, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Information smuggled over the Austrian border to this frontier town tonight indicated Austrian Catholic storm troopers and heimwehr men are at loggerheads. A heimwehr attack on police headquarters at Klagenfurt, Carinthia, was reported to have been repulsed by the storm troops and regular army men.

30,000 CATHOLICS FACE TEAR GAS OF MEXICAN COPS

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Several scores of persons were injured today as police engaged a demonstration unofficially estimated to number 30,000 Catholics who marched to the national palace protesting the government's alleged anti-church policies. Tear gas guns and clubs were used by police in several unsuccessful efforts to prevent the demonstrators from reaching Zocolo, the city's central plaza, but each time the marchers changed their routes and broke through.

Reaching their objective, they stood in silence for a half hour or more, facing the presidential palace, which was ringed with soldiers. Several youths attempted to speak, but were prevented by women, who formed a majority of the number. Afterward they departed in small groups.

The demonstration was announced as a "mute protest" against the recent answer of the government to Catholics who demanded the reopening of "sufficient churches to allow them to practice their religion."

NAPLES TO GIVE CROWN PRINCESS BRILLIANT CRADLE

Italians Pray Baby Will Be a Boy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 9.—The municipality of Naples will present an ornate cradle tomorrow to Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Maria José. The princess expects to become the mother of the future king of Italy some time during the next two weeks. Elaborate ceremonies will accompany tomorrow's presentation.

PRINCESS MARIE JOSE.
[Underwood & Underwood.]

The cradle was placed on exhibition today in the hall of the royal palace. Thousands of Neapolitans were allowed to visit the palace and see it. The princess has received hundreds of talismans and amulets from peasant women throughout southern Italy, where she is especially popular. These talismans and amulets were accompanied by letters and prayers expressing the hope that the baby will be a boy.

To Raise Money for Charity.

The birth of a royal child also will be made the occasion for raising large sums of money for charitable purposes throughout Italy. Individuals and organizations are being spurred on by Fascist authorities to subscribe funds for hospitals, schools, and other institutions as an act of homage to the house of Savoy.

Prince Humbert and the princess today left the Villa Roseberry on Posillipo hill overlooking Naples, Vesuvius, and the bay. They took up their residence in the royal palace, where the child will be born.

The Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium has been in Naples for several days. Queen Elena of Italy will arrive there tomorrow from her summer home at San Rossore.

Royalty to Visit Naples.

The birth of the princess' child will be the occasion for the assemblage of all Italian royalty in Naples. King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena of Italy and members of the royal family will attend the christening. The rite will be performed by Cardinal Ascalesci of Naples.

Naples will also enjoy three or four days of colorful festivities and rejoicing on the day the royal baby is born. There will be street dancing and fireworks.

Crown Prince Humbert and the Belgian princess were married Jan. 8, 1913.

Wife of U. S. Ambassador Acts for Queen at Baptism

LONDON, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert W. Bingham acted as pinch hitter for Queen Mary today. The American ambassador's wife was godmother by proxy for England's queen at the baptism of the son and heir of Marquis Hamilton. The ambassador, Lord and Lady Craigavon, and other notables were present for the ceremony.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm By Bob Becker

Reversing the Seasons

September 9, 1934.

THERE is one field of about twenty acres here on the farm that makes you think of spring instead of fall. The corn, the buckwheat, the cowpeas, and other crops tell you plainly that this is the season of harvest; that summer has given way to autumn with its compensations of filled silos, fruit in the orchard, yellow ears of corn, and other mature crops. The one field as green as cultivated farmland of May or June is twenty acres of Grimm alfalfa.

Farm Manager Clarence Thurow treated this field with phosphate a few weeks ago and then decided to plant it with alfalfa. His labor has been rewarded, because the young plants are more than an inch high. He remarked yesterday that, all going well, he ought to get at least two good crops from this field during 1935.

Sunflowers have grown well this summer, but they are being attacked on all sides now by sparrows and goldfinches. You can see anywhere from two to twenty birds ganging on the tall, heavy heads of the sunflower plants which are loaded with seeds.

One of the compensations of country life is to watch the coming and going of the seasons. You have only to hike through the fields, meadows, and woods to appreciate this pleasure. Even an untrained observer can note the different kinds of signs or "banners" that each season carries. For example, when I left the farm in August to go into Ontario, the cattail marsh was green. Today the tall plants are brown because autumn has taken charge and at this season replaces green with many shades of brown. Just outside of the marsh Clarence and I saw a brilliant mass of purple from some growing plants. We stopped to admire the color contrasts between them and the brown marsh. This flowering weed which has developed its beautiful flowers since I last saw the marsh in August is the vervain, a more or less common plant in Chicagoland, usually growing in pastures. In this case it seemed as though the vervain had deliberately chosen the open grounds around the marsh in order to place its purple flowers against a background of russet brown.

All the boys on the farm tell me about seeing pheasants while working in various fields. Apparently the birds placed on the farm this spring have done quite well.

They and the quail have some pretty fine food and cover corners as a result of plantings made for them. The hemp planted around the edges of fields especially for birds now is five feet high in some patches. On the north side of the river one cover plot where Clarence sowed sorghum has developed splendidly. It should make excellent cover for the game birds and also provide food for them.

ROOSEVELT URGES CHRISTIAN SPIRIT IN U. S., DODD SAYS

BREMEN, Germany, Sept. 9.—(AP)—In an address commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Bremen Y. M. C. A., United States Ambassador William E. Dodd today pleaded for "the intense application of fundamental principles" to end international financial and military difficulties.

For contemporary maladjustments the ambassador blamed, among other factors, the growth of cities, failure of governments to appreciate pre-war industrial progress, insistence on the repayment of war debts, tarif and quota restrictions on trade, speculation, reparations, machine production and hypernationalism.

The envoy described President Roosevelt's task as "the most comprehensive and perhaps the most unpopular of all" contemporary leaders—that of seeking "the abandonment of old sectional hatreds and calling upon men everywhere to show the Christian spirit."

That spirit, the speaker said, if "applied all over the United States, would mean more to the world than any party action or national egotism."

SCIENCE DISPLAY MARKS EYE AND EAR CONVENTION

The American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, composed of eye, ear, nose, and throat doctors throughout the country, opened yesterday its seven day convention at the Sherman hotel. President John M. Wheeler's reception at 4 o'clock was the highlight of the day's program. Prof. Jan Lauber of Warsaw, internationally known specialist, was guest of honor.

Today Prof. Lauber is to discuss the use of red-free light in examination of the retina of the eye.

In the hotel's exhibition hall physician's may inspect the latest scientific devices for diagnosing and correcting ailments of the eye, ear, nose, and throat.

Among these is the "Ocular Image Comparator." Many persons, oculists say, suffer from an affliction—usually resulting from a cataract operation—which causes an object to appear larger in one eye than in the other. Difficulty arises when the brain attempts to fuse the objects.

SIX DROWN IN MISSISSIPPI AS ROWBOAT SINKS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Six persons were drowned in the Mississippi river ten miles north of St. Charles, Mo., late today when their boat sank under the weight of its occupants.

The dead, all of St. Louis, were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kirn and their son, Charles; Mrs. Homer Coe, her son, Vincent, and a niece, La Verne, 13.

Homer Coe, husband of one of the drowned women, grabbed his 3 year old daughter, Virginia, as the boat went under and swam safely to shore. The boat sank near the War Eagle landing, on the Missouri side of the river.

QUINTS' GREAT-GREAT-AUNT HAS 80TH BIRTHDAY

A great-greataunt of the Dionne quintuplets, who herself brought 15 Dionnes into the world in rugged Ontario within the space of 16 years, yesterday ate her first birthday cake as she celebrated her 80th birthday.

MRS. SARAH L. DIONNE.

She is Mrs. Sarah Laroux Dionne, 4823 Dorchester avenue, who looks and acts far younger than an octogenarian. She has been sick only twice in her life. Her excellent health she lays to a lifetime of hard work, first in the fields of her French-Canadian father, and second as the mother of 15 children, four of whom were with her yesterday.

She voiced only one regret as she sat with her children, and that was that she has only two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She came fro ma large family, and her husband, Pierre, had 19 brothers and one sister.

ASK RESTAURANT MEN IN NEW YORK TO RAISE PRICES

New York, Sept. 9. — [Special.] — Leading restaurant owners throughout the city have been asked to join a movement for a general rise in prices on the bill of fare, according to an announcement today.

Paul Henkel, president of the Society of Restaurateurs, Inc., issued a call for a meeting of the executive committee of the society to discuss plans. Restaurant owners were asked to submit plans "that will be fair to all, including the public."

Mr. Henkel said that a general rise of prices was necessary to "save the industry" because of increases in prices for food products ranging from 18 to 72 per cent. Full enforcement of the restaurant code, he said, would compel every restaurant owner complying with the code to raise prices.

Gas cost Twice as much as Coke! . . . NOW WE'RE GOING BACK TO ECONOMICAL FUEL! . . . says Mr. Emil Marousek

Estimated Cost by Gas Co. $130.00
Actual Cost (for gas) . . . $159.55

"After being a user of coke for heating for a number of years, then trying gas heat last season and now going back to coke this year, I give below some interesting facts:

"I was given an estimate of $130 (for gas heat) and was told that I would not exceed this amount. My gas bills, for heating only, amounted to $159.55 (adding burner rental of $21.00 made total gas heating bill $180.55). I also weather-stripped all doors and put on storm windows to try and keep the cost of gas heating down.

"With gas for fuel you have no reserve of heating ability to call on. If the temperature drops suddenly you cannot open your draft up as you can with coal or coke.

"Using coke as a fuel there is no dust or dirt . . . I have two rooms in the basement and find there was no difference in the cleanliness of either gas or coke.

"I usually use 8 tons of coke . . . the coke costing $81.39 including delivery and tax.

"After summing up all the advantages of coal or coke over gas as a fuel:

COST: less than half
SAFETY: no danger of gas explosion
HEAT: any amount when you want it
DEPENDABILITY: you are not depending on . . . delicate parts or burner backfiring

"I still remain a satisfied user of coke."

Read Mr. Marousek's frank letter. Then make it a point to call up and order a bin full of solid fuel for the season ahead—you'll save money, too! Buy your coal or coke from any member of this Association and you will be sure of honest weight, careful grading and uniform quality.

Buy New Furniture for the Home with Coal Heat SAVINGS!

You'll be able to use extra money this winter . . . for new furniture for the home, new rugs, a new radio . . . even new winter clothes! Perhaps you'll need it for insurance. If you burn coal or coke . . . if you stick to a safe, dependable and economical heat . . . you can count on just that much more money saved! Mr. Marousek saved half his heating cost by going back to coke. You can save a like amount, perhaps, by ignoring all offers to "try" gas heat. STORM TROOPERS HAVE COME TO STAY—HITLER

Asserts Private Army Will Not Be Dissolved.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 9.—Adolf Hitler today told his Storm Troopers at the annual Nazi party convention that he had no intention of demobilizing his huge political army.

"You have come to stay," Der Führer cried amid shouts of "Heil Hitler!"

"Only lunatics or deliberate liars can think that I or any one else ever dreamed of dissolving what we ourselves built up," he continued after the wild cheering died down.

One hundred and fifteen thousand brown shirted Storm Troopers and black shirted Schutz Staffel men, personally chosen by Hitler to act as a bodyguard, were assembled in the Luitpold arena to hear the dictator's message.

"Blood Purge" Recalled.

At Hitler's side stood Victor Lutze, who became the Storm Troopers' chief of staf after the June 30 "blood purge" in which Capt. Ernst Roehm and other high Nazis were killed or committed suicide after being accused of treason.

The leader's voice rose as he recalled the revolt within the Nazi ranks.

"Several months ago a black shadow fell over our movement," he cried. "Many opponents thought the time had come for our movement to collapse. I have summoned you to Nuremberg for three reasons:

"First, to demonstrate that the Storm Troops had just as little to do with this shadow as any other instrument of the party; second, to show everybody that my relation to you, my comrades, is exactly the same as it has been in the fourteen years of our struggle; and third, to serve notice on our enemies that the Storm Troops and the Schutz Staffel now as ever stand forth as the guarantors of the National Socialist revolution.

Sounds Warning to Enemies.

"There never has been a rift in the structure of our movement. It stands firm as granite. Any one who sins against my Storm Troops doesn't strike at the movement but at and against himself.

"Let no one dare offer resistance to this, the mightiest organization in history!"

Before Hitler's address, twelve field batteries of the Reichswehr boomed out 201 shots as 201 new banners of the Storm Troops were consecrated at the memorial to the war dead.

The chancellor strode to the memorial, accompanied by Lutze and Heinrich Himmler, chief of staf of the Schutz Staffel and the German secret police.

Touch Sacred Relic.

He then chose the flags, each representing one regiment, to touch Nazism's sacred relic—the bloodstained flag of Hitler's 1923 ill-fated "beer cellar putsch" at Munich.

Thereafter, the Storm Troopers marched three miles to Adolf Hitler plat. where they passed in review before the dictator in a scorching sun. The brown and black shirted men filed past their idol for four and a half hours.

'WAR IS NOT A VIRTUE IN ITSELF,' PETAIN REMINDS GERMANY

MEAUX, France, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Marshal Petain, French minister of war, today asked Germany to remember that "war is not a virtue in itself."

The war minister spoke at the twin celebration of two French anniversaries, those of the battle of the Marne and the birth of Lafayette. After tracing the history of the battle of the Marne, one of the world war's decisive conflicts, Marshal Petain said:

"It may be thought that her dead, who sleep here at the side of so many of ours, may remind Germany that war is not a virtue in itself and that humanity, after so many hardships suffered in war, aspires only to heal its wounds, to labor in order to find its well being and to create a lasting peace."

Fifteen Americans helping France to celebrate the anniversaries heard Deputy François de Tessan assert that Franco-American friendship saved the world in the dark days of the war. That friendship, he asserted, will endure.

"If we have sharp controversies or even quarrels," he continued, "they will be only temporary. At great moments we will find ourselves spontaneously side by side for right and justice."

HITLERITES BAR WIDOW FROM 'MARTYR'S' GRAVE

Nazi Suicide Receives Stately Burial.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 9.—Newspapers today published accusations of Julius Streicher, leader of the Franconian Nazis, against the widow of his chauffeur, Hans Kleinlein. Kleinlein committed suicide a few days ago because he felt responsible for injuries suffered by passengers in an automobile he was driving at the time of an accident.

Streicher and high Nazi officials of Nuremberg gave Kleinlein a magnificent funeral, the details of which illustrate the new Germany.

Streicher pointed to the "glorious picture" of this working man's character.

Asks "Was He Insured?"

"At the grave of a brave man, who committed suicide because he felt that duty and honor compelled him to, I stand as the accuser of his widow," he declared. "I call upon Comrade Holz to testify that her reply to the announcement of Kleinlein's death was as follows: 'Fate finally got him—was he insured?'

"I have forbidden this woman to come to this grave."

The eyes of Nurembergers hardened when they were asked about this woman. They said she and her husband had been separated and referred to her as an outcast.

Terrier Digs at Grave.

While Streicher was speaking a small white terrier, which early in the week entertained visitors to the Nazi party convention with its capers in the Nazi leader's auto, stood at the side of the grave. Streicher pointed "to the sorrow" of the animal. The dog later tried to dig its way down to the coffin.

Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller of the Protestant church had offered to officiate at the chauffeur's funeral if a priest declined to do so. The bishop thus showed, according to Streicher, that "true Christianity and true German qualities are synonymous."

The local Storm Troop chief placed his dagger on the Kleinlein's coffin while the mayor of Nuremberg covered it with a laurel wreath, "the symbol for a man who lived and died for honor."

2 MISSING GIRLS MYSTERIOUSLY BACK AT HOMES

Two young girls who were reported mysteriously missing from their south side home Friday evening, possibly in an abduction by four young men, returned home last night and told incoherent stories of wandering in a dazed condition through the loop. Both were questioned by police, who recommended that they be interrogated further by juvenile authorities.

Mary Evelyn Williams, 16 years old, elder of the girls, here with her parents from Grand Island, Neb., to visit the World's Fair, first telephoned her father, Frederick Williams, that she was safe, but that her companion, Norma Walker, 13 years old, 6052 Kenwood avenue, had jumped out of an automobile to escape the four youths. Later Norma telephoned her father, Hughes Walker, and when told she would not be chastised returned home half an hour later with Mary. The Williams family have been living in the same building at 6054 Kenwood avenue.

At their homes both girls said they wandered in the loop Friday night and obtained jobs washing dishes Saturday. They denied being with the four youths. Weak from hunger and exhaustion, Mary fainted twice. She was to be examined by a family physician. The girls disappeared while walking from the Williams apartment to that of a neighbor in the same building. The four youths had been waiting outside in a car.

7,000 COPS KEEP FASCISTS, REDS APART IN LONDON

Rival Meetings Encircled in Hyde Park.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Seven thousand police and the second battalion of Cameron Highlanders, now doing guard duty at Buckingham palace, Scotland Yard's force with its own autogiro, and a score of ambulances were mobilized this afternoon to keep the peace in Hyde Park between Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascists, who had ballyhooed today's meeting for six months and anti-Fascists. The latter were mostly communists.

SIR OSWALD MOSLEY.

Official police figures issued tonight reveal that eighteen arrests, all told, were effected in today's demonstration. Fourteen of those arrested will appear in court tomorrow to face charges of disorderly conduct, two will face charges of assaulting police, and two will face charges of obstructing police.

Police Encircle Speakers.

About 1,200 black shirted Fascists, at a liberal estimate, attended and there were a smaller number of communists. Police drew two rings about 20 yards apart and let the orators orate to their hearts' content, while the autogiro soared overhead and high police chiefs watched from towers erected in various parts of the park.

Outside the police cordons, which were so carefully drawn that no one outside could hear anything of the speeches, a crowd of perhaps 8,000 or 9,000 booed the Fascists and shouted slogans of contempt, the favorite of which was:

"Who put the pepper in the cat's milk?"

None seemed to know to what this referred, but it was supposed to anger the Fascists.

Answer to Salute.

When the Fascists inside the police circle gave the Mosley Fascist salute the crowd gave the Italian curse—two fingers extended.

It was a nice afternoon and a good outing for some thousands of Londoners, but the police and troops were annoyed at losing a day off and the Camerons wanted a whack at the cockneys who kept them on duty when they ought to have been walking with nursemaids in the park.

WOMAN KILLED BY TOADSTOOLS; SEVEN STRICKEN

One woman was dead and seven other persons were in a serious condition last night as a result of eating poison mushrooms. The mushrooms were picked near Charleston, Ill., Saturday, according to the police.

Mrs. Valera Madura, 43 years old, 2340 North Kimball avenue, was the dead victim. The others were her husband John, 46 years old; a son, William, 17; a daughter, Irene, 19; Joseph Mariotti, 40 years old, 2342 North Kimball avenue; Josephine, 14, his daughter; Mrs. Lucille Giannetti, 22 years old, a married daughter; Charles Dini, 45 years old, 2946 Lyndale avenue, a neighbor, and the latter's wife, Anna, 39.

Dini, Madura and Mrs. Giannetti's husband, Peter, gathered the mushrooms which were eaten for dinner Saturday night. Mrs. Madura died yesterday.

ROBLES DEMANDS RULE BY SPANISH AGRARIAN PARTY

MADRID, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Political disorders which left seven dead in Madrid yesterday and scores wounded after an abortive general strike subsided today, but new agitation arose in Covadonga, where Jose Maria Gil Robles, leader of the popular Agrarian party, addressed a religious gathering.

Robles announced complete lack of conformity with the present government and declared the popular Agrarians demanded ousting of "these minority party governments" in favor of the Agrarians.

Extremist opposition to the meeting took the form of railway sabotage on the Oviedo-Covadonga line, a bridge being destroyed with dynamite.

BOLIVIANS CHEER NEWS OF VICTORY OVER PARAGUAY

Told Foe's Army Is in 'Desperate' Plight.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Sirens and factory whistles screeched triumphantly here tonight and throngs danced in the streets for joy as the war ministry reported Paraguay's offensive in the Carandayty sector of the Chaco had been smashingly repulsed.

A flanking operation initiated by the Bolivians early today was entirely successful, dispatches from the front to the war ministry said, and the situation of the Paraguayan forces, virtually surrounded, was described as "truly desperate."

Retiring in confusion before the Bolivian counter attack, the Paraguayans left 450 dead on the field, the ministry claimed.

Capture 105 Guns.

Dispatches from Gen. Enrique Penranda, commanding Bolivia's defenders in the Carandayty sector, announced the capture of 105 field field pieces of .75 caliber, numerous other guns, 25 trucks, and quantities of ammunition.

An official at general staf headquarters here predicted the Carandayty defeat "may mean the complete wiping out of great masses" of the enemy. Gen. Penranda's reports said numbers of the enemy were beginning to surrender as the Bolivian lines pressed closer in their flanking operations.

Dispatches reported that "the enemy is making desperate efforts to break through our converging lines, falling back each time before the pressure of our forces."

Claims Two Forts Taken.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The war ministry today announced the outbreak of heavy fighting in the Bahia Negra and Carandayty sectors. A short battle in the former sector resulted in the capture of two Bolivian strongholds in the disputed Chaco Boreal, forts Capitan Pascoe and Santa Elena, the war ministry claimed.

A later communique from the defense ministry reported the Bolivians had succeeded in severing the chief route of communications between advance Paraguayan detachments and the bulk of Paraguayan troops in the Carandayty sector. It added, however, that the Paraguayans had opened a path through the bush and retreated in orderly fashion, losing no men or arms.

DISARM PARLEY DELAYED; AWAIT CALM IN EUROPE

Session May Be Called Early in November.

GENEVA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament concerence, and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, agreed this evening that convocation of the conference would be futile until early November.

Their decision, reached on the eve of the opening of the fifteenth assembly of the league of nations, definitly removed disarmament from the program of important international political questions to be considered by the assembly.

Reasons for Decision.

Barthou and Henderson decided, it was reported, that consideration of disarmament should await evolution of the situation in Germany, the fate of the proposed eastern Europe security pact and the outcome of Barthou's conversations with Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy next month.

Meanwhile league officials pointed out that should the eastern pact, urged by France, be concluded it would involve Germany's return to the league.

[The eastern pact, called the "eastern Locarno," contemplates the binding together of Russia, Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic countries in an agreement to aid any signatory attacked. Great Britain seconded France's sponsorship of the pact, with the stipulation that it should operate within the framework of the league.]

Back China's Reelection.

While reports from Russian sources that Japan contemplates strengthening Manchoukuo's navy stirred comment among delegates, especially in view of Russia's expected admission to the league at this session, many nations were reported backing China's candidacy for reëlection to the league council.

A report that Great Britain was leading the campaign to reëlect China was denied by British spokesmen, but some league officials said both Britain and France feel that dropping China from the council might encourage Japan to pursue her pan-Asiatic policy.

Advocates of the Chinese cause were influenced, it was said, by their belief that the balance in the far east would be better preserved thereby.

Sterling Graham

Dear Mr. Graham:

I am sure you will be interested to know of the tremendous response to our full-page Grunow Radio advertisement last Sunday. On the following Monday and Tuesday over 19,000 people visited our dealers' stores for a copy of the Ripley Booklet.

This remarkable response was not limited to Cleveland only, but was experienced by dealers in our territory within a radius of 50 miles. It again proves to our complete satisfaction the correctness of our decision two years ago, to use the Plain Dealer exclusively for our Grunow advertising.

In this short period of time the sale of Grunow Refrigerators and Grunow Radios in our territory has reached proportions that places them among the leaders in the industry. We feel confident that this remarkable sales record is due, in no small measure, to the complete coverage which we obtain in Cleveland and throughout our territory through the exclusive use of the Plain Dealer.

We have just recently completed a survey among our dealers in the 20 counties in Northern Ohio in which we distribute Grunow products. We found that over 92% list the Plain Dealer as their first choice among the Cleveland metropolitan papers, as the medium they favor for advertising the merchandise which they carry.

Our advertising appropriation for Grunow Radio and Refrigeration this fall has been greatly enlarged and you may be sure that the Plain Dealer will continue to be our first choice medium in Cleveland. We have come to consider your paper an important partner in our business.

Very truly yours,
THE ARNOLD WHOLESALE CORPORATION

70,000 PUPILS START TO COUNTY SCHOOLS TODAY

Terms to Open in Some Suburbs.

Nearly 70,000 Cook county pupils will enter classes today as more than half the rural schools of the county and a number of the larger suburban schools begin the fall term. The Chicago public schools, expecting an enrollment of 480,000 open Sept. 17, and most of the colleges in the Chicago area will open or begin registration next week.

A total of 35,000 students is expected at 225 rural schools in Cook county today, said Otto F. Aken, superintendent of schools. Nearly 100 of the rural schools opened last Monday, with an enrollment of 11,361. There are no comparative figures available, but Mr. Aken estimated that the number represented a slight increase over 1933.

Evanston Expects 9,000.

An enrollment of 9,000 is expected today in Evanston, in districts 75 and 76 and in the Evanston Township High school. The anticipated registration is only a slight increase over last year.

Winnetka classes will begin today with an expected enrollment of 1,850. Niles Center will open a new three year high school, enrolling 350, and expects 1,200 pupils in the elementary schools. Wilmette, Kenilworth, Lake Forest, Highland Park, and Glencoe schools are scheduled to open today, while the Waukegan opening has been delayed to Sept. 17.

At the New Trier Township High school 2,300 students are expected today.

South Suburb Terms Start.

Homewood, Chicago Heights, and Harvey are south suburbs opening elementary schools today. A total enrollment of 3,000 is expected.

Schools of the western suburbs which did not open last Monday begin work today with 18,000 students expected. At La Grange classes will be under way in both the elementary schools and the Lyons Township High school; the Riverside-Brookfield High school will open with 900 students, an increase of 75 over last year, and the elementary schools expect 1,300 pupils.

In Berwyn, district 98, classes begin today with an anticipated enrollment of 2,500. Western Springs will open two schools, and Bellwood four schools. More than 11,000 students are expected in the elementary and high schools at Oak Park. The Forest Park schools open Sept. 12.

Registration in the Chicago public school evening classes will be under way Thursday and Friday of this week, with 37,000 students expected. Classes will begin Sept. 17, the date of the general Chicago school opening.

Most of the colleges in the Chicago area will begin registration for classes this week.

U. of C. Expects Increase.

Northwestern university has started advance registration on both the Evanston and McKinlock campuses. The total enrollment is expected to be above 10,000, almost equally divided between the two campuses. Classes downtown at McKinlock will begin Sept. 19, and Evanston classes start Sept. 24.

Chicago university reports that advance registration, made at the close of the last term, indicates a slight increase over the 7,891 registered for the autumn quarter of last year. The freshman department will probably show an increase of 25 over the 795 registered on Sept. 25 of last year, according to 1934 advance figures. Freshman week is from Sept. 26 to Oct. 1. Downtown classes open Oct. 1 and classes on the Midway begin Oct. 2.

The Catholic board of education says that 15,000 students are enrolling in the eight Catholic colleges which began registration last week. De Paul opens downtown classes in law today, with downtown liberal arts and commerce classes beginning Sept. 19.

At Loyola university all classes except those in dentistry and medicine begin Sept. 17. The medical school opens Sept. 24, and the dental school Oct. 2.

Armour Institute of Technology will begin classes on Sept. 24, and the Central Y. M. C. college, expecting in excess of 3,200 students, will open on the same date.

PLANE FORCED DOWN ON LAKE TOWED TO GRAND HAVEN PORT

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 9.—(AP)—A Pennsylvania air lines amphibian plane, forced down on Lake Michigan while en route from Muskegon to Milwaukee, was towed into this port tonight by a coast guard speedboat after a search of several hours.

The plane with Pilot Sam Carson, of Detroit; Co-pilot Arthur Leighton, of Milwaukee, and division manager, M. J. Davis, of Grand Rapids, aboard, made a forced landing on the lake twenty-five miles from the Michigan shore this afternoon when a connecting rod broke.

The coast guard crew found the plane drifting on the calm waters of the lake shortly before 4 p. m. after coast guard cutters had been sent out from Milwaukee and Grand Haven to join in the search. Aside from the broken connecting rod the plane was undamaged.

Davis was brought to Grand Haven in a speedboat piloted by Hunter S. Robbins, while Carson and Leighton remained aboard and were towed in by the coast guard speedboat, arriving here at 6:30 p. m.

FIXING OF COAL PRICE HERE LACKS WASHINGTON O. K.

Code Scale Unapproved as City's Costs Soar.

The fixing of coal prices under a so-called "emergency" order in the Chicago district has not been approved by Washington NRA authorities, although dealers are being cited for not complying with the schedules set up by the divisional code authority, it was learned yesterday. Consumers are paying an estimated $8,000,000 more per year because of the higher prices.

Frank A. Druley, a member of the divisional authority, said yesterday that he had been informed that the "cost determinations," which are the bases of the prevailing prices, are within the law because they were adopted before the requirment of Washington approval became effective.

On July 2, when the fixed higher prices were clamped on coal consumers here, they were approved by the retail coal administrator at Chicago, and that was all that was necessary, Mr. Druley declared.

Text of Code Regulation.

The code now reads as follows:

"All such determinations of reasonable cost are subject to the approval or disapproval of the administration member of each divisional code authority and also subject to the right of the administrator or national code authority upon review to approve, disapprove, or modify."

However, in the two months since the local fixed price scale was approved and while the prices have been under review at the capitol, Chicagoans have been paying the higher coal bills. The matter is now in the hands of the research and planning division of the NRA, which at some future time will make recommendations to Frank A. Hecht, deputy NRA administrator for division 4.

Briefs attacking the entire price setup as inequitable and illogical have been filed with the review bureau by the Chicago Real Estate board and the Building Managers' association of Chicago.

Predicts End of Price Fixing.

In a recent issue of Coal-Heat, a trade publication, appeared an article entitled "The Rise and Fall of Price Fixing." Some excerpts follow:

"Price fixing, it seems, is on the way out, though the NRA is straddling the issue at the moment. . . . The NRA has discovered what every one familiar with economics predicted—that price fixing would inevitably produce artificial price levels. And that these levels—usually artificially high—would eventually become insupportable.

"High prices stimulate production but retard consumption, and it is just a matter of time before unwieldy surpluses pile up in producers' hands This is exactly what has happened.

The policy of forcing low cost producers to 'hold the umbrella' over inefficient producers was unsound from the start."

HELD IN 10 CENT STORE RAID.

8 SOUTHERNERS CONVICTED OF SLAYING NEGRO

Manchester, Tenn., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Eight southerners, described both as mobsters and good citizens, faced penitentiary sentences totaling 25 years today for killing Dick Wilkerson, a Negro.

As the climax of a trial lasting five days and ending in a bitterly fought battle on race issues, the eight were convicted of voluntary manslaughter late last night by a jury composed of 11 farmers and one former policeman.

For the three oldest of the eight defendants—John Gibson, 54; Lewis Garner, 40, and Willard Keele, 28—the jury recommended two to five year sentences.

For the five younger defendants, Edward Keele, 19; Leonard Warren, 19; Wilburn Sherrill, 20; John B. Henley, 24, and Elijah Keele, 27, the jury recommended minimum two year sentences. The three Keele men are brothers.

REPORT CARDS CALLED MAKERS OF FAILURES

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 9.—(AP)—The report card—emblem of school room success or failure for years—"makes a failure of one and too often a conceited snob of the other," said Homer W. Anderson, superintendent of Omaha public schools, in an address before a meeting of city teachers.

Anderson made his comment in an address dealing out criticism of what he said was the American school system of pitting the slow learning child against the rapid learning child for high place on the report card.

"The system does not tell whether the child is working up to capacity, except that it is taken for granted if he is an 'A' student," he said. "If he is a 'D' student he is subject to abuse even though he may be a slow learner competing with rapid learners. He may be doing his best. He may finally get discouraged and develop the habit of failure."

Anderson said that a committee of Omaha teachers is attempting to work out a system of rating pupils on an improvement basis.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."
—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

THE CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS.

The most significant aspect of the rapidly spreading movement for the defense of American institutions is the prominent part beginning to be taken in it by former leaders in the Democratic party. The formation of the Liberty League, although inspired by motives higher than party, engaged the effort of more conspicuous Democrats than Republicans, and hardly a day goes by that some leader of Democracy does not make his protest against the betrayal of Democratic responsibilities and of American principles now clearly exposed in the administration's program.

One of the latest and most weighty of these protests is that of Mr. Bainbridge Colby, who though a supporter of Theodore Roosevelt in the campaign of 1912 and later in the management of the National Progressive party, became a Wilsonian Democrat and later secretary of state in the Wilson administration. If Democrats of the traditional stripe consider Mr. Colby tainted with his earlier Republican affiliation, it was at any rate progressive Republicanism of the most militant variety and did not stand in his way to the confidence of Woodrow Wilson or to his appointment by that thoroughgoing Democrat to the most important post in his administration. In fact, Mr. Colby represents progressivism as it was cherished both by Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, and his protest is all the more impressive for emphasizing the common ground of American principles and purposes from which the progressivism of Theodore Roosevelt and that of Woodrow Wilson, in spite of the differences dividing them in less fundamental questions, confronted the problems of their day and ours.

It is this common ground that Franklin Roosevelt and the men he has chosen to advise him have conspicuously left. No one who understood the faith in American principles which both Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson held can doubt that Mr. Colby, the friend and ally of both, speaks for them when he denounces the purpose of the present régime at Washington and warns the American people against it.

That purpose, no one has any excuse for doubting, is as Mr. Colby asserts, "the overturn of our institutions, including the constitution." "Submission, not freedom," if the Franklin Roosevelt revolution succeeds, "is to be the future badge of the United States. Imposed regimentation is to take the place of American ingenuity and enterprise. Eurocratic control, even of our going out and coming in, is to weigh down the land once known as the land of the free. Collective farming, state operation of factories and gradually the entire soviet concept of a regimented life are to be set up on our soil."

Of course, as Mr. Colby declares, "such a program on the part of the administration spells the end of the United States of America."

Mr. Colby is not content merely to protest. He appeals to loyalists to make their protests effective in the coming elections to congress, to "save our beloved country from the enemies which are within the gates." For congress, as he reminds us, under the constitution is democracy's arena. "The elected representatives of the people are the spokesmen of democracy in America, not the servile and herded majority, incapable of functioning as representatives, which in the last congress allowed the executive to originate its measures and then passed them without reading or scrutiny," but a true congress, a body of representatives of the people, faithful to their function as independent legislators, to their sworn obligation to think and act for themselves as representatives, not of the executive branch of government but of the people and the nation.

It is such a congress that must be chosen in November if the disintegration of the American order is to be arrested before it is too late. The issue transcends party and should unite all citizens, regardless of previous party affiliation, for the defeat of the socialist program. The question before the voters is not whether a candidate is on the Democratic ballot or the Republican ballot or on an independent ballot. The question is whether he can be depended upon to defend the constitutional liberties of the American freeman.

MEDITATION ON A MONTH WITH "R."

Sept. 1 has come and gone with scarcely a mention of the oyster. This is unfortunate, because the oyster happens to be one subject which deserves far more attention than it has received. With the return of Chablis and Vouvray scholarly interest in the oyster can be expected to increase.

We should like to know, for one thing, why Chicago gets better oysters, by and large, than are to be had in any other city in the interior of the country. Washington and New Orleans serve better oysters than can be obtained here at any price, but Chicago oysters are better than the oysters served in Richmond, Va., which is only a few hours from the oyster beds. Does Chicago get better oysters than St. Louis and Des Moines because the Chicago palate is more highly educated, or for some less praiseworthy reason, such as superior transportation facilities?

(With shame and regret we must record the suspicion that the latter explanation is the true one. It is still the custom in this community to serve oysters with cocktail sauce, unless its omission is requested. This substance must have been devised in the first instance by a man who liked chile con carne but not oysters. Persons who dip their oysters in cocktail sauce would put Worcestershire sauce on a canteloupe.)

We should like to know, also, where the Chicago oyster comes from. The trade names on the menus suggest the Boston region, but the flavor cries Chesapeake bay. Apparently the names refer to size rather than place of origin.

The cult of the oyster could be promoted in this city by a little energetic rivalry between the great oyster producing areas. We are about equally distant from Boston, New York, Baltimore, and New Orleans, give or take a couple of hundred miles. Restaurants and clubs should specialize. We should know, then, where to go for the big, bland gulf oysters and where to go for Chesapeake bay sea-tags. And so on. Some greatly daring merchant prince might venture to import the copper flavored oyster of France. With sufficient encouragement Prunier might even be induced to open a Chicago branch. Why not? A hundred years ago the automobile and radio were unknown and undreamed of.

THE WIDENING NET.

Our coördinator of transportation, Mr. Eastman, has silenced the discussion provoked by Prof. Moley as to whether the administration has a definite transportation program. He has announced that early in October he will report the results of a study he has been making of government subsidies that is to be the basis of a broad regulation program for the air lines, waterways, steamship lines, and highway transportation.

Mr. Eastman had introduced in the last congress bills providing for regulation of water and highway transportation, and if his influence prevails these newer, or renewed, forms of transport are doomed to future dictation by a burocracy. This follows the widely held theory that the railways cannot fight their unregulated competitors "with their hands tied behind their backs" by regulation, to use a well worn phrase. But if we carry the metaphor a bit further we might observe that if the trucking, airplane, and waterway companies also have their hands tied, "there ain't gonna be no fight." We therefore again take the opportunity to remind Mr. Eastman that the lack of an opponent with whom to fight is the underlying cause of the long existing state of coma from which the railways recently have shown unmistakable signs of recovery. Why put them back to sleep and the rest of the transpor. agencies with them?

It is certain that the dead hand of government regulation will grievously hinder the rapidly developing efficiency of our baby transportation enterprises.

BOMBS THAT FIZZLED.

The "bombs" [oratorical variety] which Mayor La Guardia of New York announced he would let off in his speech on Labor day at the Fair were duly discharged, we suppose, on that occasion, but without the devastation intended. The bombardment consisted of assertions already in familiar use by the New Dealers, such as that "old supply and demand" has departed and that the rugged individualist is now only a theme for the poet and sculptor. For the rest, Mr. La Guardia's pronouncements were too vague to alarm any but the most timid of our citizenry and must have been a sore disappointment to the Brain Trusters at work on our peaceful revolution. So fiery a captain of revolt ought to have given forth heat if he could not manage light. Obviously, the redoubtable mayor of an alien city who would like to abolish the American institutions he is always disparaging, who would like to dominate us and have us kissing the hand of European communist bosses, has thought it expedient to roar softly, as when he declared that "American labor has problems which must be solved with American employers and American capital," and that "a strike is the last means of solution, not the first," justifiable indeed, "only after every resource of discussion and negotiation has been tried and has failed."

Perhaps Mr. La Guardia's elevation to the mayoralty of New York has chilled his enthusiasm for the methods which his inflammatory rhetoric in congress and on the stump formerly encouraged, for responsible citizenship has not yet been stripped of power even in that community and will expect him to deal with reckless violence. Perhaps also he and his advisers are not oblivious to the rise of loyal Americanism against the forces that would destroy its heritage. So Mr. La Guardia's bombs were filled only with poison gas and he has fallen back upon the New Deal tactics of gradual undermining.

Editorial of the Day

THE LEGION PROGRAM.

[Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.]

Because of the large part which members of the American Legion play in the affairs of the state and nation the program adopted by a Legion convention always is a matter of great interest.

The program which came out of the Gary convention seems to us on the whole very sound and well considered. It gives evidence of having been drafted by mature and serious-minded men. It is a product which may well inspire confidence in the leadership of members of the Legion.

During the earlier years of the Legion mere fun played a larger part in the annual meeting than it does today. Wherever Legionnaires get together there always will be a good time, but the sessions now reflect the fact that more and more the people are choosing ex-service men for public office.

Men who have fought for and defended their country in time of war naturally care tremendously about that country, and it is but natural that from the ranks of these wartime defenders should come many of the public servants of peace time.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HOW THE ISLAND GOT ITS NAME.

Nantucket always intrigues the summer visitor as to where it got its name. Most people rashly jump to the conclusion that it is an Indian word, but I got the straight of the matter from an old fisherman who was mending his nets down alongside the harbor of Nantucket. He was a very reticent man, as all old fishermen are at first. But he mellowed when I went over to a shop and came back with three or four hooters of old Jamaica rum and a plug of what he called "eatin' terbacker."

"It hain't no Injun name a' tall," said the ancient fisherman, in whose weatherbeaten features the word "truth" was deeply engraved. "I allus jess pipe down when some of these smart alickey summer boarders say 'tis. If they want to think that, let 'em. What do I keer? But you're different, I kin see that. You want to know the facts, an' when a feller really wants to know the honest trewth about anything I'm a goin' ter help him out if I kin. And about this here name of Nantucket; I can tell you how it got called that. Away long in the early days, along about sixteen hundred an' somethin', there was a feller named Mayhow er Mayhew, er somethin' like that, came down here from Massachusetts an' bought this here island offen the Indians fer a silk hat an' a string of beads. That was about all the place was worth at that time, 'cause whale fishin' hadn't been started then an' summer boarders hadn't started comin'.

"Wall, this feller Mayhow er Mayhew, or whatever it wuz, bought a lot of islands all along the coast, and he bought a lot of farms in Connecticut and Rhode Island and Massachusetts. He was a mighty rich man when he came ter die an' it was a good thing, too, because he had fourteen childurn. Well, when he was a tossin' around on his deathbed he called in all the childurn and told each of 'em what he was a leavin' 'em after he was dead an' gone. He gave some o' 'em farm land an' some o' 'em city lots in Bosting an' some of 'em whole islands.

"An' then when he'd given away everything he once owned he laid back an' got ready to go to Davy Jones' locker. An' suddenly a little voice piped up an' said: 'But, pa, you didn't leave anything fer poor little me.' 'Gosh almitey!' gasped the old man, a sitting right straight up in bed, 'dumbded ef I didn't fergit my littlest gal, Nan! Wall, I'll be switched; an' now there hain't nothin' left; I give everything I had away.'

"The little girl she begin ter cry an' the old man thought hard an' he said: 'Wait er minit, darter! There's an old sandy island away out thar thirty miles in the ocean that I forgot all erbout. I bought it from the Injuns fer a silk hat an' a string o' beads an' I've allus thought them Injuns cheated me somewhat scanderious like. But it's all there is left. Will you take it, Nan?' And Nan tuck et."

"And," concluded the old fisherman, "that's been tha name of the gol durned old islan' ever since; Nantucket."

Ah, truth dwells not alone at the bottom of the well nor in ancient tomes, nor the animadversions of philosophers, but more often in the simple hearts of honest fisherfolk.

Inexorably faithful, firmly just.

Nor rendered hot and palpitant by love—
Encased in gold, imprisoned, and yet free—
How tranquil and content my days would be!

You are not harried by regret, nor vexed
By dread surmise of what may happen next.
You do not falter at the day's demands,
And time grows never heavy on your hands;
For time is yours—you keep it, doling out
To him who idly carries you about
The minutes, hours, days, years, not lavishly,
Yet not begrudgingly. Nor any plea
Of his, or any mortal creature living,
Can ever hasten or delay your giving.

In early youth when you became my own
(On the installment plan) I was quite prone
To grow impatient at the laggard way
You measured out the hours. Now I would stay
Those stern, swift hands that toss away too fast
And ruthlessly into the eternal past
Each precious meager moment. Ah, how strange
The changes wrought by Time that does not change!

"DIES IN LEAP Over Niagara Falls So Wife Can Have New Mink Skin Coat."—Headline. Maybe so, but it sounds more like propaganda put out by certain people to head off certain other people whose minds are fixed on an expensive article of wearing apparel for the winter. Anyhow, it would be a good idea to paste this headline up in some place where Friend Wife would be sure to see it. And get a route map to Niagara falls and leave it lying carelessly on the table.

PNEUMONIA.

THE disease which we call pneumonia is a killer. In its several manifestations it attacks young and old alike, but is more fatal to young children and to older people. It is not a single disease but an entire group of diseases. For a clear understanding of pneumonia we may say that it is characterized by inflammation of the lung that results in filling the air sacs with serum and cells from the blood. Air can neither enter nor leave this flooded area and the function of breathing practically ceases in the infected portion of the lung.

Within recent years new interest has been aroused in this important disease through the recognition of the fact that pneumonia may be caused by several different types of organisms. The one most commonly associated with the disease—namely, the pneumococcus—is now known to exist in a number of different strains.

The lung is particularly prone to infection. In spite of the filtering power of the nasal passages air that is not sterile reaches the lungs. It is far easier to control the spread of disease producing organisms that are discharged from the intestinal tract than it is to control bacteria expelled from the nose and mouth. Whenever a person coughs or sneezes the air for a distance of several feet is charged with tiny droplets laden with bacteria that may carry infection to others.

Although bacteria that may cause pneumonia are generally present in the mouth and nasal passages of most people, yet one of the chief causes of pneumonia—namely, the pneumococcus—is rarely present in the mouths of healthy persons. Nevertheless, persons who come into contact with cases of pneumonia caused by the pneumococcus may readily acquire and harbor this organism. This is why nurses and persons caring for pneumonia patients usually wear gowns and masks, and all dishes, utensils, etc., used by the patient are thoroughly sterilized.

Efforts to prepare an antitoxin that will neutralize the poison of the pneumococcus have met with some success in a variety of the organism known as type I. The use of vaccines has been attended with uncertain results. Oxygen gas administered during the course of the disease has greatly relieved the fatigue incident to the struggle for breath, has lessened the load upon the heart, and is considered by many competent observers to be a life saving procedure. Good nursing and quiet and pleasant surroundings are positive factors in recovery.

The prevention of pneumonia lies largely within our own grasp. We must recognize the fact that all persons suffering from an acute infection of the upper air passages—the nasal mucous membranes, the sinuses, the throat, and the pharynx—are potential cases of pneumonia. We must recall that persons with infections such as the common cold, showing any elevation of temperature, should be put to bed promptly, where the body may be warm and comfortable and where prompt elimination of toxins may be instituted through copious water drinking and the use of alkalis. Countless cases of pneumonia will be avoided by this simple hygienic régime.

COFFEE AND TEA.

J. P. K. writes: Two well known medical writers have given what I think are contradictory opinions about the effects of drinking coffee and tea.

One calls coffee an "insidious decoction," saying that coffee is at the root of many physical and mental woes; that three or four cups given to people not coffee drinkers, at breakfast, seriously interfered with the sleep of these people for from 14 to 24 hours later; that the effect of coffee on the nervous system continues for a comparatively long time. Marked tremors, weakness, and heart symptoms are also reported in persons not accustomed to coffee.

The other writer says that, while either coffee or tea used in great excess may be harmful, there is no evidence that either, used in moderation, has had any influence on the length of life of the average person.

REPLY.

These writers are really not at variance. Both counsel moderation in the use of tea and coffee.

These beverages contain caffeine, a stimulating drug. Some people become accustomed to its use; others do not. It stands to reason that the excessive use of caffeine may be harmful. There are persons who take 15 to 20 cups a day and wonder why they are nervous and jittery.

DIATHERMY.

X. Y. Z. writes: What is diathermy treatment used for?

REPLY.

The word diathermy means heating through. By means of an electrical apparatus heat may be passed into the interior of the body. Diathermy is used whenever penetrating heat is needed. It is valuable in many cases of arthritis, certain types of rheumatism, and disease of bones and joints.

EXCELLENT.

C. S. M. writes: I read your recent article on impetigo. I have been cured of this affliction and I thought your readers might be interested in hearing how this was accomplished.

For five weeks I had been applying ammoniated mercury ointment, 2½ per cent, and washing every two hours without any noticeable improvement. I spent two days in the country, the sun was very strong, and I had the affected ear exposed to it. Three days later the ear was completely cured.

REPLY.

Excellent treatment. Another victory for heliotherapy.

NO EFFECT.

S. C. writes: Would the child of a father who had gonorrhea five years ago and was pronounced cured be affected either mentally or physically?

REPLY.

No.

MORTGAGE RENEWAL.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I possess a first mortgage and note on a small property in Milwaukee which matures on the first of next month. The owner has written me to the effect that he cannot raise the funds to meet the mortgage and asked my consent for a government loan. This I refused [1] on the ground that the government issues bonds which necessitate waiting several years for their maturity 2. The owner now advises me that he can secure a loan from a loan company, but must have the abstract for examination purposes. Considering that the abstract must be sent out of the city, what course would you advise me to take to safeguard its return to me after examination? D. S.

1. The ground of your objection does not seem tenable to us since the bonds are saleable at par. If you do not consider the bonds as good as cash, you can sell them and get the cash.

2. Ask for the name of the loan company, and if it is reliable merely take a receipt indicating that the abstract is received merely for examination and is to be returned to you within a stated time. Deal directly with the company.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LOANS.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a person borrows money on a ring, with interest, and the party refuses to accept interest, saying she wants it all back, [2] can this party sell the ring? M. W.

1. You give us no facts as to how long the loan was to stand.

2. Presumably it was an express or implied term of the agreement that the creditor could sell if the debtor did not pay the principal within the period agreed upon. In absence of agreement, it is the common rule that loans are payable on demand.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ILLEGAL RESIDENCE.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—If an Australian lady marries an American citizen while she is visiting in the United States, is she allowed to remain in the United States or compelled to return to Australia for a certain length of time and permitted then to return to the United States on the Australian quota? R. T. C.

Marriage to an American citizen by an alien temporarily in the United States in the status of a visitor does not confer United States citizenship upon such alien, nor does it, of itself, permit the alien visitor to remain in the United States beyond the duration of her temporary admission. In order to acquire legal residence in the United States it will be necessary for the alien visitor to leave this country [not necessarily for the country of her nativity] and to secure from an American consul in a foreign country the documents necessary for permanent residence, thereafter applying for permanent admission at a proper port of entry in the United States. In the case referred to above the American citizen husband will be in a position to apply for nonquota status in behalf of his wife, permitting her to reënter this country without the requirement that she be charged to the quota for Australia. Petition forms may be obtained from this office.

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA.—Switzerland, that peaceful country always considered safely situated in its mountains, which was neutral in the world war and is without territorial ambitions, fears war to the extent that defense against air attack is being organized on a national scale.

Legislation for defense of the cantons, which was drawn up by the federal government on June 4, is being rushed to completion. At the same time private organizations throughout the country are going into the problem of defense from air attacks as it affects each individual district. Measures to be taken against incendiary and other bombs as well as gas attacks are being studied, and the federal government will vote a special defense appropriation.

According to the present plan each canton will organize its own defense on lines prescribed by the central government. A special personnel to take charge will be engaged and given instruction, and the necessary materials will be purchased and kept on hand in each district. Roughly, the organization against air attack will comprise the setting up of district headquarters; perfection of alarm services; training of groups to handle night lighting and camouflage; organization and utilization of shelters; health and instruction services.

As soon as the federal statutes have been enacted execution of the measures provided for can be achieved in a short time as a result of preliminary work already accomplished. The whole problem is labeled "urgent" by the government as a result of "the general political situation, which is such that the necessary measures cannot be deferred."

THE TREND IN MOVIES.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 6.—At a time when the evils of motion pictures loom large with the critic it behooves us to note a few redeeming trends. I refer particularly to a revival of the classics and of historical matter as sources of movie drama. Three outstanding pictures now wield their influence on the varied crowds that pour incessantly into theaters of our large cities, "The House of Rothschild," "The Affairs of Cellini," and "The Count of Monte Cristo."

What is the import of this revival for our theater loving populace? First, interpretation of the play necessitates on the part of many a pre-reading or at least a questioning. Following the drama, assimilation of the material and comparisons with sources demand further reading. As a consequence emotional balance is maintained. Arliss' inimitable portrayal of Nathan Rothschild stirs the emotions, makes vivid the social and political events of the era, yet the element of actuality impels us to reflect, to re-read the story, to evaluate. In so doing the emotional effect of the play, the imaginative stirrings, are subdued.

Deprived of this restraining power in the lurid plays to which we are constantly subjected, the emotions seek their outlet in the imagination [if mental vacuity has not intervened]. Hence the danger that lurks in the weaker shows.

Let more of the classical or historical sources be utilized. Consider the potentialities of Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" if adventure is sought, of "Silas Marner," or even of Jane Austen's novels if character portrayal is the aim.

We need not despair of the movies.

REPUBLICAN DAY AT THE FAIR.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The Republicans are claiming credit for the large attendance expected at the Fair on Monday, Sept. 17, Constitution day. I for one [a foregone conclusion that I speak for three-fifths of the attendance] am going to attend that day, not because the Republicans and their lost cause are going to help make that day a success, but because of the fact that $6 worth of amusement can be purchased for $1, permitting me to see various shows and attractions that I otherwise would not be able to afford. E. W. BRAND.

COURTESY.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—An 84 year old man who missed his train for North Dakota at the Grand Central railroad terminal in Chicago was taken to the detective bureau and jailed, because "he was found wandering around the station."

Now, what kind of courtesy is that? If the facts are as reported, the railroad terminal and the police are guilty of false arrest, to say nothing of their absolute lack of chivalry.

BITTER IRONY.

Green Lake, Wis., Sept. 6.—Since the Cub management has again shown their fear of the Sox in a city series, would it be asking too much for them to challenge the Crown Point police force? Possibly they could feel sure of winning a series of that kind. W. H. NELSON.

MARRIAGE IN HOLLYWOOD.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—In your article captioned "Marriage in Hollywood" you try to show the people that marriage in Hollywood is just an expression. It is very evident that you believe everything that you read in the papers. Being in the business you should know better.

Why in heaven's name don't you show the finer side of reality? Is there any crime in letting your readers know how happily married are Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, Ruth Roland and Ben Bard, Stu Erwin and June Collyer, Charles Farrel and Virginia Valli, Irving Thalberg and Norma Shearer, George Barnes and Joan Blondell, Norman Foster and Claudette Colbert, Richard Arlen and Jobyna Ralston, Joe H. Brown and Sally Eilers, Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler, Bing Crosby and Dixie Lee, the Gables, Barrymores, Del Rios, Montgomerys, Berrys, Howards, Cantors, Bows, and scores of others too numerous to mention? You and I know that there are far more multi-marriages in many professions other than the picture industry and that the only reason that comment is given is because it is the one business that is always before the public's mind.

I think that with all the talk going on at the present time about cleaning up the movies and with all the effort and money that is being spent in that direction, you can at least help in a real manner or else fill your columns up with other reading material. In other words, do something to help and nothing to hinder. N. GAYLE GITTERMAN.

IDEA FOR A CARTOON.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—May I suggest an idea for a cartoon which I think very appropriate at the present time? I would have a picture of Bedloe's Island, showing the Statue of Liberty lying on the ground and a group of brain trusters with picks and sledge hammers smashing up the metal and loading it into a truck drawn by the Democratic donkey, driven by Morgenthau, with a picture of the mint in the distance, and picture of a dollar with this inscription, "E pluribus communism, one U. S. dollar, actually worth about seventeen cents." Then I would have a sign pointing to the mint for the truck to carry the broken up statue to be melted into these phoney dollars.

In place of the time honored statue I would have Hugh Johnson standing on the foundation branded NRA, and holding Wallace on his shoulders, and in his right hand holding a meek, skinny looking individual by the throat, head downward, in the place of the torch.

I would have a picture of the President, sitting on a chair with his customary smile, admiring the new statue, and on his back this inscription, "Bartholdi's successor."

This may sound radical to you, but I am sure it would be a very correct caricature of the present conditions.

POLICE ARREST 77 FOR TRAFIC NOISE; ONLY 15 PAY FINE

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's motorcycle police, in an announced campaign to reduce the nerve racking unnecessary noises of motor transportation, made 77 arrests in July and August for violations of the requiring mufflers law. This was less than two arrests per policeman.

From the 77 arrests, there have been only 15 convictions, less than one conviction for every five arrests. Twenty-seven of the defendants were discharged while 25 others did not even appear in court in response to the summonses. The judges ordered warrants or capiases to issue for the arrest of these 25. None has as yet been issued. The other 10 cases were continued.

"We didn't expect any wholesale volume of arrests," Capt. David Flynn head of the police traffic division, said yesterday in announcing the statistics. "but we had hoped to get convictions. The motorcycle men were not ordered to concentrate upon open mufflers but to arrest in all such violations noted in the performance of their other duties.

Plans Persistent Enforcement.

"Continuous and persistent enforcement is our aim. Those who ignored the summonses will be arrested and required to post cash bail to guarantee their appearance in court. The muffler violators will not be able to tear up their tickets and forget them as many parking violators have done in the past."

According to the police records, the 25 who failed to respond when their cases were called in court and for whom warants or capiases were ordered are as follows:

PLAN 2 DAY FETE ON COMPLETING INDIANAPOLIS AV.

South side residents will hold a celebration Wednesday night on the completion of the extension of Indianapolis avenue from Ewing avenue to 100th street at Avenue L. The improvement will facilitate the movement of traffic entering the city from the southeast.

Mayor Kelly has been invited to attend the ribbon cutting ceremony at 9 o'clock. This will be followed by a community celebration at Calumet park. On Thursday night there will be a street dance.

According to Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], $160,000 was saved out of the $400,000 bond sales for the project by having the city deal directly with property owners on the route and by not hiring experts. The saving will go into the city's bond and interest fund.

A triangle plot formed at the corner of 100th street and Ewing avenue has been named Hummel square to honor the late Ernst Hummel, former city treasurer, a life long resident of the community who pushed the project.

UNEARTH WALL IN ALASKA BUILT BY ASIATIC RACE

CORDOVA, Alaska, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Archeological discoveries expected to prove of great value in tracing the migration of peoples from Asia to the Aleutian Islands in Alaska and thence to continental North America were reported here today by Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, curator of the United States National museum. Dr. Hrdlicka and his five student assistants unearthed a wall 350 feet long and 16 feet high in their excavations on Uyak bay.

At the site of the wall were found many implements and remains of ancient Alaskan cultures which Dr. Hrdlicka said substantiated the contention that two prehistoric races had lived there at different ages.

RENEWED QUAKES FELL 25 HOUSES IN ALGERIAN TOWN

ALGIERS, Algeria, Sept. 9.—(AP)—A new series of earthquake shocks struck the Chelif river valley today, destroying 25 houses at Carnot and causing heavy damage at Les Attafs and Wattignies.

No injuries were reported, but reports said the shocks continued all day in some sections of the valley, causing severe fright among the populace. Inhabitants of most of the villages were living in tents supplied by military authorities. Five persons were killed Friday and 20 injured when a violent quake hit the town of Orleansville.

The Chelif valley is 200 miles long and 150 miles across. All the towns reported damaged today suffered also in Friday's quake. The region is one of the most densely colonized in Algeria, many French people living there as well as natives. Carnot has 5,000 inhabitants.

REV. HOUGHTON NEW MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE HEAD

The Rev. Will H. Houghton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church in New York, will be the new president of the Moody Bible Institute. He announced last night that he would take the post on Nov. 1, succeeding the Rev. James M. Gray, who becomes president emeritus. The resignation of Dr. Gray as president was made known a short time ago. Dr. Houghton formerly was pastor of the Tabernacle in Atlanta, Ga. He went to New York in 1930 to succeed Dr. John Roach Straton as pastor of Calvary Baptist.

The Rev. Dr. Oscar Thomas Olson, pastor of the Wilmette Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday announced his resignation from that charge to assume pastorship of the Epworth-Euclid Methodist church, Cleveland, O. He will assume his new pastorate in October. He came to Wilmette two years ago to succeed the Rev. Dr. Horace Greeley Smith, now president of Garrett Biblical institute.

TWO EVANSTON HOMES LOOTED BY BURGLARS

Second story thieves robbed the homes of two Evanston residents last night. In each case they entered upper windows by placing a ladder against the house while their occupants were away.

One of the homes entered was that of Robbins L. Pierce, 2711 Colfax street, a vice president and resident manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company. A watch valued at $150 and a diamond ring worth $400 were taken.

They next entered the home of Jacob Grest, 2915 Colfax street, assistant to the receiver of the Chicago Joint Stock Land bank, where they obtained a wedding ring, a string of pearls, and several old coins, all valued at $500.

THIS FALL there are more people seeking desirable apartments than there are desirable apartments waiting for tenants. Due to a lack of new construction, obsolescence, less doubling up among families, and other factors, desirable apartments are increasingly hard to find. Begin your apartment search at once. And don't depend on a few casual tours of inspection. More than at any time in years you will need to shop the want ads to save yourself wasted time and energy. • Every day the Chicago Tribune want ad section contains a comprehensive list of desirable apartments, all sizes, in all neighborhoods, and in all price ranges. Make a daily habit of reading and checking the offers in the Apartments To Rent columns. Then at your convenience investigate those which appeal to you. If you use this system, you will avoid looking at a lot of apartments which could not possibly interest you. And not only will you save time but you will have the best assurance of getting what you want.

Thornes to Give Gay Halloween Party for Debs

Plan Supper Dance Oct. 27 at Lake Forest Home.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INVITATIONS for one of the gayest of the many gay October parties for the debutantes and their beaux will be going into the mail within two or three weeks. According to their annual custom, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne of Lake Forest are having a Halloween party and they are giving it this year on Oct. 27 for several of the season's buds.

The party will be a supper dance at White Oaks, the Thornes' handsome home on North Sheridan road in Lake Forest, and there will be plenty of novelties, no doubt, in keeping with the festive spirit of the occasion.

An out-of-town guest at the party will be Miss Ursula Cull, who arrives Thursday from England with Miss Laura Thorne, one of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne's several attractive daughters. Miss Thorne has been abroad all summer visiting Miss Cull at her home in England part of the time. One of the highlights of her summer was attendance at the Dublin horse show. Miss Cull will be here for some time, perhaps through the Christmas holidays.

Similar Parties Given for Daughters.

When Miss Thorne made her debut two years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Thorne gave a Halloween party for her in addition to her real presentation party. And back when Mrs. George Gillespie, Mrs. George Corson Ellis, and Mrs. Harmon Dunlap Smith, the Thornes' older daughters, were unmarried, their Halloween parties were among the most delightful occasions of the fall and winter.

Mrs. Gillespie, the former Katharine Thorne, and Mr. Gillespie have just bought and equipped a ranch thirty miles from Phoenix, Ariz., in the desert foothills overlooking the Salt river valley and Castle Hot Springs. They have named it El Rancho Grande.

Luncheon Party for 60 at Onwentsia Today.

About 60 young women will lunch today at the Onwentsia club as the guests of Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr. and Miss Frances Whedon, who are giving the luncheon for their debutante daughter and niece, respectively, Miss Nancy Doering and Miss Frances Jeffery. Miss Whedon has decided to present her niece at a tea Saturday afternoon, Nov. 17, at the Casino. Miss Whedon and Miss Jeffery will be in Chicago then, for they are moving into town from Lake Forest on Oct. 1 and have taken a house at 1421 North State parkway.

Miss Doering will bow to society at a tea the afternoon of Nov. 16 at her parents' home in Astor street, and the following night Mr. and Mrs. Doering will give a dinner dance for her at the Blackstone. Mrs. George Peck Earling, the former Edna Doering, made her debut similarly two years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Earling came down from Milwaukee yesterday to spend the night with Miss Whedon in Lake Forest. Miss Doering, who is staying with her cousin and aunt for a fortnight, and Miss Jeffery invited a few of Mrs. Earling's old friends in to supper. Mr. Earling returns to Milwaukee this morning, but Mrs. Earling will remain here for the luncheon today and perhaps for another night or two.

Mrs. Dwight P. Green to Give Party for Buds.

Thursday at the Indian Hill club Mrs. Dwight P. Green of Winnetka is giving a luncheon for two of the season's debutantes, Miss Peggy Sargent and Miss Eleanor Kirkland.

There will be no welcoming tea given by a member of the Service club for the debutantes to be admitted to membership this fall, for, according to Mrs. John Dern, the club's president, there are so many debuts and festivities scheduled for the buds who are returning to college that there was no date left open for the club when all of the debutantes would be free. The only welcome the debutantes will get now is at the tryouts for the revue which will be held at 10 o'clock Sept. 20 at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

The notification cards mailed out for the tryouts will serve a double purpose, for they will be used as identification passes into the Athletic club during the rehersals.

The old members of the club will meet Friday morning in the apartment of Mrs. Frank S. Sims at 1430 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Sue Lyon Douglas to Mark 101st Birthday.

Good wishes galore will be received today by Mrs. Sue Lyon Douglas, for this is the beloved lady's 101st birthday. Although no formal party has been planned, there will be dozens of friends dropping in at the house of her son, Scott M. Douglas, at 20 Indian Hill road in Winnetka, where she makes her home, to say "Many happy returns of the day."

Among good friends, Mrs. Douglas is spoken of affectionately as "Aunt Sue." It was on Sept. 10, 1833, in Steuben county, New York, that she was born and it was in 1861 that she visited Chicago for the first time. She attended the Fair of '93 and she has also seen A Century of Progress. Patchwork quilts and reading are now Mrs. Douglas' favorite pastimes.

News from Lake Geneva tells of a large reception given there yesterday afternoon by Dr. and Mrs. William P. Finney for Capt. and Mrs. Rumsey Campbell, who are en route from the east coast, where Capt. Campbell is stationed, to Pasadena to visit his mother, Mrs. Treat Campbell, and aunt, Miss Lida Rumsey. Nearly the entire lake colony was invited to the Knoll to meet Capt. Campbell and his bride.

Miss Theodora Finney, the Finneys' daughter, has just returned to Lake Geneva from England, where she spent the summer with her aunt and

Anniversary Tea

Congratulations were flying all over the place yesterday afternoon at the tea and reception Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty gave in their Highland Park home to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary, for not only were they receiving the best wishes of all of their friends, but their elder son, John Townsend Beatty, and his fiancée, Miss Jane Confer of Minneapolis, also were being felicitated on their engagement.

When Mr. and Mrs. Beatty and their sons, John and Ross Jr., and daughter, Miss Veronese Beatty, sent out cards to the anniversary celebration, none of their friends guessed they would meet a member-to-be of the Beatty family, for Miss Confer's and Mr. Beatty's engagement was not announced until ten days ago.

They will be married Sept. 25 at the home of the bride's parents, the Samuel C. Confers, in Minneapolis.

Fight for Space at Orchestras' Last Concerts

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Seldom have symphony seasons closed under more pressure of excitement than the World's Fair engagements of the Detroit Symphony orchestra at the Ford Symphony gardens last night and the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Swift Bridge of Service the night before. It was a period of speechmaking, tributes floral and otherwise, applause that made most winter demonstrations seem like the hush of silence, and crowds that fought for every inch of space and held it all as soon as gained.

It may be that the Detroit Symphony orchestra had a paradoxically smaller audience last night than on some of the other evenings, but there is an explanation for the paradox. It is that the audience came and stayed, declining to move on so that other visitors might come in. Certainly seats were filled to the last row, with a capacity mass of standers around the enclosure. And when Victor Kolar conducted his distinguished group of players through Brahms' Second Symphony, the scene was not far from being another paradox, the spectacle of Brahms being entered in the list of popular composers.

It was in a good many respects a duplicate of what had happened when Frederick Stock ended the season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra the preceding night. Here was more frantic enthusiasm, extended this time to performances of Bach and Tschaikowsky instead of Brahms.

It has been a great summer for orchestral music, and one bids farewell to it with regret. These two brilliant orchestras have done more than their bit in making Chicago a pleasant place to spend the heated season, and it must be admitted that A Century of Progress will not be the same now that they have gone. One thing has been proved beyond argument. It is that a summer time symphony orchestra of high ability and wide repertoire is sure of a crowded and enthusiastic audience. This was doubly proved at A Century of Progress, because there were two orchestras.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

ONE visitor to Chicago has returned home with a great idea of his host's omnipotence, acquired through an incident that happened at the Tavern club the other afternoon. The guest was looking at the view from the club windows to the south, and, seeing the Buckingham fountain, he commented to his host that he certainly would like to see the fountain playing.

"You would?" said his host. "That's easy enough. We'll fix it right up."

He went to the telephone and the guest could hear his part of the conversation:

". . . Turn on the Buckingham fountain right away, please. Yes, it's Mr. Blank speaking. Thank you."

He led the visitor back to the window, and in a few moments the fountain was hurling streams of water into the sunlight. What the guest did not know was that the fountain is turned on regularly every afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Chicagoan had made his fake telephone call at 2:55.

WE'RE practically through running tombstone inscriptions, but before we stop think you would like to read the one contributed by Elaine Louise Stevenson of the Western State Teachers college at Kalamazoo. She says it must have been an ode to a school teacher:

Command Performance—
Epitaph—
Rhymer—
Patient.

"Here lies an old lady who always was tired,
She lived in a world where too much was required;
Don't grieve for me now,
Don't grieve for me never,
For I am to rest for ever and ever."

THE happy riming of "ever" and "never," overlooking grammatical sequence, brings to mind one of the verses written at a farewell party given for Shepard Vogelgesang, color expert of A Century of Progress, just before he left for the White mountains, later to go to China to resume his round-the-world trip interrupted by the second year of the Fair. The poet who overcame all difficulties set up by finding a rime for Vogelgesang was Ben Fairbank. His effort ended gloriously with:

"So this is a tribute to Vogelgesang,
To the Fair many people to ogle he brang."

IT was at the bedside of a patient at Mount Sinai hospital, an elderly, white haired, genial man who was a great talker. He talked and talked and talked, and his foreign accent made it difficult to understand what he was saying. One day the attending physician started to ask the patient some questions, and the interne on the case tried to intimate by signs that the patient was pretty talkative. Finally the physician understood the signal and asked the interne, "You mean he's garrulous?"

The patient half raised himself from his pillow, shook his head with dignity, and protested:

"No, no. I'm Hungarian."

Jews Throng Synagogues to Hail New Year

Race's Plight Worst of All Time, Says Dr. Mann.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Synagogues of Chicago last night were crowded with worshipers observing solemnities of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year. The new year on the Jewish calendar is the 5695th since the legendary creation of the world as told in Jewish folklore. But the reality of the holidays reveals 4,000 years of Jewish experience with the justice and providence of a good Creator.

This emphasis was the basis of the Rosh Hashana sermon of Dr. Louis L. Mann, spiritual leader of Sinai temple, 4622 South Park way. He first gave the congregation which thronged the temple a view of "this bewildered world" in which precepts and teachings of both Judaism and Christianity have been flouted.

"Never have we heard such a babble of voices," Rabbi Mann declared. "Never have we been confused by such multiplicity of contradictory counsels. Poverty abides alongside of plenty; intense nationalism holds sway over a world inevitably internationalistic; unemployment consumes the very marrow of our economic life, yet armaments are increased and the old balance of power has been renewed while secret treaties prepare for public calamities with their preparation of war."

Rabbi Mann declared the plight of the Jews throughout the world to be worse today than in any former period. He asserted that in medieval days the Jew could find asylum from the persecution of one country by migration to another or through protection of the ghetto. Bad as either of these courses was, Rabbi Mann said, matters are worse today because now in a time of universal unemployment there is no place to flee from persecution. Thus the Jew must "rot in some modern hell such as in Germany."

Turning to the present economic depression, Rabbi Mann declared that it "was anticipated by a depression in character. Every war is followed by demoralization, shoddy ethics, speculative orgies, broken contracts, repudiated debts, loose morals, renovated divorces.

"We can neither dole ourselves out of depression nor squander ourselves into prosperity.

"We must stay clear between the Scylla of cutthroat individualism and the Charybdis of regimentation.

"The world needs the Jewish idea of individual initiative under moral and social constraint. No one is free unless all are free; no one is secure unless all are secure."

Rabbi Mann pleaded that Christian churches cease furnishing chaplains in time of war. He quoted the saying that "one chaplain is worth 100 machine guns," but gave it another meaning. He stated that the old idea of chaplains' work was that of morale builder for soldiers, but today the chaplains "are needed to give religious sanction to war makers."

Oxford Gray for Street

Want Swank? Try Tunic Suit

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Grand suit collections are all over town. Suits with two pieces, the wrap around, needle slim skirts to be worn with decorative blouses or striped and plaid sweater jackets, or the dress and coat type. Most of the suits are made with a snug fitting silhouette, the swagger models with smooth straight front lines, with the backlines flaring smartly with liberal fullness around the lower edge. Collars button high and snugly at the neckline and many of the fur trimmed numbers have matching muffs included in the price mark.

For downright swank see the long tunic type suits. The extremely well fitted coat is long and smooth to well below the knees. Huge, sharply cut revers are covered with fur. The sleeves are without fur, but you can have a muff made for finger comfort if you wish. Tunics make the slim even slimmer and achieve magical slenderness for shorter shoppers. Whether you buy a tunic type suit coat or wear one of the newest tunic two piece street dresses you will be delighted with your fall silhouette.

But the loose casual coats are still tremendously wearable. Stunning, high clear colors of green, wine, henna, and coppery gold combines are especially striking in rough tweedy mixtures and loose woven woolens. One of these is trimmed with a tuxedo collar of nutria. Others are also fur trimmed.

The suit illustrated in the photograph shows canary yellow contrasted with oxford gray in a three piece street costume consisting of a plaited straight line skirt, a striped long sleeved wool blouse, and the fashionable long tunic style coat. Wide revers of the coat are faced with the striped material of the blouse. Obtainable in a Chicago shop.

Good Morning!

Here's a turbulent movie staged in the early days of the Russian revolution.

It is a grim, crashing, brooding, dramatic picture whose candle lights of comedy are swiftly pinched out by the gnarled fingers of tragedy.

Leslie Howard portrays the "unofficial" British agent. His embassy it is to keep Russia fighting at the front and prevent her making a separate peace with Germany. He falls in love with Kay Francis—Lenin's secretary—who never allows her passion for him to interfere with what she believes to be her duty to her country.

At last, in the interests of that native land, it becomes her mission to forward plans for her lover's death—a death she prepares to share. . . . The picture shall inform you further of the story.

Kay Francis is intensely effective as Elena, with her beauty, her zeal, her torments, surrenders, and sacrifices. Leslie Howard is real as the harried English representative, put on a spot by his lack of vested authority.

William Gargan as an American soldier injects most of the comedy. Sad enough comedy at that! Other rôles are capably handled.

There is a terror, a suspense, about "British Agent" that gets over in unusual fashion. You seem to have been plopped right down there in the midst of things, and there are times when, involuntarily, you look about for the nearest exit.

See you tomorrow.

BLAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Landis inherited the Lazy S ranch from her uncle. It adjoins the Circle B ranch, owned by Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the county, and Mary's legal guardian. He has been stealing Mary's cattle and trying to force her to marry him. To escape his tyranny Mary marries Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, within an hour after meeting him. There is bitter warfare between Cole and the Circle B T brand. The marriage is one in name only, giving them both better advantage to fight their common enemy. Cole finds a home for Mary in Jonesboro with Mr. and Mrs. Peters, leading citizens. Cole leaves town with two of his men, Dave Pope and Pete Darrett. He drops in on Radbourne, who is arranging with Curt Jordan to get Cole. Jerry Haskell, Radbourne's foreman, and his riders appear and a fight ensues.

INSTALMENT XIII.

SIX TO ONE.

The noise of the guns filled the room. The kerosene lamp went out. Flashes stabbed the darkness. There was a crash of glass.

Haskell yelled an order. "Get him, boys. It's Sanborn. He went outa the window."

The foreman ran around the house in time to see a man flinging himself into a saddle. He fired wildly. The answering shot plowed into his shoulder.

Sanborn lifted his mount to a gallop. Men were running across the open to cut off his retreat. Others were climbing back into the saddles they had just left.

A Mexican vaquero clutched at the bridle of Sanborn's claybank and was bowled over like a tenpin. Two others were closing in on him. One of them, on horseback, was the man Slim.

"Here's where I get that crack at you, fellow," the black haired cowpuncher called, and simultaneously the roar of his revolver sounded.

Voices, shots, confusion filled the night. Half a dozen men were between Sanborn and the road. He could not run with any chance of escaping such a gantlet. Abruptly he pulled his mount around, gave it a touch of the spur, and sent it straight at a closed gate opening into a pasture.

The claybank gathered itself for the jump, rose beautifully, and sailed across without touching the top plank. Horse and rider disappeared in the darkness, untouched by the random bullets flung after them.

When Slim walked into the office the victims of Sanborn's visit were examining their casualties, the foreman with raucous profanity, Jordan in a grim silence. The latter had a shattered ankle, Haskell a punctured shoulder, Radbourne sat slumped at the desk. The black haired puncher guessed that rage was boiling in him.

"Mex has got a busted collar bone," Slim mentioned. He added, a devil of mischief dancing in his eye: "Looks like we'll have to turn the Circle B T into a hospital. That hell-a-miler Sanborn 'most ruined our outfit."

A Mexican vaquero clutched at the bridle of Sanborn's claybank and was bowled over like a tenpin.

"I hired a fine bunch of buzzard heads," Radbourne burst out, an ugly rasp to his voice. "How many chances at the fellow do you want? First, down at Jonesboro, where you were only six to one. Then here, with about twenty of you sitting in."

"Including the boss, under the desk," Jordan said viperishly.

"Six to one, Jerry, and you figured it too dangerous," Chet went on, disregarding Jordan's thrust. "What kind of odds you looking for?"

The bullnecked foreman glared at his employer angrily. "I told you he had two guys with him, and I told you why I didn't bump him off. After he'd married the girl I thought you might want to figure out some other play. If you want him so bad, Chet, you had a chance to get him your own self. Why didn't you plug the scalawag?"

"Buzzard head is right for me," Slim said cheerfully. "I took a crack at him in town and another here. No damage. His bronc was moving right lively both times. I'll say that for myself."

"Chet didn't plug him because he never did have a thing against Sanborn," explained Jordan ironically, his cool, flinty eyes on Radbourne. "They're good neighbors, only busybodies have been telling them lies about each other. I was expecting Chet to kiss him."

"He had the drop on us from the moment he stepped into the room," Radbourne said, a dull flush suffusing his heavy face. "If you'd had your way he would have finished us both right here. I use my head, Curt."

"You sure do," agreed Jordan. "You'll never hear me say again a fat man is slow moving. The way you slid for cover."

"Take me for a fool?" the ranch owner demanded. "Think I wanted to sit there and be killed?"

Jordan looked at his ankle with disgusted resentment. "Well, I'm climbing a horse to go see a doc at Jonesboro," he announced. "Any other buzzard head going with me?"

"You've got my company," the foreman said sourly.

"I reckon Mex will trail along with you," Slim said, decorously suppressing a grin. "But you boys want to be careful about meeting this hell-a-miler. If he jumps you with only three of you present no tellin' what all he'll do."

Jordan looked at the graceful black haired puncher out of opaque, stony eyes. "I wouldn't make any more funny cracks like that, Slim," he suggested almost in a murmur. "My ankle hurts like hell, and I'm sorta irritable right now."

Slim was reckless, but he was no fool bent on suicide. "Take it back, Curt," he apologized promptly. "Course I know Sanborn got a lucky break. I was only joshin', No offense meant."

"Stick around Jonesboro till your ankle heals up, Curt," said Radbourne meaningly.

"What I aim to do," Jordan answered, looking straight at the fat man. "Sanborn will come slipping in to meet his new wife. They're all alike when it comes to a woman. She's a good looking little wildcat, and he'll buzz around her the way a bee does around clover blossoms. The poor fool has framed himself for you. Just keep an eye on the Peters place."

Jordan meant to kill Sanborn before he returned to the ranch. The lust for revenge burned savagely in him. But he was in no humor to give Radbourne the satisfaction of knowing it.

"I'll please myself about that," he said dourly.

"A sure thing," the owner of the ranch said persuasively.

"That's what you were telling me just before you dived under the desk."

"Don't you see how easy he has made it, Curt? He'll be crazy about this wench. He doesn't know the little devil married him just to take a slap at me. I'd like to give her a good quirting, and one of these days I will."

"That all you've got to tell me?" Jordan asked sourly.

"That's all." Chet leaned forward and whispered. "Fifteen hundred dollars waiting for one little crook of your finger."

"Have some one bring my baldfaced roan around here," the gunman ordered. "I don't aim to do any unnecessary stepping on this ankle."

"That's right," Chet agreed. "I'll go tell one of the boys to rope and saddle for you."

Radbourne waddled out of the room. Anger surged in him, but he did not dare to show it. After all, no matter what Jordan said, the man would never let Sanborn get away alive after what he had done.

The blast of the last gun died away as Cole rode rapidly across the pasture. His heart was high in him, lifted by the elation that often came after passing through danger. His enemies might follow him a little way, but not far. No profit for hired warriors was to be found in pressing a dangerous foe too closely.

At the pasture boundary Cole swung from the saddle, cut the wire with his nippers, and rode into the rough country beyond. It was a night of pale suffused moonlight. To his left he could make out dimly the barranco, running almost parallel to his line of travel.

Expertly the claybank wound a path among the mesquite and the cholla. It dropped down a steep bank into a wide dry wash. Here Sanborn guided to the left, following the bed of the old river in its devious way to the mountains.

Before him rose a castle formation, left standing stark against the sky by ages of erosion. As he came closer its architecture became more visible. Ramparts and bastions stood out above the sheer cliff of the lower wall.

Psyche Trend Is Observed in New Coiffures

Hair Is Waved to Fullness Above Neckline.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

Do you note in the smart fashion magazines the "Psyche" trend of the back hair? It does not end in an extended knot or figure eight of the old Psyche days. The hair is cut, waved, and combed to extend out a couple of inches between the crown and back hairline. It's tres chic. I see it demonstrated on the dummy heads in certain salons of distinction. Also, I see it worn at smart night places around town. Somehow they manage to preserve a good head outline without the sleek, skull-cap-fitting look with which we are familiar. A simpler arrangement around the face is called for where the back of the head goes dressy; ears showing, when ears permit of showing. Hair off the temples and little or none on the forehead.

The new hats, of course, influence the coiffure lines. If you go in for one of the sensational fall styles you'll want your hair a perfect complement. I have a theory, based on a certain knowledge of female psychology, that a change in coiffure style every now and then is just as good for the soul as the new chapeau. Even better, for your hat isn't on as much as it is off. If you can find a hair style that will lop off a year or more I ask you what more need a girl ask? And hairdressing, as it is practiced by our better artists, certainly may be both youthifier and beautifier.

I do see the most amazing changes in women who have abandoned a long worn hair style for a divertingly new line of hair and head. There are still women who wouldn't wear last year's hat on a bet, but who will keep on wearing the hair in a style of at least ten years ago. The advantage today is that you do not have to pay much more, if any more, for a new and well studied coiffure than you do for the old style one that is clung to. Perhaps a dollar or so for a new cutting and thinning out and shaping of hair is all the additional expense. The shampooing and waving are the same price, practically.

Stratosphere Observer to Address Ohio Society

Maj. Chester L. Fordney, scientific observer of the stratosphere flight he made with Lieutenant Commander Thomas W. Settle, will give an illustrated lecture on the flight to the Ohio Society of Chicago at its autumn dinner Thursday evening at the Hamilton club. James L. Sayler, president of the club, urged members to bring their families and friends.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

For the good of your soul and the ultimate good of your grooming you should look into the merits of the newest wrinkle in mirrors.

There are two, each about as round as a respectable winter morning pancake and not much thicker, joined with a longish, flexible coil. When in use one makes a base for the other and when you're through with the face beautifying you can flap them together like a disheartened accordion and slip them into a little leather kit. They're grand for travelers because of their compactness.

But they are pretty good for all of us, because they're such an excellent pair. One is one of those merciless magnifiers which shows you the true state of skin affairs. If you've been negligent one look at yourself in such a mirror has the most salutary effect. A relaxed pore looks as big as the Atlantic and a wrinkle about to be born looks like a mountain chasm. Stiff medicine, but good. The other is a kinder friend, but big enough and true enough to tell you if your hand has slipped with the eyebrow pencil or if your pet shade of cheek rouge is fighting with the red feather in your hat.

Because you can set these mirror twins down anywhere or even hang them on a hook and twist them this way and that while you operate, they're a bit more useful than a hand mirror. Then, too, you can put on your makeup with the aid of the magnifying one and survey the effect, plus coiffure and hat, in the other.

These are quite new and we'd place them, because of their price, pretty much in the luxury class. But lots of women can afford them and to them we'd say, "Go to it!"

ELEANOR NANGLE.

"Baking the Perfect Cake," a 56 page booklet containing directions and recipes for 48 cakes, frostings, and fillings, along with causes and remedies for cake failures, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 20 cents. By mail, 23 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

"I'm looking for a doughnut!" a woman explained to me the other day. "It's not just one of those everyday doughnuts. It has a mysterious little tang that means spice. And I gravely suspect it of housing sour milk."

milk." And just like that I guessed the answer.

The foundation recipe will remind you of one your grandmother used to swear by—but it's the spicy flourishes which fascinate me. Here it is:

Spicy Sour Milk Doughnuts.

1 egg, well beaten
1 cup sugar
1½ tablespoons melted lard or other shortening
1 cup sour milk
4 cups flour, sifted
1½ teaspoons soda
½ teaspoonful cream of tartar
1½ teaspoons salt

And now for the tang of spices. So many choices there are, each turning out its own distinctive batch of doughnuts, that we'll simply list them and let you be the chooser.

Now select one of the following combinations:

A—1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves
B—½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
C—1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon mace
D—1 teaspoon mace
E—1 teaspoon lemon extract, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
F—½ teaspoon almond extract, ½ teaspoon vanilla
G—½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves

Combine the egg and sugar. Add the melted fat. Sift together the flour, salt, soda, cream of tartar, and your choice of spices. Add this alternately with the sour milk. Stir in the flavoring if used. Mix well, then roll out the dough on a floured board to ¼ inch thickness. Shape with a floured cutter and fry the doughnuts in deep hot fat [380 degrees F.] until golden brown. Drain them out on unglazed paper, then shake a few doughnuts at a time in a paper bag containing a little powdered sugar for coating.

Off the subject of munchy doughnuts, but still in the dough business, have you ever had the difficulty that our recent writer-in, Mrs. G. A., is having—that no matter what baking powder biscuit recipe she uses, the things just won't rise to suit her? My suggestion to all comers on that score is—make 'em fatter! We often expect too much of a thin pancake of dough when we compare its baked state with the spanking big pillows we find on our neighbor's table. It just didn't have the proper start in life. Even though it does make fewer biscuits, roll the dough out to no less than ½ inch thickness—nearly 2-3 inch is better unless you crave more crust and less altitude. Then make sure that the oven is definitly not too hot nor too slow. Either will spoil the rising.

Too much working of the dough also is a stunter in the growth of a well meaning biscuit. It not only develops the strong gluten quality of the flour, making it more difficult for the baking powder to raise it to lightness, but it also mixes the moisture with the powder itself too long before baking time, discharging the important raising gases and sealing the fate of the biscuit.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Gold threads are seen in many of the frocks today, and this model was fashioned of brown tweed with gold flecking, and the collar and vest were of matching brown satin crêpe. It's a smart design and will be fine for street wear without a coat. A black pebbled silk crêpe with black taffeta shot with metal for contrast is another lovely idea.

The pattern, No. 3342, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

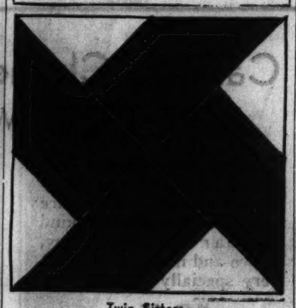
Quilt Shares in Sad Love Story of Twin Sisters



Twin Sisters.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Twin Sisters" is a striking pattern which was first made in 1845 in Pennsylvania. There is a tragic story concerning this pattern. A pair of quilts was made for the hope chests of a pair of twins. Three weeks before their marriages were to have taken place, one of the twins fell ill and died. The second quilt was passed on to the other sister, and today they are the property of a great granddaughter of hers. The spread is an entire pieced quilt with three inch bands of insertion separating the blocks.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

uncle, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. K. Crawford Stuart, in Folkstone. Mrs. Finney's mother is a daughter of one of Chicago's earliest mayors, Julian S. Rumsey.

Distinguishing themselves among the younger generation are Robert Isham Jr., who won the junior boys' golf tournament at the Lake Geneva Country club, and Charles Crane III., who won the driving contest. Robert Crane took honors in the putting contest.

The last big event of the season at the club will be the Harvest Home dinner-dance on Sept. 29. The annual meeting of the board of directors of Holiday home will be held at the club tomorrow. Holiday home is now closed.

Mrs. Earle Reynolds to Arrive Today.

The Charles Farwell Winstons expect Mrs. Earle Reynolds to arrive in Lake Forest today. She will spend several days here as the Winstons' guest.

Miss Louise Wood, Mrs. Malcolm Shroyer's sister, who was expected here this month, did not land in Boston until yesterday and does not plan to come west until October. Mrs. Shroyer is not certain of her plans, but she will visit Mrs. Clay Hollister in Gloucester, Mass., a while, and probably several other places in the east before joining the Shroyers in their Barrington home. Miss Wood is writing a book on Italian art which will soon be ready for the publishers. Mr. and Mrs. Shroyer plan to remain in Barrington all winter.

Mrs. D. Fairchild Wheeler of Bridgeport, Conn., has closed her Bonnie Burn lodge at Slide mountain in the Catskills and has come west to spend a fortnight here at the Blackstone to visit A Century of Progress. Mrs. Wheeler is the former Mabel Dore of Chicago. She has not been in Chicago recently, although she has been about every place else in the world in late years.

Mrs. Richardson Dunham Returns from England.

Among the many who recently have returned from summer trips are Mrs. Richardson Dunham, who is at home from England; the John Roots, who were motoring in the east for a fortnight, and the Alfred Wolfes, whose summer at Ephraim was broken by a trip to Colorado Springs. The George T. Senseneys will be at home today from Desbarats, Ont.

All but Miss Frances Bell of the Laird Bell family have returned home. Mr. and Mrs. Bell came down from the Huron Mountain club last Friday to meet their daughter, Natalie, who has been traveling abroad this summer with Mrs. Stewart Johnson and her daughter, Catita. Miss Helen Bell returned yesterday from the east where she has been making a round of visits. Frances sailed Thursday from England where she spent the summer and will arrive at home within ten days. She will spend the winter here with her family. Natalie will reënter the North Shore Country Day school, but Miss Johnson will go away to Farmington.

Frederick B. Tuttle sailed from Bremen on the Europa yesterday for New York. He will be at home within a few days.

Charles R. Robinsons Return from Europe.

After a gay summer in England and Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Robinson are back at their apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive.

When Miss Elise Clow landed in New York a day or two ago, her mother and father, the Kent S. Clows, were there to meet her, for she has been abroad for nearly a year. They returned at once to Lake Forest. Miss Clow will be a debutante next year.

Mrs. Hayden B. Harris has returned to Chicago after a summer filled with travel and visits in the east, ending with the marriage of her niece, Charity Harris, daughter of the Samuel G. Harrises, to John Rawling Moulton, which took place in Greenwich a couple of weeks ago. Mrs. Harris' daughter, Miss Valeria Harris, returned from a girls' camp, where she has been a junior counsellor, at the same time as her mother, and she will be leaving late this month to return to Mount Vernon seminary in Washington, D. C.

An officer and two members of each of the member clubs of the Garden Club of Illinois will be entertained at luncheon today at 12:30 at the Indian Hill club by the Winnetka Garden club which is playing host to the state group. After luncheon the members will tour several attractive gardens along the north shore, among them those of Mrs. John Stuart, Mrs. Langdon Pearse, Mrs. Alice Drake Miller, and Mrs. Leslie Cook and the tour will end at the North Shore garden center at the Community house in Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller are having a tea from 4 until 7 today to meet Charles Wakefield Cadman. They are giving the tea in their apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Leslie Beebe of 6731 Jeffery avenue announce the approaching marriage of their daughter June to Philip Trowbridge Atwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Atwood, which will take place at the Olympia Fields Country club at Rockwood at 5 o'clock on Sept. 28. A reception will follow. The bride's sister, Mrs. Norman Lee Anderson, will be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Miss Katherine Urban of Chicago, Mrs. George McCausland of Evanston, and Mrs. C. J. Harrison and Mrs. M. J. Geran of New York. Mr. McCausland will serve Mr. Atwood as best man and ushering will be Mr. Anderson, Edward Davis and Robert Beebe of Chicago and Louis Schultz of Rockford.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Fehling of 6831 South Sangamon street announce the marriage of their daughter Genevieve to Joseph E. Tobin of 6815 South Sangamon street at 10 o'clock Saturday at St. Peter's church. Mr. Tobin is chief deputy United States marshal for the northern district of Illinois. CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SHORT SUITED SLAM TRIES.

The last few articles have, I trust, made clear my reasons for wishing the bidding at one no trump, two no trumps, four no trumps to lead to a slam contract in a suit if the partners can locate a suit in which each holds four cards, with complete top card control between them. The requirements I insist on for the suit insure that one of them holds the ace. This is necessary, otherwise the opponent on lead might lead ace and one trump and so wreck beyond repair the possibly desirable cross-ruffing policy which is the key to the playing of quite a few hands with four-four trump holding.

Rebid Procedure of Opening Bidder.

On hearing his partner's acceptance of the slam try, one thing he may not do is to pass, since it is now understood that a slam will be reached, with no need for any other than minimum exchanges of information. There is no stopping at five either in a suit or in no trumps. However, the opener's next bid may be of three different kinds, according to his partner's bid over four no trumps and in view of his own suit holdings.

1. If his partner bid five in a suit over four no trumps, he must raise that suit to six if he holds four cards in it headed by one of the top three honors. On the bidding so far it is, of course, virtually certain that he holds at least one of the top honors in each of the four suits; the important point is that he must not raise with less than four cards of the suit. Partner has only four, and high suit contracts, especially slams, must not be undertaken with less than eight trumps in the two hands. If unable to raise partner's suit or bid a suit himself, he says five no trumps.

2. If unable to raise partner's suit, he should bid his own four card suit if as good as A Q x x x or K Q x x, even if he has to bid six in it. Partner will go to six no trumps if unable to supply the needed support for that suit.

3. If the responding hand's response was five no trumps, opener should now bid a four card suit headed by A Q or K Q if he has one, to feel out the possibility that his partner can accept the slam in that suit. With no suit to bid, opener says six no trumps.

4. If either partner has two suits good enough to bid in this situation, there is no point in mentioning the second if a fit has been discovered in the first. If opener has two such suits, he should bid the higher ranking one first. If partner's slam acceptance was in the form of five in a suit which opener can overcall at the same level, he will [assuming responder cannot support the first suit] still be able to bid his second suit. Four no trumps, five diamonds, five hearts by opener, five no trumps, six clubs. Unable to support either suit, responder bids six no trumps. If, however, the bidding is four no trumps, five spades, or five no trumps, now opener can only show one of his two suits, as he would not be able to show the other below seven. He must hope that the hand will play as well in six no trumps, assuming the responder cannot stand the suit he bids, as it would have in six of the unbid suit had he been able to bid it. Which suit to bid if you are only going to be able to bid one of them? In match point play, the higher ranking. In rubber play, the stronger, the one headed by the ace. With no preference on these grounds, the higher ranking. Incidentally, this contingency is very rare, as when a powerful hand contains two four-card suits as good as this, it usually calls for a suit opening bid rather than no trumps, to facilitate a one-over-one response and obtain as much information as possible while the bidding level is still low.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

many persons are injured painfully by being lifted by their ears. It would be no more painful for a man to be lifted by his ears. These organs were made for hearing and not for handles. Rabbits should be lifted by grasping the skin just above the shoulders with one hand, while the other hand is placed under the rear of the animal for support. In this position a rabbit does not struggle and is comfortable.

Encourage the Child to Think Independently

Respect His Ideas, However Much You Disagree.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Do you try to make your children think as you do? Do you feel that "mother knows best" or "father knows best" and thereby rob a child of his freedom of thought? The ability to think clearly, untrammeled by other people's conception of right or wrong, is not something that one achieves miraculously at the somewhat arbitrary age of eighteen or twenty one. It is something that can best be achieved by practice, by a trial and error method, that can best be done by doing.

Often we may feel that our children's reasoning or their conclusions are wrong—and perhaps they are—but we can at least treat them with understanding and accord them dignity. A casual flouting of a boy's or a girl's opinion is not going to encourage that most necessary feeling of faith in themselves.

Our power to influence or sway the opinion of our little children is almost unlimited, and therefore we should use this power with wisdom. The power wanes as the children grow older and are acted upon more by outside influences and contacts. There are, then, other influences at work besides ours—modern novels, movies, and social contact with their contemporaries. As children reach the adolescent age we are all due for shocks when we discuss things with them, just as our fathers and mothers were shocked by a viewpoint which was modern when we were in our teens. What was radical then is conventional now, and what we may consider radical now may be conventional in the next generation.

A father who is a lover of wild creatures may object to a son who likes to hunt; or a father who hunts may disapprove of a son who wants to conserve all wild life. A romantic mother may disagree with her realistic daughter who thinks the Lady of Shallot, in her plan to be carried down the river on her floating bier past her errant lover, was making a play to the gallery. We may feel that our son who takes the blame for a broken window when he did not happen to be with the gang at the time they broke it, is acting foolishly. But he may have put loyalty to the gang above the disapproval of the neighbors.

Children can differ honestly with their parents, and we should respect their honesty, even if we cannot always agree with their conclusions.

New Fall Silks

IN FOUR IMPORTANT WEAVES
ARE FEATURED IN A SALE

Canton crepes and canton failles of a fine pure-dye, all-silk quality follow fashion's lead toward rougher surfaces. Their dull crepy effects are particularly smart for this season. Satin crepes with their soft, smooth finish are in direct contrast to the rough surface weaves. Because of their supple texture they are ideal for evening frocks as well as for daytime dresses. Cereal crepes are as intriguing as their name. They are a member of the synthetic family, and woven to feel like a sheer, sheer wool. Fashion spotlights them for autumn frocks. Every color is here—bright shades for daytime—pastels for evening—the rich jewel tones, and black and white, of course. The very special price of $1.25 a yard is so low as to make it worth your while to buy in quantity. A value achievement, we think!

CUBS WHIP BOSTON, 4-1; LOSE 2D GAME, 11-1

REPORTER FINDS WHY WRESTLER GRUNTS, GROANS

Lewis Shows Him a Sample Headlock.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Among those planning to attend the Lewis-Londos wrestling match for the world's championship, there are chronic skeptics. These tepid fans doubt the sincerity of that tortured expression a grappler wears when locked motionless for five minutes in the grip of an opponent. Impatient for the spectacular throw, they grow derisive at the scientific maneuvers which prepare the victim for the coup de grace. The raspberry or the hollow hoot is their response to the groan, the grunt, and the grimace.

But let these doubters spend just a few seconds in the grip of Strangler Lewis and they'll get a new idea of what's going on during those apparently apathetic minutes. In his hotel room yesterday the Strangler gave an informal demonstration of his tactics in response to the question, "How did you beat Londos when you last wrestled him?"

It's Like This.

With a waggle of his bushy eyebrows the Strangler lifted his enormous bulk from a chair and advanced on the reporter.

"Well," he said, "I did it like this. I aimed at cutting off the blood supply to the brain by putting pressure right here. See?"

He placed a huge paw on each of the reporter's jawbones and began to squeeze. "Feel that? Feel your head get numb?

"Now, of course," he went on, "Londos or any other wrestler wouldn't stand still and let me press on those nerves and arteries with my hands. He'd quickly twist away. So that's where my headlock comes in.

Strangler Plays Rough.

"I took Londos like this [wrapping a mighty arm around the reporter's neck] and pulled his head down under my armpit. Then I rocked him off balance so he couldn't get a leverage to break my hold. See how helpless you feel? Well, when I had Londos this way he was just as helpless as you are now and I could start putting on the pressure—like this. My wristbone went against the artery of his jawbone this way—and I started to squeeze as hard as I could. O, I won't hurt you. This is only playing."

In response to a request not to play so rough, the Strangler let go, but not before he had given the investigator a sample. Any one who has felt a dentist's extraction forceps start to squeeze a deeply rooted tooth can get some idea how the Strangler's opponents must feel when the big fellow clamps on the headlock and begins to press his wristbone against the nerves and arteries of the jaw.

When Stamina Doesn't Count.

"I can take a college athlete in the best of condition, put the headlock on him and he'll quickly go limp," Lewis continued. "Good wind, good stamina don't count a thing. When I cut off the blood supply to the brain a fellow will tire in no time.

"I understand Londos is working on a defense against my headlock. Well, if he's able to get away from that I have another trick to show him. It's based on the same principle, but it's worked on the arm instead of the head. Here's how it goes."

He locked his arm in that of the reporter's and applied pressure above the elbow.

Lost—One Arm.

"Feel your hand getting numb? See how white and weak it's getting? Well, all I have to do is put on more pressure and hold it awhile and your arm would become temporarily paralyzed. Then I could either jerk your arm behind your back and get a hammerlock—like this—which would quickly force you to quit because of the pain, or else I could use a bone-breaking snap. But I never deliberately try to injure a man," he added as a reassuring afterthought, much to the relief of the party immediately concerned.

"And now I'll show you the hold in which two wrestlers have been killed," he went on. But here the investigator changed the subject deftly.

Gets Idea from Rodeo.

Lewis thereupon gave an explanation of how he happened to concentrate on the headlock.

"One day I was watching a rodeo out west and I saw a cowboy weighing about 145 pounds throw a steer weighing 1,200 pounds. After he got the steer down he kept him there simply by exerting leverage in a clever way upon his head. I figured that if a man could keep a steer helpless like that, one wrestler ought to be able to do the same to another if he could adapt the principle properly."

He's Saving Armlock.

Lewis said that he never yet has used the armlock in the ring. It's a hold which he is developing in his daily workouts for use on Londos in case he needs it.

So if you're planning to attend the championship bout at Wrigley field a week from Thursday night—and you no doubt are—watch for those two holds. If the artful and agile Greek is solving that crushing headlock, then the mighty Strangler will switch his tactics and crack down with the armlock. And if you see numerous grimaces and hear a few grunts or groans, don't get derisive. Take it from one who knows—they're genuine.

THE KING AT HOME AND ABROAD

King Levinsky's women folks don't exactly live a life of ease when the husky Chicago heavyweight is training for a fight. Here he has his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy (left), and his bride of a few weeks out with him for road work as he prepares to battle Art Sykes Sept. 20 at Wrigley field.

Monarch of all he surveys is Levinsky, author of that celebrated crack, "A king's home is his castle." And, having married a fan dancer, he has no trouble keeping cool. It also saves electricity.

Miss Doeg and Priscilla Merwin won the doubles championship by beating Millicent Hirsh and Helen Grawn, 6-3, 6-3.

185 START PLAY TODAY IN U. S. AMATEUR GOLF

Sixty Matches on First Day's Schedule.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 9.—The Fairway Fusiliers, that rugged regiment of fans who will hound a golf match come wind or sun or rain, weighed in today for the most wearing campaign of their careers—the 33th annual amateur tournament of the United States Golf association, the first skirmishes in which will be waged here tomorrow.

There are 185 players, headed by George T. Dunlap Jr. of New York, who won the championship at Cincinnati last year, in this title quest. Never before has the amateur attracted so many.

They'll Drop Out Fast.

With such a huge collection of stars it might seem the process of trimming down the field to some workable order would require a couple of weeks, but the makeup of the tournament is such that there will be only 16 survivors after Wednesday's play. First round byes left 120 players for 60 matches tomorrow. Sixty-four second round flights will be held on Tuesday. The double rounds will commence on Wednesday, with 32 matches in the morning and 16 in the afternoon. This will continue through Thursday, with eight matches in the morning and four in the afternoon. The semi-finals Friday and the finals Saturday will be 36 holes.

Attempting to single out which matches to follow tomorrow, and even on through Tuesday and Wednesday, will be the hardest task confronting the galleries. The problem will be simplified to some extent by the fact that eight former holders of the title, all of whom were invited to the tournament without the necessity of qualifying in their home districts, were not fortunate enough to draw byes and so will have to play tomorrow.

Torrance Among Starters.

These include H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., champion in 1904 and 1905; Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, 1909 and 1915; Francis Ouimet of Boston, 1914 and 1931; Chick Evans of Chicago, 1916 and 1920; S. Davidson Herron of Pittsburgh, 1919; Jesse Guilford of Boston, 1921; Max Marston of Philadelphia, 1923, and C. Ross Somerville of London, Ont., 1932.

Of the other Americans exempt, Dunlap, the title holder, and Lawson Little of San Francisco, winner of this year's British crown, drew first round byes, while Harrison [Jimmy] Johnston of St. Paul, champion in 1922, was unable to compete.

The outstanding foreign contender, aside from Somerville, is Tony Tor-

Dempsey Picks Sykes to Beat King Levinsky

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey, who will officiate on the charity sports card at Wrigley field, Chicago, Sept. 20, featuring Jim Londos and Ed Lewis in a heavyweight championship wrestling match, today predicted that the boxing end of the program would provide as much fireworks as the windup mat contest.

"Take that Levinsky-Sykes match," said the former champion. "I am surprised that Levinsky, who still has championship aspirations, accepted the bout. Sykes is one of the most dangerous of the young crop of heavyweights and it will not surprise me if the King finds himself stretched out before the tenth round. Sykes can hit like a mule and he knows more about boxing than Levinsky. It seems to me that Sister Lena pulled a boner in taking this one.

Sykes' Big Chance.

"I have been watching Sykes for several months. If he gets by Levinsky he will stand out as one of the strongest challengers for Baer's title. He needs seasoning, but he appears to have the natural talent of a great fighter.

"The Rodak-Rightmire bout brings together two of the leading contenders for the featherweight championship," Dempsey stated. "The winner will be ready for a title match.

"Its Tops," Says Jack.

"I can't recall when the sporting public has been offered more for its money than in Chicago's big charity show. The Londos-Lewis match in itself is a tremendous attraction. Promoters the country over have been trying to arrange it for years. Add to it the Levinsky-Sykes and Rodak-Rightmire supporting bouts and you have a card I call tops."

SYKES QUITS CAMP

Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y., heavyweight, returned yesterday from Round Lake, Ill., where he has been training the last two weeks for his ten round bout against King Levinsky. Sykes' plans to open workouts yesterday at Northwest gymnasium for the match were canceled.

Manager Eddie Long announced he did not want to take any chances of overworking Sykes, who appeared fit enough to fight Levinsky tonight. Art will resume training tomorrow at Northwest gymnasium. He is scheduled to spar several rounds with Charley Young and Jack Robinson, heavyweights.

Sykes, who is at 183, the weight he hopes to take into the ring against the Kingfish, is winning new boosters daily. Fans at Trafton's gymnasium yesterday who watched Levinsky spar expressed an opinion that Sykes will win.

A Sock on the Jaw or A Flying Tackle?

Now, perhaps you wouldn't care to receive either of these, even as a gift, but The Tribune has signed up a group of rugged battlers who welcome this kind of treatment—provided they can deal out the same in return.

You'll want to attend the world's championship wrestling bout between Jim Londos and Ed Lewis at Wrigley field Sept. 20. And for good measure you'll see:

DON GEORGE vs. JIM McMILLEN (30 minutes)
KING LEVINSKY vs. ART SYKES (10 rounds)
LEO RODAK vs. EVERETT RIGHTMIRE (10 rounds)
YOUNG STUHLEY vs. SOLLY DUKELSKY (8 rounds)
BARNEY ROSS (4 round exhibition)

Then, too, Jack Dempsey will be on hand to referee one of the boxing bouts.

The prices, including tax, are $6, $3.60 and $2.40. Get tickets at The Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and the Hall of Science at the World's Fair.

Address mail orders to Wrestling Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Make checks payable to the Chicago Tribune.

Sox Whip Senators, 11-3 Then Lose in 10-Inning Battle, 2-1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox had a gay old time heaping abuse on a couple of Washington's pitching employés yesterday but later discovered they had exhausted their supply of tricks. They took the first half of a double header from the bedraggled league champions, 11 to 3, and then fell down in the second game, 2 to 1, after ten classy innings, because old man Alex McColl outlasted Phil Gallivan. However, the latter had the satisfaction of yielding only five hits, two of which whipped him in the concluding inning.

Because of the merry fashion in which his mates slapped the ball in the opening game, Milt Gaston, owner of eighteen defeats, had little trouble getting possession of his fifth victory of the campaign. His co-workers were a bit slow in starting, this causing Gaston more or less concern for six innings, but they fixed everything satisfactorily immediately thereafter. They drove Monte Weaver off the mound with two runs in the seventh and in the eighth put on a big reception for their old pal, Tommy Thomas. They punctured him with a six run assault.

Big Day for Bonura.

The leader of the entertainment in the Gaston affair was Zeke Bonura, who was merely making up for what he didn't do when his admirers presented him with an auto on Saturday. In the fifth inning the big Italian let loose homer No. 24, a hit which served to put the Sox in a tie against Weaver. In the seventh he doubled, to drive in a run which broke the tie. And in the eighth he helped to annoy Thomas by singling with the bags filled. A moment later Marty Hopkins did even better than that. He completed the defiation of the same Mr. Thomas by exploding a homer with the bases loaded.

FIRST GAME

The Sox came into possession of two runs before the washed up champions got a base hit. One of these tallies was collected in the opening inning. Swanson led off with a single to center and moved to second on Conlan's bunt. Simmons lined a single over short, Swanson scoring.

Hayes walked to start the second inning. Hopkins bunted him to second and he hiked home on Shea's single to center.

Senators Get One.

Half of the Sox's two run lead went away in the third. Susko rolled to Bonura and it became the Senators'

Stoefen and Allison Even as Dusk Ends Play

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Lester Stoefen and Wilmer Allison fought through two and a half hours of a quarter-final match in the men's national singles tennis tournament today only to have dusk halt the battle with them all even at the end of four sets. The scores were Allison 8-6, 4-6, 11-9, 6-8.

Fred Perry, defending champion from England, who was scheduled to play another quarter-final match with Cliff Sutter, never did take the courts, because of the halting of the Stoefen-Allison tussle.

Young Frankie Parker of Milwaukee played his finest tennis of the season to eliminate Roderich Menzel of Czechoslovakia, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2, and Vernon G. Kirby, South African southpaw, beat Donald Budge of Oakland, Cal., former junior champion, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Tomorrow Stoefen and Allison will finish their quarter-final match, and Sidney B. Wood, Davis cup star, will meet Parker in the lower half of the brackets. The winners will meet in one semi-final Tuesday.

In the upper half of the draw Perry will try again to get at Sutter, and Frank Shields, United States second Davis cup singles player, will meet Kirby, with the winners of these two matches meeting on Tuesday in the second semi-final. The final is scheduled for Wednesday.

LAFFOON WINS PLAYOFF FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE

Glens Falls, N. Y., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Ky Laffoon of Denver won the Glens Falls open golf tournament today by defeating Paul Runyan, the National P. G. A. champion, in an 18 hole play-off.

Laffoon finished with 67, four under Runyan's par-equaling 71. By winning today, after ending the 72 holes of the tournament proper yesterday tied with Runyan at 280, Laffoon shook off the play-off jinx that has dogged him since earlier this season.

Laffoon had 32, four under par on the first nine, and it was only because he went over par on two of the last three holes that he tossed away an opportunity of tying the course mark of 65 set by Gene Sarazen four years ago.

Endeavour and Rainbow Sail in Stormy Waters

Newport, R. I., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Endeavour, the America's Cup challenger, and Rainbow, defender, had real tests today in a stormswept sea. It was the first time both had been under canvas in a heavy sea, and each behaved well in the going.

In the wake of the northeast storm that had rolled its thunderous way out over the Atlantic a west-southwest wind swept across the water at more than 20 knots. Underneath it was a tossing ocean which fell upon the rocky shore.

Gerard B. Lambert took his Vanitie along with Endeavour and Frederick H. Prince his Weetamoe along with Rainbow. All four went to the lightship, paired, the challenger and Vanitie leading the way. They were close hauled and heeled until their decks were awash. With each ground swell, topped by running, splashing water, they dove and rose. Spray flung from their plunging bows 40 feet in the air.

At the lightship they all went about and headed for the Narragansett shore. Then they tacked past Gunning Rock and Big and Little League shore bowlders. Along Joint Judith Neck they turned to sea again. Off shore all four started sheets and ran back. Endeavour and Vanitie came into their mooring in Brenton cove. Rainbow and Weetamoe kept on up Narragansett bay a way and beat down back.

There was no way of comparing the two boats, as they never came together.

After the trial Harold Vanderbilt made plans for the coming days prior to the international match that starts Saturday. Rainbow will be out under sail tomorrow and Tuesday. On Tuesday night it will be taken up to Bristol and hauled out for a final polishing of the bronze underbody.

It is likely that Endeavour also will be hauled out Tuesday. The boat has not been out of water since it was pulled up on shore following arrival here after the Atlantic crossing. Endeavour will need more scrubbing down of her steel under-water surface than Rainbow requires.

After Rainbow was at its mooring late this afternoon Vanderbilt was asked about the article of Maj. B. Heckstall Smith, an English yachting writer, who insinuated that the cup rules had been violated in the construction of Rainbow. He said he felt he should not dignify it with a reply.

WEAVER TURNS BACK BRAVES IN FIRST BATTLE

4 Pitchers Fail in Afterpiece.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 9.—The Cubs supported Jim Weaver in the accomplishment of a 4 to 1 victory in the first game of a double-header with the Boston Braves today. Then, having thus protected their record of not having lost a double-header this year, they went into repose, suffering a 11 to 1 spanking at the hands of Huck Betts.

The first game was the eighth the Cubs have won from the Braves this year and the second contest was the twelfth they have lost to the Boston-ians. The Chicagoans, by splitting even, gained a half game on the Giants, whom they trail by 7½ games, but they went farther back into third place and are now 2½ games behind the second place Cards.

Weaver Does Well.

In the first game, Weaver held the Braves to one single in the first inning, but was replaced by Tinning when he showed signs of tiring in the seventh. The deciding run was Bill Jurges' home run in the fifth inning, though the Cubs subsequently made two unearned runs for good measure.

The second game was decided in the first inning when Berger knocked a home run off Bush, his 32d of the year, with two runners on base. Later on Berger knocked two doubles and a single and drew a pass. He scored four runs and figured in the production of four others. Pinkey Whitney also had a good time in the second game. He made a homer and a triple, besides drawing a pass. The homer came with two on.

The Cubs used four pitchers, Bush, Malone, Root and Lefty Charley Weidemeyer, fresh from the sandlots. Charles showed as much skill as any of his three more experienced brethren.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs made their first run, as well as their first hit, in the fourth inning. Hack led off with a single and was forced by Billy Herman. Billy reached second while Urbanski was throwing out Cuyler. Then Babe Herman was given an intentional pass. Stainback singled to center, Billy Herman scoring and Babe Herman taking third. Thompson made what Boston observers proclaimed the best catch of the year when he leaped against the screen in right field to grab Hartnett's 411 foot drive.

Errors Help Cubs.

Jurges' eighth home run of the year, a 400 foot shot into the center field bleachers, accounted for the second Cub run with one out in the fifth.

The usually steady Billy Urbanski helped the Chicagoans in the manufacture of two runs in the seventh by committing two errors. Grimm was safe on Urbanski's fumble and stopped at second on Jurges' single to center. Weaver forced Grimm at third, then Hack batted a double play ball to Urbanski, who threw it into right field, Jurges scoring. Weaver reaching third and Hack second. Weaver scored on Billy Herman's fly to Berger.

Tinning Stops Braves.

The aforesaid single by Thompson in the third inning was the only hit made off Weaver prior to the seventh.

Thompson's single in the third inning was the only hit made off Weaver prior to the seventh. Lee, however, led off the seventh with a single to center and went to third when McManus caromed a single off Billy Herman's shins. Weaver fanned Whitney for the second successive time, then Hogan popped to Jurges.

Jordan batted for Frankhouse and singled, Lee scoring and McManus stopping at second. When Weaver walked Urbanski, filling the bases, he was relieved by Tinning, who made Thompson bounce to Hack to end the seventh.

SECOND GAME

The Braves were just a bit rough on Bush and his goose ball in the first inning of the second game. McManus walked with one out and stopped at third on Thompson's double to right center. Berger then hit the sign board back of the top of the left field bleach-

Babe Ruth Finds Lost Year; He Is Only 39, Not 40

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Babe Ruth has found a year he lost decades ago.

Ruth, who thought he reached 40 years of age last Feb. 6, said today that while rummaging up data recently for a passport application he discovered his birth date was Feb. 6, 1895. For years, he said, he had listed the year of his birth as 1894.

Ruth suffered a minor injury today and was taken out of the Yankee lineup during a double-header with the St. Louis Browns. The Babe, running out a two base hit in the first game, began limping as he turned into the second base line and a few minutes later left the field, limping badly on his left leg. X-ray pictures will be taken to determine if the injury is more serious than a charley horse.

LONDOS THROWS PLUMMER AND HE STAYS THROWN

Body Slam Puts Away Champ's Opponent.

Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestling champion, wound up his stay at his training camp at Renahan's Lodge, Round Lake, yesterday, with a long defensive workout against the expected attacks of Ed [Strangler] Lewis at Wrigley field Sept. 20.

Today will be an off day for the champion. Tomorrow he will move into the Mid-West Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue, where he will remain until his title defense against Lewis.

Plummer Is Injured.

While the greater part of Londos' work at Round Lake was devoted to defensive tactics, it was costly to Lou Plummer, 245-pound training mate of the champion, who was carried from the mat with a badly strained back and neck, suffered when Londos picked him up and smashed him to the ring floor with a vicious body slam.

Plummer recovered consciousness in ner by the title-holder because of his physical resemblance to Lewis, had been working with Jimmy in a series of headlocks. Suddenly Londos turned to the offensive from a headlock, took a crotch and body hold on Plummer and, whirling him high in the air, smashed him to the mat.

Plummer relovered consciousness in a short time, but was under the care of a physician last night.

Lewis' Holds Fail.

Bob Bruns, a Lincoln park life guard, gave the champion a hard workout. Jim permitted Bruns to get behind him and use the body and arm holds that Lewis uses, but Londos' uncanny sense of balance and leverage offset the position handicap and Bruns was unable to get far with the grips. Bruns weighs 208 pounds.

Dick Raines, Texas giant, another mat behemoth who resembles Lewis in size and strength, went out on the mat with the Greek instructed by Manager Ed White to use only the headlock. If Lewis expects to beat Londos with this clamp, his training worries would be increased if he could have seen Londos toss the huge Raines around. Bracing himself with his hands on his knees, Londos was able to throw Raines the width of the ring, simply with his head and neck muscles.

Bauer Tests Grips.

Hans Bauer, burly German, scaling 225 pounds, was the last of the workers to go to the mat with Londos. His instructions were to resist everything Londos had. He followed them closely and it was only after Londos had turned him over and applied a double toe hold, that threatened not only Bauer's ankles, but his back, that the German issued a yelp for help. Bauer is a veteran who has wrestled Lewis many times and for years was a member of the Lewis camp before important matches.

After the workout yesterday, Londos weighed 203 pounds, still seven pounds under the mark he has set for his poundage when he gets into the ring with the Strangler. He is tanned to a dark brown and appears to have every bit of energy that a well-trained champion should possess.

185 Golfers to Open Play in U. S. Amateur

Course Is Soft.

The country club course has been softened by rain, particularly by the heavy shower last night, but today's sun and wind was expected to dry it out sufficiently for a good start at 8:30 tomorrow morning, when Charles Reckner of Mount Airy, Pa., and Sayre McLeod of Convent, N. J., step up for the first match.

One of the quirks of tournament draws, brings together tomorrow two names which have been bracketed before—Francis Ouimet and Bobby Jones. This, of course, is not the Bobby Jones, who was always getting in Ouimet's way, but he's a fine young golfer nevertheless. He's Robert Carpenter Jones Jr. of Detroit, Mich., who was runner-up in this year's Western Junior tourney at Hinsdale, Ill.

Best Round 68.

Mark Stuart of Stapleton, N. Y., former Metropolitan champion, headed the scorers in today's few practice rounds, shooting a 68, three under par. Other trial spins included Johnny Goodman, 1932 runner-up and 1933 open champion, 70; Scotty Campbell, Canadian champion, 70; Tommy Goodwin of Monroe, N. Y., 71; Little, 71; Billy Howell, 72; Somerville, 73; Egan, 72; Herron, 76; John Lehman of Chicago, 75; Charley Kocis of Detroit, 72.

Five of the 18 from the Chicago district drew first round byes, including Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, Winfield Day of Elmhurst, and Wilferd Wehrle of Racine, Wis., who tied for the Chicago medal; Al Anderegen of Lincoln Park, and Steve Williams of Evanston. Tomorrow's pairings for the 13 others follow:

Billy Sixty, Milwaukee, vs. Fred Haas Jr., New Orleans.

Dick Ashley, Kenosha, Wis., vs. Jack Cameron, Montreal.

Chick Evans, Edgewater, vs. Crawford Rainwater, Atlanta, Ga.

Lyn Lardner, Wauwatosa, Wis., vs. J. W. Grange, Haverford, Pa.

OAK PARK PLAYS WESTERNS.

SMITTY—In the Bag

Commission Will Examine Lewis, Londos

Principals in the charity athletic show to be presented under the auspices of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at Wrigley field Sept. 20 will appear at the Illinois Athletic commission this afternoon at 1 o'clock for physical examinations.

It will mark the first time Jim Londos, world heavyweight wrestling champion, and Ed [Strangler] Lewis, who will meet in a title contest in the windup, will have seen each other since the last of their 14 previous matches 10 years ago at St. Louis. These bouts, all of which Lewis says he won, have been the basis for Ed's pursuit of Londos and a title chance since 1928.

Lewis May Be Surprised.

The unofficial meeting between the two 10 days before their scheduled one fall encounter, with a 90 minute time limit, may bring a surprise to Lewis when he sees the champion. Since their last bout, Londos has put on 30 pounds. He now weighs close to 200.

King Levinsky and Art Sykes, who clash in a 10 round supporting match, also will see each other for the first time today at the commission.

Hayden [Young] Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, matched against Solly Dukelsky for eight rounds, and Ed [Don] George, former wrestling titleholder, who will wrestle Jim McMillen in a 30 minute bout, will be the only ones missing at the commission. Stuhley is booked to leave by airplane at noon for Pittsburgh, where he meets Al Salbano on the Vince Dundee-Teddy Yarosz 160 pound championship card tomorrow.

Fireworks May Pop.

The appearance of Leo Rodak and Everett [Young] Rightmire, featherweight rivals, is bound to stir up some fireworks by Tommy O'Loughlin, manager of Rightmire. Everett, who will box Rodak 10 rounds, has compromised on 128 pounds. Reports that Leo cannot make this weight may bring a demand from O'Loughlin that he get on the scales. The general opinion among fans is that Rodak is fast becoming a lightweight.

Bus Breese, Manhattan, Kas., lightweight, and Jackie Sharkey will meet in the 10 round bout of Promoter Maurice Rivkin's show tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Other matches:

Frank Mirabal vs. Bobby O'Dowd [6], 122.
Virgil Bemi vs. Steve Padon [5], 138.
Willie Dudlack vs. Sammy Guidara [4], 120.
Willie Ross vs. Young Kid Chocolate [4], 130.
Zack Malkov vs. Rudy Kay [wrestling].

Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, of the American Legion will present a card tonight at Edward Hines hospital. Radio stars will perform between bouts. The program includes:

Frank Klocz vs. Sam Alfano [3], 150.
Sammy Zaczek vs. John Franiak [3], 118.
Stanley Hnek vs. Stan Sivovar [3], 190.

Johnny Phagan, Tommy Corbett, John Pacek, Frank Sigilio, and Earl Mastro also will appear as boxers and referees.

Johnny Stanton, Minneapolis, and Gene Higgins, Chicago, will clash in the eight round main event tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. The balance of the card:

Joey Esposito vs. Harry Booker [5], 138.
Spud Kelly vs. Georgie Trapp [4], 147.
Ed Jackson vs. Jackie Dallas [4], 133.
Ace Kristoff vs. Jim Brown [4], 150.

KLADNO SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS ALL-STARS, 4 TO 0

The S. K. Kladno soccer team of Kladno, Czechoslovakia, defeated an all-star team of Chicago players, 4 to 0, yesterday at Sparta stadium before a crowd of 9,000. Junek and Novy each scored two goals for the Czechs. The Kladnos last week defeated the Sparta, 9 to 0, at Soldiers' field in the first game of their American tour.

Sima and Byrd Each Win 3 Events in Bicycle Derby

Hank Sima, Illinois champion, yesterday won three events in the bicycle derby held under the auspices of the Southtown Sportsmen club at the Sherman park course. Al Byrd also scored a triple. Eddie Schroeder, holder of several world records in ice skating, starred in the service bike race. More than 200 amateur riders from nine clubs competed in the twelve events.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

LONDOS AND LEWIS.

JUST how the two greatest wrestlers in the world will act on the mat at Wrigley field the night of Sept. 20 when their purpose is a "contest," not an "exhibition," is what intrigues The Wake concerning the Londos-Lewis title fray.

Because of years of personal enmity, rich financial rewards to the victor in the future, there is every reason to believe this bout will be, in truth, a "contest," with every effort devoted to the primary thought of winning rather than to merely pleasing the spectators. The last time we saw a mat bout in which we felt sure similar conditions prevailed, at least so far as Gotch was concerned, was when Frank Gotch defeated George Hackenschmidt at White Sox park two decades ago.

We always have looked somewhat askance at the grappling art, if it be an art. Those fancy spins, bridges, broken holds, grimaces, and groans which attract crowds seem an insult to one's intelligence, if viewed as sincere attempts to win as soon as possible. Therefore when we attend the usual mat bouts, we go from curiosity or to be entertained and accept the issue on that basis.

Promoters, if you know them well, will admit that most wrestling bouts are staged to please the crowd. They maintain the better man wins in nearly all instances with no more actual chicanery than in any other sport or business. But the better man, according to their admission, seldom wins as soon as he can. Instead, he "carries" his opponent, as ring parlance has it, meantime treating the onlookers to acrobatics and ground and lofty tumbling.

In justification of such tactics, a chap who has devoted his entire life to promoting bouts said to The Wake: "We've got to interest the people so they'll come back again. Many would walk out if two chaps wrestled to win from the bell. I don't say this would be true of championship bouts, but we can't hold championship bouts often, while we do have to keep busy our big stables of wrestlers. So the public really enjoys better shows when a little fancy exhibition work is put on before the fall. I see nothing wrong with it so long as the best man wins."

Knowledge of such conditions, no doubt, is what causes our state athletic commission to differentiate between contests and exhibitions. It was loath to recognize wrestling as a sport in the first place. However, bouts were being held and crowds were being attracted, so it was better to have it under some sort of supervised control. Hence the "exhibition" expedient. The Londos-Lewis match officially is a contest.

What promoters say in justification of their usual methods probably is true so far as attracting spectators is concerned. But we like to take our sport seriously, convinced that it is on the up and up. That's one reason we seldom attend "rassiin" affairs, unless the result is important enough to the principals so one is reasonably sure they are not risking chance of victory for purposes of showmanship.

In this bout a week from Thursday night Jim Londos is champion. That title means thousands of dollars to him in bouts—"exhibitions" perhaps our state commission would call them—all over the country. Strangler Lewis, who has held the title, lost it through a circuitous route which did not involve meeting Londos, wants it back with its financial emoluments. To gain this chance he sacrifices all participation in receipts to Londos. He will get for his effort approximately his training expenses. Only by victory can he obtain financial reward.

All these factors, plus precautions of the state athletic commission, convince us despite our normal suspicions that the present title bout will be decided on its merits as quickly as it is possible for either contestant to so decide it. That's why we are so anxious to observe just what tactics of offense and defense will be displayed by such experienced masters as Londos and Lewis.

Even if we did not have this real interest, we'd attend because the bout will be talked about for years afterward. It is the most important bout since the Gotch-Hackenschmidt affair of more than 20 years ago.

Harvey: At the recent All-Star-Bears game we sat in the center of a group of sweet collegians, male and female. As the Edison post lined up immediately in front of us, one of the sweet things asked her escort who were those men in uniform. Her escort replied: "They belong to the Legion." "What legion?" she asked and be admitted, "I don't know."

WINS GOLF TROPHY.

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—By defeating Pete Johnston of Moline, 1 up, here today in the 36 hole final for the Black Hawk Hills club championship, A. H. Gadient, Rock Island, won permanent possession of the trophy.

Ross, M'Larnin Resume Their Training Grind

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The task of reconditioning themselves for their thrice postponed welterweight title bout was begun today by Barney Ross, the champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, but in different ways. They are to fight fifteen rounds Saturday night in Madison Square Garden's bowl in Long Island City unless unfavorable weather again calls a halt.

Ross worked out at Stillman's gymnasium, exercising the equivalent of seven rounds. Four rounds were devoted to sparring, Ross alternating a round each against Al Cassimini and Jimmy Murray. The other three rounds consisted of calisthenics, Ross appeared to feel the effects of the three postponements and was sluggish in his sparring.

McLarnin abandoned a plan to work out at the Pioneer gymnasium in favor of a day at golf. None criticized him for electing to enjoy the sun after three days of gloomy weather. Furthermore, McLarnin has the edge on the champion in available training time, for he has at his disposal a full week, whereas, because of the Jewish holidays, Ross has only three days. McLarnin is rating his resumption of training accordingly. Ross will not be able to resume work until Wednesday.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Pittsburgh, 13; Cincinnati, 0.
Green Bay, 28; Fort Atkinson, 7.
Chicago Bears, 41; Chicago Tigers, 0.
New York, 28; New Rochelle, 6.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 9.—(AP)—A dazzling air game and a pair of field goals—one by the 37 year old Mose Kelsch — today gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 13 to 0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the opening game of the National Professional Football league.

The Pirates, specializing in spectacular double passes that thrilled the 14,164 shirt sleeved fans, made nine first downs to six by the Reds.

Little Jimmy Clark, ex-Pitt full back, scored the only touchdown of the game in the second period.

BEARS ROUT TIGERS

The Chicago Bears, champions of the National Professional league, who recently were held to a scoreless tie by the College All-Stars at Soldiers' field, yesterday unleashed their full offensive against the Chicago Tigers to triumph, 41 to 0.

Coach George Halas substituted freely through the contest, which was held at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue. The steady stream of fresh men wore down the Tigers, over whom the Bears had a marked advantage at all stages of the battle.

CARDS' VETERANS WIN

The Chicago Cardinals' veterans were a little too strong for their teammates, the young college stars, and won the intrasquad game at Loyola stadium yesterday, 12 to 7.

Bill Smith, Washington university end who starred in the All-Star game against the Bears, scored the touchdown for the newcomers. Paul Pardonner, who was captain of the college stars yesterday, then kicked the extra point. Hinchman of the veterans made a spectacular 70 yard run for a touchdown in the second quarter.

PACKERS TRIUMPH, 28-7

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Scoring in each period, the Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football league opened their season today with a 28 to 7 victory over the Fort Atkinson [Wis.] Blackhawks in a nonleague game. The Packers scored on a Blackhawk fumble in the first quarter; on a series of line bucks in the second; on a fumble in the third, and then marched 80 yards to a touchdown in the final quarter.

PIRATES WHIP GIANTS, 1 TO 0, ON SUHR'S HOMER

Long Drive in Ninth Ends Pitching Duel.

New York, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Larry French, star left hander of the Pittsburgh Pirates, cut a slice off the Giants' National league lead today when he blanked the world's champions with five hits while Gus Suhr hit his 12th home run of the season in the ninth inning to give Pittsburgh a 1 to 0 victory.

French scored his second victory over the league leaders in five starts by outpitching Fred Fitzsimmons in a keenly contested pitchers' battle. Fitzsimmons yielded seven hits and passed three, while French gave only one walk and hits his opponent with a pitched ball.

During the first eight innings only two runners got as far as third base, as the Pirates collected only five hits and never made more than one an inning. In the ninth after Suhr won the game with his homer Tom Padden hit a double. Score:

DODGERS WIN PAIR.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds scored no runs and only five hits in a double-header today, and the Brooklyn Dodgers won a double victory, 5 to 0 and 3 to 0.

Ray Benge held the Reds to two singles shutting them out in the opener and Van Mungo permitted only three hits in the second game. Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 9.—(AP)—St. Louis defeated the Phillies in a double header today. Paul Dean outpitched Euel Moore and Austin Moore to win the first, 6 to 1. It was the first Sunday double header in major league history in Philadelphia. The second game was called in the eighth because of the 6 o'clock curfew law. Dean hung up his 15th conquest of the year, permitting the Phils only four hits and fanning ten men. Scores:

FRITZ CRISLER, Princeton football coach, in a recent interview named Red Grange and the late Walter Eckersall as the greatest back field men in football history. . . . He picked Grange as the best of the half backs and Eckie as the leader of quarter backs. . . . Each was given a place ahead of Jim Thorpe in Crisler's hall of fame. . . . Athletics at the University of California returned a profit of $102,842 for the year ending May 31, 1934. . . . This is an increase of $74,552 over the previous 12 months. . . . The surplus was used to clear debts incurred in the construction of a basketball pavilion, a baseball diamond, and a running track. . . . Warren Wright's 3 year old Hadagal will be off the track the rest of the season because he ran away 3½ miles the other morning after engaging in a speedy mile training gallop. . . . The energy he expended in the runaway took him off racing edge, according to Trainer Bert Williams. . . . Hadagal will be pointed for the $100,000 handicap to be run at Santa Anita Park, California, late in February. . . .

Sox Win, 11-3, Then Lose to Senators, 2-1

Gaston inadvertently threw the home run ball in the fourth inning and complications ensued to the extent of two runs. Harris opened the inning with a drive into the left field seats. Shulte did the same thing after two were out. This put the Sox behind by one run but was properly adjusted when Bonura stepped up in the fifth and planted his 24th homer of the season in the left field stand.

The 3 to 3 deadlock remained until the seventh when two runs grew from an assault in which Bonura, Simmons, and Hayes participated. Simmons opened with a single to center and scored on Bonura's double to the same sector. Appling was thrown out, but Hayes doubled and Bonura scored.

Gaston was retired in the eighth before the Sox got started on the matter of tormenting Thomas, who had replaced Weaver. Swanson walked and took third on a double by Conlan. A pass to Simmons filled the bags. Bonura singled to right, scoring Swanson and Conlan. Big hearted Tommy refilled the bags by walking Appling. Hayes poped out, whereupon Hopkins furnished the choice item of the battle, a homer into the left field seats good for four runs.

SECOND GAME

Being limited to one hit by Gallivan in the first four innings didn't prevent the Senators from picking up a run. They did this in the third when Kerr survived on a fumble by Hopkins, moved to second when McColl walked, and went the rest of the distance on Bluege's single to left. Washington clung to this slim advantage until the home fourth. Simmons was safe at first on a wide throw by Myer, moved up on a single by Bonura, and went home with the tying run on Hayes' hit which took a freak hop just as Bluege was about to grab it.

The second hit off Gallivan appeared in the fifth. Bluege also was the author of this, but it came with two out and Myer fanned, after Stone had walked.

Then the Sox put on a flurry in their half but were unfortunate enough to have Bluege turn in a sparkling play on a grounder that meant something. Swanson singled to right with one out, Conlan flied to right, and Simmons singled to center, Swanson going to third. Bonura banged a hard drive over second, but Bluege raced back of the bag, smothered the ball and tossed backhanded to Myer to force Simmons.

Susko nicked Gallivan for a fluke infield hit in the ninth, making the third by the Senators, but there was nothing phoney about the two drives that clinched the decision for them in the tenth. Bluege started it with a single to center, went to second on Stone's bunt, and to third on an infield out. Then Harris doubled to center to send in the needed run.

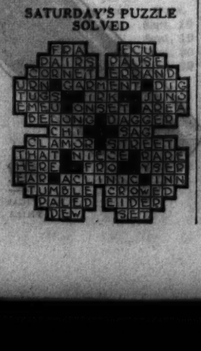
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Indian Sign

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Gridmen at Notre Dame will practice this fall to martial music specially written for them by Roy Shield, music director of NBC in Chicago. Coach Elmer Layden will institute this musical experiment to teach his teams rhythm and coördination when he opens the season's practice at Cartier field next Monday. The University band will meet this week with Mr Shield to rehersе the football music. Shield suggested the grid music idea after watching the Notre Dame team in action last year. He was impressed with the rhythmic bark of the quarter back and noted the precision and rhythm that preceded each play. Layden and Shield went into a huddle Layden hipped and hopped demonstrating the Notre Dame shift to the radio composer. Out of this grew the "Notre Dame Shift" composition.

The Hall of Fame, presenting dance orchestras during the summer season has engaged an impressive lineup of big league talent for its fall series opening Sept. 30 over NBC. First show will feature Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland of the movies. Others already signed are Ethel Waters and the Hall Johnson choir, Lucrezia Bori, Doc Rockwell and Variety show. At Christmas time Walt Disney, who was a smash hit on this program last year will make a guest appearance.

The first liquor program in the Chicago area goes on the air over KYW at 10:15 Friday, Sept 19. Entitled the All Star Revue, it will feature Dorothy Adams, contralto, the Campus Trio and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Neither of the major networks accept liquor accounts.

Lum and Abner's white swayback hoss that could only run in the rain was officially christened last night over W-G-N when the names of winners of the contest were announced. The nag was named "Drizzle Whiz," the moniker being the suggestion of Frank J. Kirtz, 541 N. Central Park avenue. Mr. Kirtz, who is 74 years old, received a prize of $100.

Discussing taxicabing in Europe on landing from his trip abroad Andy [Charlie Correll] declared: "In London it's still a business; in Paris it's a riot; in Venice it's still floating along."

Mary Pickford, who has decided to try radio at about $6,000 a broadcast, arrived in Chicago yesterday from New York. She will leave by train tonight for the west coast to assemble the cast and begin rehersals for her first show, which is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 3, over WMAQ-NBC.

Annette Hanshaw will get $1,400 a week on the CBS cigaret program for two appearances. On Capt. Henry's Showboat her salary is said to have been $250. Annette doesn't care whether smoke gets in her eyes!

FINDS GAS THAT HEAT OF A HAND WILL BLOW UP

Deadly in Action as War Weapon.

Cleveland, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Discovery of a new war gas, which can be exploded by the heat of the hand, was announced to the American Chemical society tonight on the eve of its eighty-eighth meeting.

The gas is an entirely new chemical substance. It was found accidentally by scientists exploring in one of the rarer fields of chemistry with fluorine, one of the most "reactive" of explosive substance known on earth.

As a war gas it is only "potential," for by agreement chemists and governments alike are not seeking directly for new destructive gases. Industrially, tonight's report stated, the new stuff promises to open a wide field of possible usefulness.

The vicious infant gas was born dramatically on a May 4 last in the laboratories of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It made known its precence by exploding in a flask held in the hand of Dr. George H. Cady then an instructor at the institute, now with the United States Rubber company at Passaic, N. J.

Fluorine belongs to the same chemical family as chlorine, a war gas. Chlorine is green, while fluorine is lemon-yellow. In the same family are bromine, a brown gas which is now mixed with some high test gasolines, and iodine.

"The new compound," said Dr. Cady's report, "is made of nitrogen, fluorine and oxygen. The proportions are three atoms of oxygen and one each of nitrogen and fluorine. [Fluorine always has been known as extremely difficult, if not impossible, to combine with oxygen.]

"When a small amount of the compound is inhaled, one starts to cough, and a deep breath, even of fresh air, taken after a coughing spell produces still greater irritation in the lungs. In this respect the gas is something like phosgene.

"Effective utilization of the gas in chemical warfare depends on overcoming the dangers of handling."

EX-HEAD OF N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM IS DEAD AT 86

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Rensselaer Havens Bissell, former head of the New York Stock exchange firm of R. H. Bissell & Co., died today in the Harbor hospital at the age of 86. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Elliot S. Benedict, and two sisters, Mrs. Legrand Lockwood of New York and Mrs. Theodore Cuyler Patterson of Philadelphia.

Few men have held a seat on the New York Stock exchange longer than did Mr. Bissell. At the time of his retirement in December, 1925, he had been a member continuously for fifty years. He was known in Wall street for his large number of friends and for his wit.

Starting in "the street" as an employé of Lockwood & Co., private bankers and brokers, one of the largest houses of its day, he purchased his exchange membership a few years later and established his own firm.

WILLIAM F. DUNN, KNOWN TO POLICE AS GUNMAN, DIES

William F. [Sonny] Dunn, who in years past was well known to the police as a gunman and gangster, died Saturday at the Michael Reese hospital. He was 42 years old.

Dunn was the brother-in-law of "Mossy" Enright, who was shot and killed in a labor feud in 1920. Friends say he died penniless.

In 1912 Dunn was sentenced to the penitentiary for manslaughter. He escaped once, was recaptured and, after serving out his term, was paroled. Although he was arrested on many occasions after that, the police were never able to obtain a second conviction.

Physician's Home Looted of Instruments and Drugs

Dr. S. F. Przygocki, 4868 Warner avenue, staf physician at the Belmont hospital, returned from his summer home at Wauconda, Ill., last night to find that his home had been burglarized. In addition to taking a quantity of his household furnishings, and jewelry valued at $750, the thieves stole all the doctor's surgical instruments, medicines, narcotics, and first aid equipment, Dr. Przygocki told the police.

DIVERS STRUGGLE TO RAISE BOW OF GOLD CARRIER

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 9.—(AP)—On the ocean floor, 190 feet beneath the surface, grotesquely clad men grappled in the slime of Stephens' passage to put lines around the barnacle-encrusted bow section of the treasure ship Islander, wrecked 33 years ago. It is hoped to bring the hulk ashore to be searched for whatever gold it may contain. The after-part was reclaimed several months ago, with the resultant finding of $500,000 in Klondike gold.

Now it is hoped to raise the severed bow, where affidavits said $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 was stored when the vessel put out from Skagway on its last voyage, with the gold in stout wooden boxes that might have rotted away, but the salvors believe the treasure, gold dust, and nuggets could be panned from the débris and silt.

For that reason, Frank Curtis, Seattle house mover, who is directing the salvage operations, is proceeding cautiously in grappling for the remains of the wreck. If the bow section is found upright, Curtis believes it will contain a considerable quantity in gold.

Only a small amount of the gold from the pokes of prospectors was recovered in previous operations, because the superstructure of the vessel was carried away before the afterpart of the hulk was beached. Old timers who talked with survivors said, too, that many of the miners had claimed their pokes after the Islander struck a submerged rock, tied them to their money belts, jumped overboard and had been pulled to the bottom by the weight of their gold. Seventy-two perished in the disaster.

DETAILS OF BIG U. S. FINANCING OPERATION TOLD

Over 1¾ Billion Up for Exchange.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today launched the biggest and most crucial government financing operation since the coming of the New Deal, the refinancing of 1 billion 775 million dollars' worth of treasury securties on Sept. 15.

Involving a critical test of the government's credit, the refinancing, as announced by Secretary Morgenthau, will require the flotation by the treasury of three new issues of securities. These new obligations will be exchanged for 1 billion 250 million dollars' worth of called Liberty bonds and 525 million dollars' worth of maturing treasury certificates. The new securities on Sept. 15.

1. An issue of treasury bonds bearing 3¼ per cent interest. The bonds will mature in 1946 and will be callable any time after 1944. These bonds will be issued only in exchange for the Fourth Liberty loan bonds which the treasury has called for redemption on Oct. 15.

Matures in Four Years.

2. An issue of treasury notes bearing 2½ per cent interest and maturing in four years. These notes, like the new bonds, will be issued only in exchange for the called Fourth Liberty loan bonds.

3. A second series of notes bearing 1½ per cent interest and maturing in two years. These notes will be issued only in exchange for the 525 million dollars' worth of treasury certificates which are to mature on Sept. 15.

Neither the new bonds nor either series of new notes will be sold for cash. They will be issued only in exchange for maturing treasury obligations as outlined above.

The fourth Liberty Loan bonds, which have been called for redemption on Oct. 15 and which the treasury is now offering to refund into the new bonds or into four year notes, are those with serial numbers ending with 2 or 8. In the case of permanent coupon bonds these serial numbers will be preceded by the distinguishing letters B and H, respectively.

Will Pay in Cash.

Unless the called bonds are refunded by their holders now, the treasury will pay them off in cash on Oct. 15 out of its huge cash balance. About one-third of the bonds are believed by the treasury to be held by small investors. The rest are understood to be owned by banks. Banks hold all the maturing certificates.

The refinancing plan disclosed by Morgenthau implies the first admission by the New Dealers that government credit is being weakened by their spending and money experimentation. The refinancing was unusual in three respects, all of which show that the treasury, which has been faced with a steady decline in the value of its securities during recent weeks, was forced to adopt extraordinary measures in order to accomplish its ends.

First and most significant is the fact that the treasury conceded the impossibility of refinancing all the called Liberty bonds into new long term bonds. The treasury was forced to offer as an alternative exchange proposition the four year notes. Outstanding issues of treasury bonds have been declining steadily in value, and the banks are reported to have told the New Dealers flatly that they would not take another issue of treasury long term securities in view of uncertainty over the government's future monetary and budgetary plans.

Ultimatum of Banks.

This ultimatum from the banks is understood to have been handed the treasury both at a recent meeting of Federal Reserve bank governors and at conferences which treasury officials held with bankers in New York. It is believed to have produced much of President Roosevelt's recent impatience over federal finances, and it marks the first rebellion of the investing community against the New Deal's lavish spending and monetary manipulations.

A second unusual feature in the refinancing is the special inducement which the treasury held out in an effort to get investors to accept the new 3¼ per cent bonds. The treasury is offering to pay to any holder of a called Liberty bond who will take a new treasury bond the full 4¼ per cent interest carried by the Liberty bond. This 4¼ per cent will be paid up to Oct. 15, even though the old bond is turned in.

7½ Per Cent for Month.

At the same time the treasury will pay the investor the 3¼ per cent which the new bond carries. Thus for the month of Sept. 15-Oct. 15 the Fourth Liberty bondholder who accepts one of the new bonds will draw interest at the rate of 7½ per cent per year, 4¼ on his old bond and 3¼ on the new one. This device of double interest payments has not been resorted by the treasury since 1927.

The third unusual feature is the high interest rates which the treasury is offering, all of them well above the interest rates prevailing in the money market on Saturday.

Bond Market Eyes Action of U. S. Liens

New York, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The gyrations of United States government securities held the attention of the listed bond market during the last week, while corporation loans were all but neglected.

After the Labor day recess the liquidation of federal issues became quite general, with the selling on Tuesday and Wednesday bringing some of the most pronounced declines in this section in more than a month.

The tide apparently was stemmed on Thursday, however, following announcement by the controler of the currency that, hereafter, the fully guaranteed Home Owners' Loan and Federal Farm Mortgage issues could be included by national banks in their condition statements with direct obligations of the government. These bonds, which had been under the most severe pressure, rallied sharply and the treasuries firmed sympathetically. While some irregularity subsequently developed, the renewed selling appeared to be well absorbed. Firmness of international dollar rates was also said to have aided the recovery.

Fear New Inflation.

The liquidating move in governments was attributed by dealers largely to out-of-town institutions and individuals, most of whom sold because of uncertainties regarding the forthcoming treasury financing and fears that, due to the lag in business and industry generally, some new inflationary step might be taken by the administration.

In support of the theory that the major part of the selling in the federals came from the interior, financial observers pointed out that the large banks usually conduct their operations in governments in the "over-the-counter" market, while out-of-town banks and individuals usually buy or sell through the stock exchange.

Of Little Significance.

While the New York banks showed a decline of some $17,000,000 in their holdings of government issues during the week, this was not an exceptional drop when their portfolios are considered as a whole. There was no change in the reserve system's holdings. The "over-the-counter" market, at the same time, was comparatively dull.

Although most corporate bonds pointed lower, the lightness of trading in these divisions was such that the majority of price changes were meaningless. Many prime investment loans moved in a fractional range.

Despite some profit taking, South American issues were again the leading gainers in the foreign department.

TIME SCHEDULES ON PENNSYLVANIA TO BE CHANGED

With the rearrangement of its fall time table on Sept. 30, the Pennsylvania railroad will establish a new nineteen hour service between Chicago and New York, shorten the running time of certain trains, and provide more convenient hours of departure and arrival, the road announces. The Fort Dearborn, a completely air-conditioned train, will make the new nineteen hour run, leaving Chicago at 11:50 p. m. and arriving at New York at 7:50 p. m. in time for the theater.

The Gotham limited will leave Chicago at 10 p. m. instead of 9 p. m., arriving in New York at 6:30 p. m., which, with the abandonment of daylight saving, will be equivalent to 55 minutes' earlier arrival than at present.

The Broadway limited will continue on its 17¾ hour schedule, and the Rainbow, eastbound, will leave Chicago an hour later, with a corresponding later arrival in New York. The Pennsylvania limited, eastbound, will leave Chicago at 8 p. m., 45 minutes later than at present, and westbound it will leave New York at 1:35 p. m., arriving here 8:20 a. m., putting it on a 19¾ hour schedule.

The Southland, running between Chicago and Cincinnati, will have 20 minutes cut from its schedule, and the Detroit express, leaving here at 3:15 p. m., will give a 5½ hour service to the motor city.

25 YEAR MEN ON MILWAUKEE LINE WILL CELEBRATE

A quarter century of service for nearly 6,000 employés of the Milwaukee road will be signalized here Sept. 20 and 21 when 2,000 employés gather for the 1934 reunion of the veteran employés association.

J. M. [Johnny] Horan will head the delegation. Horan claims to be the oldest railroader in active service and to have the longest service record. Johnny does a full day's work each working day in the Milwaukee, Wis., shops. He is 96 and counts 79 years of service.

Business meetings, sight seeing, a banquet, and a visit to the World's Fair will occupy the time of delegates. H. A. Scandrett, president of the line; J. T. Gillick, vice president; H. H. Field, counsel, and other officers will address the veterans.

American Bankers' Group Journal to Change Name

The name of the American Bankers Association Journal will be changed to Banking, beginning with the October issue, it was announced yesterday in New York by F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the association.

WHEAT CLIMBS STEADILY; CASH DEMAND STRONG

Light Receipts, Flour Needs Are Factors.

Wheat prices rose steadily in Chicago last week as strong cash markets continued to dominate the picture. This was reflected particularly in action of the December future, which assumed leadership and pushed nearly 4 cents above the preceding Saturday.

Advancing cash premiums over futures prices, light receipts at terminal markets and an improved demand for flour dominated activity, although sporadic buying from the east, apparently reflecting momentary fears of further inflation, added its quota of support.

Simultaneously with signs that domestic consumption has caught up with the crop movement, the earliest for the season in the memory of even the oldest traders, was the notable circumstance that foreign markets have kept pace with those in the United States.

Winnipeg Market Higher.

This was particularly true of Winnipeg, which moved higher for the week despite the fact it was forced to absorb hedging pressure attendant with the peak movement to market of new crop wheat. Deliveries by farmers topped 3,000,000 bushels each day of the period.

Prices in the United States are still above a world parity but not high enough to permit imports at a profit. On the other hand, European breadstuff needs promise to be sufficient to absorb available stocks of wheat from both Argentina and Canada.

The drouth seems to have been broken over a large part of the American winter wheat belt. Plowing and seeding made rapid progress during the week and are expected to become more intensive this week. Considerable wheat, rye, and barley already have been planted.

Government Crop Report Awaited.

Traders are awaiting the government's crop report, which will be issued after the close today. No great change is anticipated in estimated wheat production, but many traders expect a reduction in the indicated corn output.

Canada will release its crop comments tomorrow. Heavy rains have retarded harvesting in the dominion and official as well as private reports indicate much more serious damage was suffered from recent frosts than was previously estimated.

Southern hemisphere crop conditions will soon become the dominating influence for world prices, as northern hemisphere production has been fairly accurately ascertained. This situation usually develops around Nov. 1. Receipts from the country will probably be small from now on and Canadian marketings will fall earlier than usual because of the advanced harvest this year.

Prices Hinge on Farm Selling.

Much of the future course of prices will depend on farm selling. If the interior considers present prices advantageous and new crop prospects are good it may take advantage of dollar wheat.

Oats, normally secondary in importance, are dominating the feed grain situation. Two successive short crops have resulted in actual scarcity. A leading processer in Chicago, which must have oats weighing at least 30 pounds per bushel, is said to be encountering difficulty in filling its needs, as most shipments grade below this weight. Number two white oats touched the 60 cent level in Chicago last week, the first time in six years.

Visible Stocks Are Low.

Visible stocks are now only half those of last year and interior points are already trying to secure supplies at terminal markets, an unusual situation.

The weekly range of the three leading speculative cereals, wheat, corn, and oats, compared with closing prices a week ago Saturday, follow:

WHEAT.

	High.	Low.	Sept. 8.	Sept. 1.

RYE.

	High.	Low.	Sept. 8.	Sept. 1.
September	$ .86⅞	$ .81⅞	$ .83¼	$ .82⅝

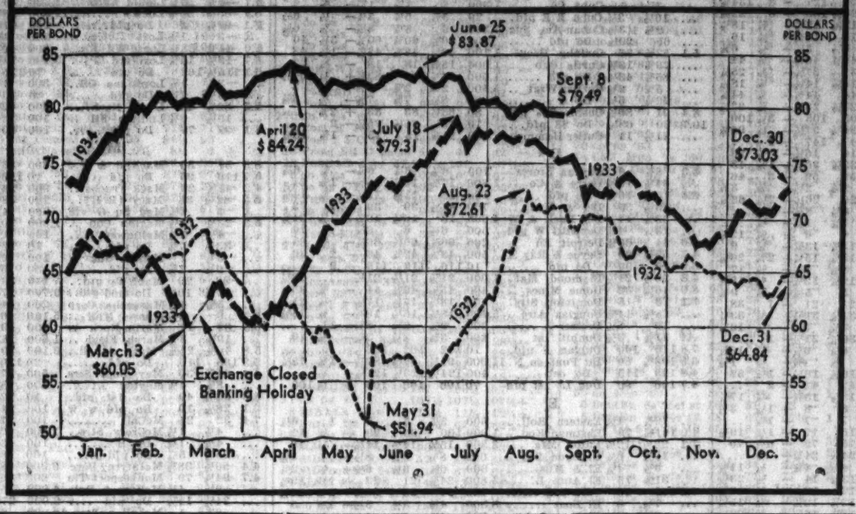
May	.92	.88	.89¼	.88⅝

Season's range—September, 88¼@52½c; December, 90⅞@65½c; May, 95⅝@88c.

In the corn market increasing visible supplies are limiting activity at times. Weather has ceased to be a factor, as rains or frost can have little effect from now on.

Average Daily Closing Prices of 40 Leading Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange



Steel Output Up Slightly After Holiday

Due to the suspension of operations on Labor day the rate of output in the steel industry eased ½ point to 18½ per cent of productive capacity, but a slight improvement in demand, too scattered to indicate a definite trend, has emerged since the holiday, says the magazine Steel.

Miscellaneous and seasonal purchasing caused an advance in sheet mill operations of 3 points to 20 per cent, while the plate mills, reflecting export sales, are 5 points higher at 40 per cent of productive capacity.

Output of automobiles during the week gained about 25 per cent to 40,000 units, on resumption by the Ford Motor company, but the aggregate for the week was still 12,000 units below the weekly output before shutting down for the holiday. Preparations for new models are generally indefinite.

Expect Delay in Upturn.

The opinion holds among steel producers that there will be no substantial recovery in the markets until after the fall elections or until the government policies are more clearly defined.

Structural shape awards for the week declined to 7,224 tons from the 15,790 tons of the preceding week. Chevrolet's assembly plant at Baltimore will require 5,000 tons of shapes, or about double the amount originally planned. There are large cast pipe orders pending from municipalities aided by government funds, but with no certainty that they will be awarded before winter.

The Pennsylvania railroad is inquiring for 10 to 15 locomotives, while it is reported a western road will enter the market this week for 1,000 freight cars. A freight car, specially constructed, that is five times lighter than the standard car and will carry ten tons more freight is being constructed by a leading carbuilder.

Districts Show Varying Declines.

Operations last week declined 2 points to 8 per cent in Pittsburgh, 4½ points to 23 per cent at Chicago, 3 points to 15½ per cent in eastern Pennsylvania, and 3 points to 23 per cent at Wheeling. Cleveland was 9 points higher at 24 per cent and Youngstown 5 points higher at 23 per cent. Detroit held at 77 per cent, New England at 25, and Buffalo at 19.

Steel ingot production in August at 1,363,359 tons was 7.4 per cent below July, with a daily average of 50,495 gross tons, being 14.3 per cent less than in July and the lowest since February, 1933. For the first eight months total output was 19,016,832 tons, compared with 14,906,311 a year ago.

Active blast furnace stacks on Aug. 31 were 13 lower at 61, while the loss in July was 18. Total pig iron output was 1,060,187 tons, a drop of 13.7 per cent from July and the lowest since May, 1933.

5-10 CENT STORE START 50 YEARS AGO CELEBRATED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Founding of the first five and ten cent store 50 years ago will be celebrated in this city tomorrow with the placing of a bronze plaque on the walls of the small store room which housed the original venture.

A dinner in the evening will bring together living associates of F. M. Kirby, who joined with F. W. and C. S. Woolworth to form the nucleus of the F. W. Woolworth company.

Kirby and the Woolworths started their business on Sept. 10, 1884. Each later branched out with a separate chain but all later came together in 1912, merging their interests and forming the present Woolworth concern.

CHICAGO COMMERCE GROUP FINDS TRADE GOOD IN LAST WEEK

Another period of good business was reported here last week by observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. A large number of merchandise buyers were in the market, and retailers were buying from Chicago wholesale houses on the strength of good August sales at home and cool weather, which points to continuation of satisfactory business.

World's Fair visitors and a volume of school purchases combined with local buying to give retail stores a good week.

One railroad reported an all-time record for passengers into Chicago on Sept. 2 and others also had heavy business. Rainy weather, however, slowed up out of town shoppers the first of the week.

Industrial reports were quiet, aside from one factory acquisition reported for expansion purposes.

20 National and 49 State Banks Opened in August

The American Banker reports there were 69 bank openings during August, of which 20 were national and 49 under state charter. This brought the openings so far in 1934 to 1,124, of which 379 were national and 745 state institutions.

$500,000 BONDS OF MILWAUKEE OFFERED TODAY

Offerings will be made today of $500,000 City of Milwaukee 4 per cent water works mortgage bonds by a group which includes Halsey, Stuart & Co.; Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood; A. G. Becker & Co., and Lawrence Stern & Co. at prices to yield from 3 per cent to 3.75 per cent, according to maturity. The bonds mature $26,000 annually from July 1, 1937, to 1949, and $27,000 annually from July 1, 1950, to 1955, inclusive. They are redeemable, wholly or in part, in inverse order of maturity at premiums depending upon date of call. The issue is a part of a total authorized issue of $3,675,000 water works mortgage bonds, none of which has been previously issued.

Bank Reports Earnings of Western Roads Gain

The principal railroads operating in the Pacific coast and mountain states are showing substantial increases in gross over last year, according to a special report made by the Bank of America [California]. Four transcontinental carriers, serving California, the report states, showed increases of 10.5 per cent in gross revenue and 8 per cent in net operating income for the late summer business over a comparable period last year.

Cost of Living Continues Rise During August

The upward trend of the cost of living continued through August on a rise of 0.6 per cent from July, the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference board, issued last night, declared. It showed that living costs of the wage earner were 3.5 per cent above the level a year ago, but 21 per cent below August, 1929.

Using 1923 as a base, the purchasing power of the dollar was 125.6 cents in August against 126.4 in July and 139.9 in April, 1933.

Foods Rise Rapidly.

Food prices moved up more rapidly than other commodities in August. The rise was 1.7 per cent over July, and 4.8 per cent above than a year ago. Food costs are figured as one-third of the family budget.

Rents, figured at one-fifth of the budget, rose 1.1 per cent, bringing housing costs to a level 3.5 per cent higher than 12 months ago but 29.9 per cent below August, 1929.

Clothing prices increased .3 per cent to place them 10.3 per cent over a year ago, but 22.4 under August, 1929. The rise since last year was greater in men's furnishings, 14.8 per cent, while women's clothing went up only 5.7 per cent. The former recorded a larger rise than any item listed in the conference board report.

Gas and Light Steady.

Gas and electricity were at the same level, but coal was up 1 per ent from July to make it 6.1 per cent above last August and 5.7 per cent under five years ago. The fuel and light average increase over July was .6 per cent.

Sundries, estimated at 80 per cent of the family expenses, showed the only decline, .2 per cent. Tobacco price declines were credited for this fact.

214 COMPANIES ASK SECURITY REGISTRATION

Applications for registration with the securities and exchange commission have been received from 214 of the 351 companies now listing securities on the Chicago Stock exchange. The standing a week ago was 106.

A last minute rush is expected to bear out President M. J. O'Brien's prediction that few except inactive bonds will drop from the list. Applications must be filed with the exchange by Wednesday. It, in turn, must file with the commission by Saturday.

Of 262 companies listing stock, 191 have filed applications and 29 more have indicated that they will do likewise. No reply has been received from thirty-six, while only six have announced they will drop out. Of the eighty-nine bond issues, however, only twenty-three have made application and seventeen are not to be listed. The remaining forty-nine have not been heard from.

STOCK MARKET IS STILL MIRED IN INACTIVITY

Prices Show Little Sign of Change.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 9.—Wall street looks back on another week and finds the stock market not far removed, if at all, from the slough of inactivity and narrow price movements in which it has been mired through the summer.

Judging from the price averages and volume, the market continues to indicate little but indecision. On the average, prices are virtually unchanged from the levels at the end of August or the end of June. The more optimistic, however, are prone to look on that fact as at least negatively reassuring.

Inflation Shares Drop.

Every day but Wednesday brought a depression, the sharpest breaks coming on Thursday and Friday, when the market was upset by heavy selling in the metal, or so-called inflation, issues. The market was jolted out of its lassitude on Thursday when prices crumbled on a break of more than 14 points in U. S. Smelting, followed by a milder sellof Friday.

That affair brought repercussions in Washington when the securities and exchange commission requested the stock exchange to look into the matter. Pre-New Deal pool manipulation was the ready charge. The exchange in a preliminary reply said that there had been no short selling in U. S. Smelting, and the street had to be satisfied with the explanation that the stock was the butt of disappointment over earnings of the company. At the same time, however, the exchange pointed out that pool operations, if such there were, do not come under the ban of law until Oct. 1, and until then it lacked the power to take action.

Seek Cause of Impasse.

Turning from that matter as in the nature of a side show, however, the trading fraternity continued to cogitate on the big problem of the market's persistent impasse. Various causes are advanced for despondency, but at the moment the most active cause was held to be continuance of mid-summer trade inertia into what is sometimes called the preliminary autumn period.

MORTGAGE LOANS NEED NEW GUARD, BANK DECLARES

Would Check Speculation and Overexpansion.

A new policy is needed by the mortgage loan business which would extend the principle of long term repayment, restrain real estate speculation and overexpansion, and promote more prudent practices by both borrower and lender, the September issue of The Index, publication of the New York Trust company, declares.

Direct government aid, temporary moratoria, and tax reduction have been of material aid to property owners in meeting demands made on them, but cannot solve the mortgage problem permanently, The Index says. Inflation and currency devaluation policies, it warns, may hold as much harm as good.

Costs Would Increase.

Mortgagors might find themselves better able to meet payments, but increased taxes and rising prices would tend to overbalance advantages of higher salaries or rents, it says. In addition, the purchasing power of investments would undergo a relative decline which would be reflected in trust fund investments and general savings.

"Uncertainty over future inflationary policies, moreover, augurs ill for the creation of a market for urban mortgages which will enable building construction to undergo that expansion which is so essential to any real revival in the capital goods industries," the survey says. "It is obvious that the money for new buildings will be forthcoming only when it is clear that it can be done on a strictly economical basis and in the certainty of maintenance of a stable currency.

"The crux of the whole matter lies in a careful adjustment of loans to the capacity of the borrower to meet fixed charges under all reasonable conditions."

Urban Mortgages Total Large.

The Index points out that urban mortgages constitute the greatest volume of long term indebtedness in the United States—about 36 billions. This is more than the debts of the federal government, four times the farm mortgage debt, more than all local government debts.

Urban mortgages increased by more than 200 per cent between 1921 and 1931, or from 12.4 to 21.7 per cent of all private and public long term debts, The Index said.

OKLAHOMA HITS NEW YORK RISK FIRMS IN ORDER

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 9.—(AP)—State Insurance Commissioner Jess Read said today New York insurance companies writing compensation insurance in Oklahoma would not be permitted to withdraw business in that field without posting $100,000 required bond to continue in other lines.

He advised the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation of New York it would not be allowed to withdraw from the compensation field and still write other business in this state.

Read recently ordered the $100,000 bond for New York companies writing Oklahoma compensation policies because of a New York court decision giving preference to New York claimants in event of the failure of a company.

LETTERS

Letters addressed to the Financial Editor, of not more than 200 words, will be printed in these columns from time to time.

Praise for Montgomery Ward & Co.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—For several months Montgomery Ward & Co. has had in force an innovation in treatment of time card employés. Those who give perfect punctuality and attendance for a month are given a half day off with pay. In these hard times such an act deserves public commendation.

MARIE JONES,
1553 East 63d place.

More on the Landlord's Plight.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—The "Landlord's Plight," a letter which you published last week, was interesting to me as I am the owner of real estate and have had my building occupied by unemployed tenants for three and a half years. They have paid little or no rent.

If I evict them the building will be wrecked rapidly by vandals in the neighborhood who remove plumbing, light fixtures, doors, windows, etc. Owners have called to inspect their property at times and found the entire building to have disappeared. The police make no effort to stop such robbery and destruction. The Illinois Emergency Relief corporation refuses to pay the rent, although providing the tenants with food.

The landlord who carries nearly the entire tax burden receives little or no protection from the authorities, no aid from the relief commission, and now, I understand, unfair competition from the Roosevelt administration, which is about to use federal funds for apartment building projects.

Bankruptcy Costs Assailed.

Lawton, Mich., Aug. 31.—I enclose a notice from the referee in bankruptcy of the Paramount Publix corporation calling a meeting Sept. 18, when bills payable will be acted upon. I call attention to bills of the first three trustees of $100,000 each for fourteen months' service. They have previously received $20,000. Also the bill of the attorneys of $350,000 for interim allowance. They already have received $75,000.

As these items appear to be "on account" no one knows what will be the final bleeding from bondholders. Cannot something be done to help those whose savings are invested in securities of this concern so they will not be robbed by these bills? Competent men could be found to serve in these places for one-tenth the amount proposed.

I am a creditor and strongly object to being robbed in this fashion, for it is nothing more than robbery. I am protesting to the referee but have little faith in his cutting down these items.

L. A. PACKER.

BRITISH BANKER URGES BRAKE ON NEW INVENTIONS

Sir Josiah Stamp Recites Effects on Labor.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Sept. 9.—Science was warned last week by Sir Josiah Stamp, a director of the Bank of England and head of the London Midland Scottish Railway company, largest in the country, to put a brake on the rush of new inventions before it wrecked the whole economic order.

Citing the view that Great Britain's population would become stationary within the next decade, Sir Josiah said the problem of labor displacing inventions had become acute and "will become more acute still if the same rate of scientific innovation is to be expected in the future."

"In all quarters one sees scientists trembling with enthusiasm on the threshold of great discoveries," he told members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which is holding its annual meeting here.

Fears for Economic Balance.

"But I tremble with dread as to what is going to happen to any kind of economic organism which is trying to keep in balance, particularly under an individualistic form of society. I tremble still more as to what would happen under any other form of society to those who must plan to meet the unknowable and the unseeable."

Then he flung this taunt at the physicists, chemists, and engineers who had flocked to the meeting of the economics section to hear him:

"I feel inclined to say to all of you scientific pundits: 'There would not be a problem at all if you were not so chaotic in your discoveries—if you would only introduce them into the body politic under conditions that we could control.'

"The two kinds of scientific advance must be kept balanced. As fast as you free labor you should invent new objects of human desire for absorbing that labor and the purchasing power that has been so freed.

Urges Correlating Inventions.

"If we could make the two kinds of innovation march step by step so that we would never have the invention of a labor saving device in an old industry unless at the same time it produced a labor creating device in a new one, then we should have conditions of economic equilibrium as near as they could possibly be provided."

Speaking as an economist rather than a business man, Sir Josiah admitted the task was difficult and probably impossible. In a thoroughly planned and regimented society the consumer might be prevented from following the sudden fads and fancies that ruin old industries, he said.

"Instead of the consumer entirely calling the tune," he added, "the producers' abilities and desires could be considered. But I have never found any enthusiast for planning who has attempted to deal with the central problem in this way."

Suggests Taxing New Industries

In an individualist society the only methods of curbing invention and the displacemenet of labor, he said, were "what many will regard as palliatives." Among them he suggested a tax on the profits of new industries to keep old ones from extinction.

"If the consumer," he asked, "can by a mere whim swing over into new prosperity some idea which is only marginally better than the old one, cannot the adversity of the one be linked to the prosperity of the other? That is a point to be explored."

But the immediate problem, Sir Josiah concluded, was devising some method of controling new industries before they had upset old ones and thrown more thousands out of work. The crucial test of the NRA codes in the United States, he predicted, would come when "new and ambitious entries" into business attempted to crowd out the old.

"We in England have four or five years before the worst problems of a stationary population settle in upon us; let us think about it in advance," he pleaded. "Let us not wait until we have struck rocks three or four times before doing something."

NEW FLOTATIONS DROP.

New flotations of Canadian government and municipal bonds during the first eight months of the year amounted to $258,300,217 as compared with $282,578,172 during the corresponding period of last year and $194,340,909 in 1932.

TRADE ABROAD REPORTED DULL IN U. S. SURVEY

Irish Imports of Goods from America Rise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—A generally dull tone marked reports to the commerce department from agents abroad, as disclosed in its weekly survey of foreign business conditions.

In Ireland the general trade situation continues about the same as in recent months. Imports directly from the United States during the first six months of the calendar year, at £932,000, were approximately 67 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1933. Imports from all sources in the same period aggregated £19,627,000, as against £17,597,000 in the first half of last year. Total exports, on the other hand, declined from £8,789,000 to £8,647,000.

Uncertainty Felt in Spain.

Various elements of uncertainty coupled with the normal summer dullness have prevented any marked improvement in Spanish economic conditions, but available indexes showed that the general situation is sounder than it was in midsummer of last year.

The Greek foreign trade balance in June was less favorable than a year ago, the import surplus rising to 500,000,000 drachmas from 251,000,000 drachmas. Exports fell 274,000,000 drachmas.

Jugo-Slavia foreign trade in June showed an import surplus of 83,627,500 dinars, as compared with an export surplus of 2,236,900 dinars in the same month of 1933. Imports increased to 322,341,500 dinars from 250,000,000 dinars, while exports declined to 238,714,000 from 252,287,000 dinars.

Poland's Production Lower.

Polish industrial production during July declined to 60.9 [1938 equals 100] after having reached 64.6 in April, the highest point so far this year. Present production, however, is considerably above that of a year ago. A 4 per cent increase in imports and only a minor gain in exports reduced the favorable balance of trade from June. Wholesale prices strengthened slightly.

Czechoslovakian revenues for the first five months of the fiscal year, with the exception of the tobacco monopoly, totaled 3,420,200,000 crowns, against 3,176,900,000 crowns for the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of 7.7 per cent.

Egyptian foreign trade in June showed an import surplus of £240,000, as compared with an export surplus of £286,000 in the corresponding month of 1933.

Business in Bolivia during August was stimulated somewhat by the continuance of satisfactory mineral prices, but as a whole trade was restricted.

Colombia reported conditions generally were more favorable in August and the outlook in several directions was viewed as encouraging.

Brooklyn Union Gas.

Investors' Guide: What do you think of Brooklyn Union Gas as an investment?—Mrs. E. S.

Answer: Brooklyn Union Gas company supplies manufactured gas to a population of about 2,800,000 in New York City, one of the most densely populated sections in the country. The business is predominantly with domestic users. The company has been active in maintaining its plants at a high degree of efficiency.

During the seven years through 1933 the company averaged about $7.25 a share earnings on the capital stock. In 1933, however, it earned only $6.18 a share, against $7.64 for 1931. About a dollar of that decline was represented by rate reductions and the rest by added expenses, especially taxes and loss of business. Rate reductions did not produce the anticipated increase in volume. Material costs are higher and labor expenses, due to national recovery act legislation, have mounted.

Thus, despite the fact that gross in the first half of 1934 was practically the same as in the corresponding 1933 period, net income dropped to $2.46 per share [$2.76 if reserve for rate reductions is excluded], against $3.37 per share for the first half of 1933.

The company earned $6.18 per share in 1933, against $6.79 in 1932, $7.65 in 1931, $7.25 in 1930, and $7.69 in 1929.

Current position at the close of 1933 was strong.

In May, 1934, New York City assessed a tax of 1½ per cent of gross income on utility companies. Rate reductions, totaling 5 per cent of gross revenues, are now in litigation.

The company has a creditable record of substantial earnings and efficient management. Factors outside its control, however, have brought earnings below the current dividend requirement of $1.25 a quarter.

These 4 Young Men Will Receive Only a Salary at the Start

It is uncertain whether this announcement is directed more to the father of an ambitious young man, or to the young man. The father will perhaps see more clearly its possibilities—but we do not wish to talk with the old man, we wish to see and talk with the boy himself.

Here's the opportunity—I am going to put into our organization four of the most earnest and promising college graduates that I can find. Perhaps you need not have had four years in college, but I want you to wish that you might have had.

The four men I pick will be given the chance of training in our business for a period of probably two years, in that time they will work in eight distinct departments of this business. They will be taught everything we can give them of all phases of the insurance business. At the end of that time, possibly a little sooner, they will be transferred to the productive side of the business.

During this period, a salary will be paid. Perhaps you can make more than the salary itself. Fine, if you can. The opportunity seems so unusual and real, that I hope only the young man with a studious and purposeful ambition will attempt to arrange for an interview.

Ph. Wade Fetzer Jr., Asst. to the President.

Why work in air that's Drier than the Sahara?

It's a fact that desert air registers an average relative humidity of about 23, while most offices record the dangerous Winter reading of about 18.

The new air conditioning system in Tribune Tower promotes better work by protecting health. That's just one of the many advantages of a Tribune Tower office. An ideal location at the right price.

156 Bodies Recovered After Burning of Morro Castle; Coast Guards Tow Smoking Hulk to Shore

HULL OF THE MORRO CASTLE LIES SMOKING ON NEW JERSEY BEACH; DEATH TOLL REACHES 156. An exceptional air view of the burning Ward liner as it was beached at Asbury Park, N. J., yesterday, less than 200 feet from the city's convention hall. Owing to a tremendous high tide the ship was borne over a sand bar and carried high up the slope of the sandy beach, where it cannot possibly be refloated.

[Acme Photo.]

HIS FATHER AND BROTHER LOST IN DISASTER. Robert Lione, 4½ years old, with his uncle, Frank Lione, after the child had been brought to New York on the Monarch of Bermuda. His mother was also saved.

[Acme Photo.]

[Acme Photo.]

HAPPY REUNION AFTER RESCUE SHIP DOCKS. Ruth Torberg of Brooklyn, N. Y., is greeted by her father, John G. Torberg, after she landed with 22 other Morro Castle survivors on the liner Andrea F. Luckenbach.

YOUNG SURVIVOR IS HELPED TO AMBULANCE. One of the passengers of the Morro Castle being taken to a hospital at Manasquan, N. J., shortly after he was taken from a lifeboat which brought him ashore.

MOTHER BRINGS BACK ONE SON; ANOTHER LOST. Mrs. Julia Rueda, holding her son, Dicky, 3 years old, as they arrived in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the Andrea F. Luckenbach. Another son, Benny, 7, was reported missing.

FLAMES LEAVE ONLY THE HULK OF COSTLY LINER; FEDERAL INVESTIGATION WILL BEGIN TODAY. This photograph of the stern top deck shows how the fire ate into the ship. Intense heat caused steel beams to buckle and melted the glass in portholes. Because of the condition of the ship coast guardsmen who boarded her yesterday were unable to go below to search for victims.
